Roosevelt Tells You.
Puzzling High Finance.
The Beer-Income Dream.
Third Place For U. S. A.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

AFTER ELECTION day millions asked:

"What is going to happen? What kind of new president have we?"

A majority asked the question hopefully, some business men asked it doubtfully.

Gov. Roosevelt, who will be President in about three months, answers the main question in an article published in COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE, setting forth exactly what HE INTENDS SHALL HAPPEN under the leadership by the Democratic party.

His article, published in the January number of COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE just issued, is headed "Your New National Leadership," and Americans, especially those whose plans depend on the business character of the coming administration, will read carefully every word of it.

GOV. ROOSEVELT writes:

"The basic fact is that the farmers must immediately get a living income from the domestic market. I intend to attack the problem where it is most urgent—in wheat and cotton, for these are the money crops of one-third of our people. * * *

"An artificial or even temporary measure to create this benefit for agriculture is justified."

THE FOLLOWING brief extracts from Gov. Roosevelt's article in Cosmopolitan will enlighten those that have wondered what kind of administration is coming.

"Debts owed the United States by foreign governments must be paid.

"Domestic speculation and stock thievery, personal and corporate, must be put down if we are to get the confidence essential to industrial and business progress. * * *

"We must have no more of the frenzied speculation and brutal exploitation of innocent investors that we have recently seen. The 'blindness' of a national administration to it would be criminal." * * *

Gov. Roosevelt's article in Cosmopolitan has answered questions that ninety per cent of the people would put to him, and has answered them with considerable emphasis.

THE UNITED STATES is expected to borrow from eight hundred to a thousand million dollars this month, as part of its "financing." This is done by issuing notes that pay interest, not by issuing currency, therefore it is not "inflation."

But if a bank's customer were adding to his indebtedness, the bank would call it inflation, no matter on what colored paper his promises to pay might be written.

WHEN THE government puts "I promise to pay" on yellow paper, bearing interest, as it has done on more than twenty billions worth of such paper, that is "correct finance."

If it wrote and distributed five billion dollars' worth of "I promise to pay" on green paper bearing no interest, that would be dreadful inflation, although the people would save $200,000,000 a year in interest, and often, as we saw recently, $800 of the green paper would buy $1,000 worth of the yellow paper. All very confusing, for the financial ignoramus.

THE GOVERNMENT plans to tax beer, if you get it, 3 cents a pint, and hopes to collect $370,000,000 a year, figuring that if the people used to drink 2,056,407 gallons of cheap beer in 1914, they will drink 1,545,000 gallons of beer, heavily taxed, in 1933.

They will NOT do that, unless you arrange for DISTRIBUTION of the beer.

SINCE IT is wisely determined that the saloon shall not return, where will the 1,545,000 gallons be sold? Not in small bottles carried home, not in a few restaurants.

New York had 10,000 saloons, and now has 40,000 speakeasies. Perhaps the speakeasies will solve the distribution problem, adding a tax of their own.

IT IS SUGGESTED that wine be axed 40 cents a pint, plus a customs duty of $2 a gallon. That is good news for speakeasies, and bad news for American grape growers. For low priced red or white wine, such as many workers drink, and greatly to their benefit, as compared with whisky, 40 cents a pint tax would be prohibitive.

The government's beer-income dream, with inadequate distribution, will end in disappointment.

Tax alcoholic spirits to the limit, at least as heavily as bootleggers have taxed them, tax lightly beer and wine, that millions drink without intoxication, and you will solve the drink problem.

THOSE THAT demand cancellation of foreign government debts tell you solemnly that prices of all products have fallen disastrously, because Europe owes us so much money

They do not explain the fact that the drop in prices, HERE, is greater than in the principal European countries. And they do not give any good reason why taxpayers of this country should pay for a war started by European friends.

SECRETARY OF the Navy Adams says our Navy is in third place. We lag behind, Japan and England forge ahead.

That is not the worst of it. IN THE AIR we are "nowhere," far behind European nations in everything important, our engines weaker, speed less rapid,

REPEAL FAILS IN HOUSE BY MARGIN OF 6 VOTES

JUDGE AGAIN ORDERS VICE 'CLEAN UP'

Patterson Points Out New Violations to 'Blind Men'

"The blind men's parade" of constables who fail to wreck the rackets in their districts was endowed with sight today by Judge Frank P. Patterson as he resumed his one-man fight against "protection."

One by one they paraded past Judge Patterson with their quarterly returns, sending up silent prayers that the reports of their activities would escape the tongue-lashing the same jurist visited on them a few months ago.

There was a noticeable increase in the number of raids reported.

NOT SATISFIED

But not enough to satisfy the court. Stern and curt, Judge Patterson faced the lineup with a batch of letters in front of him. These were complaints from citizens of joints operating near their homes.

And the constables in these districts were halted as they paraded by and told to go back and investigate the places, then file supplementary reports.

When Mike Mehalik, who is not only Braddock's police chief, but also constable in its First Ward, reported, Judge Patterson told him that a man—John Feeney, of 428 Camp avenue, Braddock—had been beaten and stoned last Friday by thugs who accused him of being an "investigator for Patterson."

TELLS OF ATTACK

Feeney appeared and told of being attacked in Braddock avenue, near Sixth street. Mehalik promised to arrest the three assailants on Feeney's identification.

Twenty or more constables were ordered to return Friday with reports on places revealed to them by Judge Patterson.

Among these was Mark O'Malley, of the Second Ward, who reported "no violations" in the Strip—which brought from Judge Patterson:

"Now, Mr. O'Malley, this is almost inconceivable."

The court then instructed O'Malley to investigate a place in downtown Liberty avenue, another

Granted Her Divorce

MRS. BERTHA JONES . . DIVORCED FROM HER PIANO-PLAYER

WIFE DIVORCES ALLAN JONES

Mrs. Bertha Jones, of 11 Alpine avenue, who is reported to have collected $2,500 from Frances Williams, the beautiful blonde who was a singer in George White's "Scandals," today had a divorce from her piano-playing husband, Allan R. Jones, former cab driver.

Jones is now said to be appearing on the stage in the East. The decree was granted in Common Pleas Court today.

Almost two years ago, Mrs. Jones sued Frances Williams for $100,000 on an alienation of affections charge. Last spring the suit was withdrawn and reports said that a settlement of $2,500 had been effected.

Jones, after graduating from the ranks of cabmen, played the piano in the California Collegians Orchestra, featured in "Fifty Million Frenchmen."

WOMAN BALKS HOME BOMBING

Plans to bomb the home of Roy Hiller, chief of the Fire Prevention Bureau, at 161 Pearl street, were frustrated today when his wife, Mrs. Jane Hiller, discovered the bomb in the front vestibule shortly before it was timed to explode.

City Detectives Michael Tortorelli and Gus Ellis said the bomb had been made by professionals. It was a foot-square, loaded with dynamite. A glass tube filled with liquid had been inserted. The chemical would have eaten through a cork stopped within half an hour and set off the explosive, the sleuths said.

The attempt was blamed on incendiaries seeking vengeance against Hiller who has been active in running down arson gangs.

46 JOBS CUT IN BUDGET REDUCTION

Health Department Saves $74,000, Told It's Not Enough

Forty-six jobs were lopped from the payroll by the Health Department today as Council threatened to make huge arbitrary slashes in Mayor Kline's $25,000,000 budget.

First blood in Council's fight to reduce the $11,500,000 payroll came when St. Clair Cooper, chief clerk of the Health Department, appeared before Council in absence of Director C. B. Maits, who is ill, and offered to eliminate 35 regular employes and 11 temporary jobs.

Wiping out these would mean a saving of $74,005, approximately 11 per cent of the department payroll. The total set up for the Health Department is $2,347,645, including the garbage contract amounting to $1,400,000.

EXPECTS MORE CUTS

"We'll say thanks, but we expect more."

Among the jobs cut out are a doctor and nurse in Morals Court, clerk in the Bureau of Child Welfare, five nurses, 11 smoke inspectors, three weight inspectors, one supervisor of house inspection, one dairy inspector, one meat inspector, two food inspectors, one laboratory assistant, two nurses at Municipal Hospital, three tuberculosis nurses at general office, one assistant sanitary inspector, eight house and sanitary inspectors.

Traveling expenses of dairy inspectors were cut $650.

Dr. Elizabeth Childs has been the Morals Court physician for years.

LANG REDUCTIONS

Previously Public Works Director E. G. Lang had offered to cut his $5,326,433 budget by $750,000. He said:

"This is exclusive of salaries. We are leaving salary adjustments up to Council."

In demanding that the Kline budget be slashed to prevent the threatened 7-mill tax increase, Councilman Charles Anderson moved to cut $1,423,000 from the 1933 estimates of the Public Safety Department; $1,000,000 from the Public Works Department and large sums from other departments.

BUDGET CUT, "CLUB"

Councilman Robert Garland seconded the motion. Action was deferred, however, by unanimous consent until members of Kline's cabinet have been given full op-

FLIES TO HELP REPEAL FIGHT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Senator-designate Walter Walker ended an auto-air dash from Grand Junction, Col., to Washington today, took the oath and gave the Democrats of the Senate a temporary plurality of one. However, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic leader, said the Democrats would not attempt to take over control of the Senate at this session.

'LAME DUCK' DRYS KILL RESOLUTION; EXTRA SESSION CERTAIN

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—The Garner resolutions submitting repeal of the prohibition amendment to the states failed in the House today.

The vote was 271 for and 144 against the resolution.

The repeal resolution was defeated in a dramatic fight because it did not receive the two-thirds vote necessary on resolutions to change the constitution.

The battle over prohibition is thus shunted into the new Seventy-third Congress, which comes into power after March 4, overwhelmingly Democratic in all its branches. In all probability, a special session of the new Congress will be summoned by President Roosevelt after he assumes office to deal with prohibition and other issues in line with the Democratic platform.

The unprecedented first day vote in the "lame duck" Seventy-second Congress was forced by Speaker John N. Garner on the ground that the resolution for outright repeal carried out the Democratic platform, which was upheld by the people in the November elections.

LAME DUCKS' COMBINE

A combination of Democratic and Republican drys, man yof them "lame ducks," combined to defeat the repeal plan today.

The margin by which the repeal resolution failed was only six votes.

And beaten though it was, there was disclosed in today's vote striking evidence of the great shift of public opinion on the prohibition issue in the past.

In the new Seventy-third Congress, which will now have to deal with it, the Democrats themselves have in excess of two-thirds of the total membership and, combining with the wet Republicans of the Eastern seaboard states, it is fairly certain that action will be speedily obtained there.

Many who have voted dry in other tests during the dozen years prohibition has been on the statute books switched today.

Under present plans, no further vote on resubmission of the amendment itself will be taken during the rest of the lame-duck session.

There will, however, probably be a vote on the legalization of beer before the Christmas holidays.

It only requires a majority vote of the Congress to legalize beer, as against the two-thirds necessary to repeal or submit a constitutional amendment.

ROLL CALL TAKEN

The debate over, there was some parliamentary delay and then the roll call was started at 1:55 p. m.

The roll call showed 407 members present. There was continuous din throughout its taking.

Rep. Blanton (Dem.) of Texas, said:

"Mr. Speaker, we can't hear."

Garner replied, banging down his gavel:

"Well, I've been trying to get order."

CAPITAL BARS HUNGER ARMY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—As Congress met today in a heavily guarded capital, the army of demonstrators who descended upon the city last night were still bottled up by bluecoats on a short stretch of pavement in the outskirts.

Fretting and fuming under police restraint, the motley throng once drew up in marching order, took up a long red banner and headed for the solid lines of police.

But when the blue ranks tightened to meet them, the leaders turned aside and jeered the police for their precaution.

Vice President Curtis said today he would receive a delegation of not to exceed three members from the demonstrators.

Lawyers representing the marchers, meanwhile, made little headway in efforts to invoke the law as a means of releasing the group from its pavement camp and permitting the demonstrators to march to the Capitol in accordance with their plans to demand $50 each and enactment of unemployment insurance.

Ex-Klan Head Loses Murder Case Appeal

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Federal Judge Thomas W. Slick today denied the petition of D. C. Stephenson, former Indiana dragon of the Ku Klux Klan, for a writ of habeas corpus which would have freed him from the term of life imprisonment he is now serving in Michigan City State Prison. He was convicted of the murder of Madge Oberholtzer, of Indianapolis, in 1925.

Einstein Enraged by U.S. 'Third Degree' on Visa

BERLIN, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Albert Einstein, Germany's most famous professor, stood like a schoolboy today before an American consular official who asked him questions concerning Communism, Pacifism and Anarchism.

He took the questions meekly for a while and then reared up in all of his professional dignity and declined to be put through what he considered to be a sort of third degree.

The occasion was his application for a visa for his impending trip to the United States. Later he issued an ultimatum declaring that if he failed to receive the visa within 24 hours he would not go to America.

Recently the State Department at Washington forwarded a demand by the Woman Patriot Corporation that the famous scientist be barred from the United States on the ground that he is a Communist.

The relativity expert once received from President Hoover a message of congratulation. New York has made him an honorary citizen.

Blue Law Too Strict, Minister Comments

The Pennsylvania Blue Law has a tendency to over-strictness said the Rev. R. E. Snodgrass, pastor of the First Christian Church, Arch street and Montgomery avenue, North Side, last night.

He believes the law should be rewritten, but holds to the belief any revision should be done not by those financially interested in an open Sunday, but by persons who wish to preserve the spirit of Sabbath observance.

Holland's Condition Remains Critical

Garner Resolution Asks Dry Repeal, Ignores Beer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(INS.)—The Garner resolution voted upon in the House today has to do with straight repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. It does not pertain to the Volstead act, beer, light wines or any other phases of the prohibition question.

If passed, it would go to the Senate for action and then to President Hoover for approval or veto. Sanction of more than two-thirds of the states would be required if it was approved by both Congress and the President before the Eighteenth Amendment would be removed from the Constitution.

The text of the Garner resolution follows:

"Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled (two-thirds of each house concurring therein), that the following article is proposed as an amendment to the Constitution, which shall be valid to all intents and purposes as part of the Constitution when ratified by conventions in three-fourths of the several states:

"Article:

"Section 1. The Eighteenth article of amendment is hereby repealed.

"Section 2. This article shall be inoperative unless it shall have been ratified as an amendment to the Constitution by conventions in three-fourths of the several states within seven years from the date of its submission to the states by the Congress."

Penna. Gets New R.F.C. Loan

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(INS.)—Upon application of Gov. Pinchot, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation today made available $1,531,090 to meet current emergency relief needs in 51 counties of that state for December.

Data furnished the corporation indicated total relief needs for these counties in December of $9,643,717. To meet this need it was reported that $8,028,035 is available from funds on hand of which $3,903,112 was available from funds previously allocated by the corporation.

The new loan brings the total amount loaned Pennsylvania to $11,304,448.

GRAVE ISSUES FACED AS 'LAME DUCK' CONGRESS MEETS

FIRST SENATE SESSION LASTS 19 MINUTES

Davis Among Many Members Absent From Floor

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—Falling gavels in both houses on the stroke of noon sent the dying Seventy-second Congress on its turbulent way today.

The lame-duck Congress—probably the last of the species—faced a set of circumstances and problems unparalleled in the history of the republic.

With only three months to live, the dying session of the Seventy-second Congress faces a staggering array of legislative challenges. And with control divided, and split into factions, as it is, the belief is general that the session will fail to accomplish its major objectives, necessitating an extra session of the new Seventy-third Congress soon after March 4.

MANY ABSENTEES

There were absentees on the floors of both Houses at the opening. Notable among them was Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania.

Davis was not on the floor, nor in his office. Last night Mrs. Davis said she did not know where the Senator went after seeing the Army-Navy game in Philadelphia Saturday.

There have been rumors the Senator would not appear on the floor until after his trial by a Federal Court on a charge of violating the lottery law as director general of the Loyal Order of Moose.

The Senate was in session exactly 19 minutes. After the roll call and the new members were sworn, resolutions of regret were adopted over the death of the late Senator Wesley L. Jones, of Washington, and Senator Waterman, of Colorado, and then adjourned out of respect to their memories.

Senators Watson and Robinson, the majority and minority leaders, were appointed a committee to notify the President that the Seventy-second Congress is ready for business.

WATSON GREETED

Genial "Jim" Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, was the center of a constantly shifting group of Senators of both parties, offering their condolences on his defeat. Partisan differences aside, Watson is genuinely popular among his colleagues. He laughed at their condolences with his usual good humor.

Senator Huey Long, the Louisiana "Kingfish," roamed about the Republican side of the chamber, twitting the lame-ducks, and cracking jokes at Republican expense.

Only 79 of the 96 senators answered their names on the roll-call. Three new members were present and sworn. Walter Walker (Dem.), of Colorado, who is to serve only a few days; Robert P. Reynolds (Dem.), of North Carolina, and Elijah S. Grammer (Rep.), of Washington, who succeeds the late Wesley Jones, of "five and ten law" fame.

Immediately upon the Senate's adjournment there was a rush of members to the House side, where the excitement of the opening was beginning to unfold in the battle over prohibition repeal.

OTHER PROBLEMS

Behind the prohibition issue ranks a formidable array of other problems confronting this session of Congress:

(1) Adequate farm relief, to which the new in-coming Democratic administration is pledged in a variety of ways.

(2) Balancing the federal budget, now "in the red" to the tune of almost a billion dollars for the current fiscal year.

(3) Location of new sources of federal income to tap, in order to make the government's income equal to its out-go.

(4) The united demand of European debtors for relief from their December payments, pending review and further reduction of the whole structure of war debts.

(5) Radical reduction of federal expenditures, to which both the old and new administrations are pledged.

There are numerous other problems that in varying form will arise to confront the dying session of the Congress—payment of the soldiers' bonus, Russian recognition, tariff reform, rehabilitation of the railroads, unemployed relief—the list might be extended indefinitely.

But in the three months of life left to this Congress, it is not likely that even an approach can be made to many of these problems. They must, of necessity, go over until after March 4, when a new Congress, overwhelmingly Democratic in both branches, comes into power.

REPEAL DEFEATED IN HOUSE

Tilson (Rep.), of Connecticut, and Crisp (Dem.), of Georgia, were read. Representative Snell (Rep.), of New York, spoke up:

"I demand the right to hear."

Garner declared:

"I have asked for order."

Snell said:

"You have the sergeant-at-arms to keep order."

He had to shout to make himself heard.

The rollcall completed, Garner immediately recognized Representative Rainey, who presented the repeal resolution. On a teller vote, the House then ordered a rollcall, which, under the suspension of rules, required 40 minutes of debate, 20 to each side.

Representative Tarver (Dem.) of Georgia, a dry, objected to the granting of a second to Rainey's resolution and on the teller vote the members passed in a line between Representative Christopherson (Rep.), of South Dakota, leader of the drys, and Rainey. There was no roll call.

Among those who went through the line with the wets was Representative Ruth Bryan Owen (Dem.), of Florda, daughter of William Jennings Bryan, the great dry leader.

The vote to consider the resolution was 245 to 121—more than a two-thirds vote, but many members apparently did not pass through the lines on this test.

DEBATE OPENED

Debate on the resolution was opened promptly by Representative Rainey.

All attempts by those in charge of the resolution to obtain an extension of time for debate were defeated by objections.

Representative Sumners (Dem.), of Texas, sought to enlarge the time to three hours. Representatives Dyer (Rep.), of Missouri, and Dickstein (Dem.), of New York, objected. Representative La Guard (Rep.), of New York, then asked for two hours' debate. Dickstein objected:

Snell said:

"Mr. Speaker, will there be an opportunity to amend the resolution?"

Garner replied, tartly:

"The gentleman knows the rules and knows there will not be."

Representative Michener (Aep.), of Michigan, asked the Democratic leaders to withdraw the resolution and "bring it in a more orderly way."

Rainey, of Illinois, author of the resolution, opened the fight for it with a simple reading of the demands of both political party platforms for quick action on repeal, and said:

"I have submitted this resolution in compliance with both party platforms and ask, as majority leader, its adoption."

DEMOCRATS ASSAILED

Snell announced he would vote for the resolution, but assailed the Democratic majority for rushing prohibition repeal to a vote on the first day of the session. He said:

"It does start machinery to refer this ffuestion to the states. The resolution will be amended many times, and I have personally decided to vote for it."

Snell said the Democratic majority was not "showing proper respect for the President of the United States," in bringing up the resolution before the President's message is read. He said:

"It makes us look like a lot of irresponsible individuals."

Snell declared he firmly believed that the House would support the Republican plan of resubmission, including protection for dry states and outlawry of the saloon, if given a chance. He asserted:

"In rushing this through with 20 minutes' debate on each side and no chance for amendment, you are breaking precedents of 150 years."

Representative Sabath (Dem.), of Illinois, urged support for the resolution so that he people can pass on the question of prohibition.

Representative Moore (Rep.), of Ohio, long a wheel horse for the Anti-Saloon League, said:

"The highest duty and the highest privilege is the consideration of a constitutional amendment.

"Men are coming to the Capitol asking for food and we are asked to give them booze.

"This is in contravention of the Republican platform.

"Do not think you can vote for this resolution and clear yourselves with your constituents."

Representative Blanton delayed proceedings by raising a constitutional inquiry regarding the distribution of time allotted speakers on either side.

Answering charges of a "gag rule," Representatives Celler (Dem.), of New York, said the country had been considering the question for 12 years.

Representative Beck (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, long an exponent of repeal, answered the dry claim that no Republican could conscientiously vote for the repeal.

Threat Boy's Prank, Says Clairton Mayor

Declaring he regarded a letter bearing a threat against his life the work of an imaginative school boy, Mayor J. R. McVey, of Clairton, today had turned it over to the Clairton postmaster, to attempt to trace it.

PASTORS HERE LEAD FIGHT FOR DRYS

Messages to Congress Protest Change In Law

Protest against dry law changes was voiced today to Congress in telegrams as local ministers voted to assume leadership in the fight for prohibition.

Vice President-elect John N. Garner, House Speaker, was condemned, as 100 members of the Ministers' Association of Allegheny County, met in bi-monthly meeting in the Second Presbyterian Church. The ministers forwarded identical wires to both branches of Congress, but added the Garner condemnation in the House message. This message read:

"It is our opinion that the zeal of the Vice President-elect could be better employed in securing for the people bread rather than beer."

The protest sent both branches read:

"The Ministers' Association of Allegheny County, Pennsylvania, with a membership of 600, assembled today in the Second Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh, most respectfully and urgently petitions your honorable body to retain the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States and to provide for a more vigorous enforcement of same. We further protest against any efforts to weaken in any way the laws for enforcement of the Eighteenth Amendment. We declare the liquor traffic to be an evil always and everywhere and not to be tolerated in civilized society and prohibition as the best way to deal with it."

PINCHOT LAUDED

Lauding Gov. Pinchot for upholding Sabbath interests, a resolution was voted to petition officials, legislators and the people to "refuse to permit any change whatsoever in the existing laws." The resolution further said "men and women have all the time they need for pleasure and recreation, and more than they desire."

Voting to take leadership in the fight against wet forces, the meeting approved the request of the Rev. Dr. James M. McQuilkin to direct a group of mass meetings January 15, anniversary of the Eighteenth Amendment, in conjunction with the W. C. T. U., Council of Churches and Allegheny Sabbath Association.

The vice attack being led by Judge Frank P. Patterson was indorsed. Support was promised the jurist.

Mrs. Roosevelt Knits Sweaters for Needy

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—(Universal.)—Some unemployed persons is to receive a sweater knit by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. The wife of the President-elect has enrolled in the New York American knitting contest. Said she:

"Knitting is the one pastime I know of where you don't have to watch what you're doing or even think about it. I knit my way through speeches, football games and railroad journeys. It's awfully pleasant, and it soothes my nerves."

BUSCH, MASTER BREWER, ARMS FOR GANGS

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Dec. 5.—August Busch, Sr., multimillionaire president of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., revealed during an interview in his private office today that he carries within arm's reach two loaded revolvers because fear had been felt some time ago that he might be kidnaped.

The revelation, made for the first time, came while America's foremost brewer was discussing business conditions and what legalization of beer would mean to the country.

Busch, 66 years old, heavy-set, full-faced, with gray side whiskers cutting across his tanned cheeks at right angles suddenly pulled open a drawer of the desk at which he was seated and exclaimed:

"See this gun. (It looked like a horse pistol.) I keep it right with me. And (yanking open another drawer) see this one, too. I can take care of myself."

Busch's voice rose almost to a snarl and his normally merry blue eyes glinted as he contemptuously snapped out the word, "kidnapers."

He spoke feelingly of the Lindbergh kidnaping and the kidnaping case in his own family—the abduction on New Year's Eve of 1930 of his 14-year-old grandson, Adolphus Busch Orthwein. Young Orthwein was returned unharmed.

JUDGES' RULING FAVORS BROOKS

The Returning Board judges today for the tenth time certified election board figures in preference to the Recount Board figures in the Thirteenth Congressional District fight between Edmund F. Erk, Republican incumbent, and Twing Brooks, thereby helping Brooks to maintain his winning majority. At the same time Attorney Charles Lane obtained an order for a recount of eight districts in the Twenty-fourth Ward. The judges are to hand down their decision on the Eighth and Tenth districts of the Twenty-third Ward later.

The judges scored the Republican counsel for not producing election watchers at the hearing. In each of the 10 districts heard, Democratic watchers were present and testified.

Thursday is the last day for starting a contest in the courts here. Ballot boxes, however, can be brought in and counted for three months from the date of election.

Lane today said he would carry an appeal to the Congressional Committee.

STATE'S G. O. P. MUST REBUILD, SAYS PINCHOT

Sees New Leadership Or Permanent Loss Of Power

HARRISBURG, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Gifford Pinchot, independent Republican Governor of Pennsylvania, today asserted that unless the leadership of the Republican party is changed, "the millions of voters who were lost to the party this year will be lost for good."

The Governor, long a critic of the national and state Republican organization, said in an open letter to "Republicans" that the party's national ticket was defeated last month by Republicans who voted Democratic.

CHARGES WEALTH FAVORED

He ascribed this shift to the action of the Republican leaders who "in every great issue before the American people have taken the side of concentrated wealth."

The day after the general election the Governor asserted:

"The Republican leaders asked for defeat, and they got it."

In his statement today the Governor charged the national Republican organization with attempting to obtain money for unemployment relief from the poor instead of from the incomes of the rich. Beaten in that, he asserted, "they provided billions to relieve the rich against millions to relieve the poor," continuing:

"They opposed federal relief except in the form of crumbs from the rich man's table. They made it clear to the people that they had no interest in the people, but only in the rich and the strong."

SCORES MELLON REFUNDS

He charged them with taking the side of the power monopolists against the people and with seeking to lower taxation on the rich and increasing taxation on the poor. He said:

"The Mellon tax refunds to great interests amounted to over four billions of dollars.

"The Republican party must regain, and deserve to regain, the confidence of the rank and file, or give place to a party that will. Unless the present leadership is changed, the millions of voters who were lost to the party this year will be lost for good. You cannot convince the average man that all he deserves of the apple is the core.

"The people are sick of perverted Republican leaders. They are sick of the Mellons, the Morgans, the Insulls, the Atterburys. They are sick of having their interests betrayed.

"And on this score, Pennsylvania has a special grievance. For the Mellon-Vare-Atterbury organization has twice in the past six years sent to the United States Senate men who were conspicuously unfit. The last horrible example is Jim Davis, the man who milked the Moose, and whom the Senate will doubtless refuse to reseat also."

Flames Destroy 'Fever Machine'

DAYTON, O., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—A "fever machine," one of three of its kind in the United States, was destroyed by fire at the Miami Valley Hospital here yesterday.

Similar machines are used in only two other American cities—Rochester, N. Y., and New York City. The apparatus generates heat for the treatment of paralysis resulting from certain types of insanity.

'Siamese Twin' Infants May Undergo Operation

MALDEN, Mass., Dec. 5.—(INS.)—X-ray photographs were taken today of Malden's "Siamese twins" to determine whether they may be separated.

Regardless of the verdict, an operation will not be performed for some time, according to Dr. Clarence H. Staples, attending physician.

The twins, girls, were born to City Councillor and Mrs. Frank H. Reed and they were accompanied by a brother, Reed said:

"These two little girls will be loved by us just as deeply as if they were normal children."

Dr. Staples said:

"Our immediate task is to get the babies healthy. They have lost less weight than the average baby after birth. I have prescribed a special feeding formula which they are taking."

The babies are kept in an ordinary double crib. They were examined Sunday by a large number of medical men from various sections of New England.

Tillie, Orang-Utan, Dies; Friend Maggie Mourns

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Tillie, the orangutan of the Toledo Zoo, lifted herself feebly toward a glass of orange juice and fell dead.

A little more than six years ago she roamed the jungles of Borneo. Then came man and his cage and, yesterday, death.

Until six months ago she shared a cage with Maggie, the orangutan who had preceded her to the zoo. Then they were separated when Dr. Reuben Hilty, zoo veterinarian, diagnosed Tillie's trouble as tuberculosis.

Today, Maggie, apparently sensing the death of her former cellmate, refused all offers of food.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—A quiet little struggle which has been going on in the Bronx Zoo between three inmates of the monkey house and Junior Keeper C. J. Buehler was disclosed today by Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, the curator.

The feud started when an electrician was sent to install some wires in the cage occupied by three 75-pound orangutans, named Gabong, Dohong and Dyak.

Gabong seized some of the wiring and was slapped by Buehler. So the next time Buehler came near the cage, Gabong shot his arm through the bars and divested the keeper of his trousers in one deft stroke.

With the help of his mates he has made three attempts to escape from the cage and continue his quarrel with Mr. Buehler at close quarters. All have failed but they're still trying.

COUSIN TESTIFIES AGAINST HOMEWOOD IN BETRAYAL TRIAL

REVEALS FEAR OF SUICIDE BY SOCIETY GIRL

N. Y. U. Professor's Evidence Aid to Riding Master

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service

NEW CITY, N. Y., Dec. 5.—Alec George Homewood, the man who told the father of Charlotte Gibson that his own cousin had betrayed her, took the witness stand today at the trial of Sidney Herbert Homewood, riding master, who is accused by Miss Gibson.

Alec, an older edition of the blond horseman, sat directly before Sidney as he began his story of his part in the tragic romance. The two men looked at each other often, Sidney with his mouth grim, Alec with his eyes scornful.

They used to work together at the riding academy where Charlotte met the man she says is the father of her unborn child. Now Alec has a rival academy and the cousins do not speak.

FEARED SUICIDE

Alec has declared he told Robert Gibson of Charlotte's condition because he was afraid she would commit suicide. He was at that time in his cousin's confidence.

"Sid," as the witness casually referred to the defendant, never mentioned the breaking of his engagement to Elizabeth Bishop, Wheaton College student, Alec related, although he told his cousin of the trip to Massachusetts on which he is said to have broken with Miss Bishop.

Dr. Walter MacKeller, New York University professor, who is a friend and client of Homewood's, had previously testified Sid admitted it was Miss Bishop who broke the engagement. The riding master told Miss Gibson he broke it to be free to marry her.

Alec told how his young cousin informed him Miss Gibson was in trouble and appealed to him to help persuade the girl to destroy the child.

Alec quoted Sid:

"If you stand by me, we'll get out of this!"

To which he said he replied:

"We're not in it. I won't have anything to do with it."

Finally Sid told his Cousin Charlotte's people knew about it, and that Sid went to see Gibson.

District Attorney Henry V. Stebbins asked:

"When he came back what did he say?"

"He said he was going to marry her."

Sid even told Alec that Judge Sherwood, of this city, was going to marry them, he said. But next day the defendant came in and announced:

"I'm not hitched yet! I've seen my lawyer and he says I don't have to. All they can do is make me support the child."

Then said went to see Gibson again, this time to tell the irate father he would have to support his son-in-law.

Gibson, according to Alec's tale, "got mad" and put him out of the house.

Homewood turned to Charlotte, whose advances he had previously repulsed, Prof. MacKeller testified, because of his distress over his broken engagement.

Called as a witness for the state, Dr. MacKeller gave testimony favorable to the defense, for Homewood has always maintained Miss Gibson, who will be a mother this month, pursued him.

Dr. MacKeller testified:

"Homewood told me that Elizabeth Bishop broke their engagement.'

Miss Gibson has testified Homewood told her he broke the engagement to Miss Bishop to be free to marry her. The professor related:

"Sid told me he was afraid for a time after the broken engagement, he had lost control of himself. He said 'I had said no to Charlotte so often!' He said he had always repulsed her advances before that time."

Homewood did not make it appear that his engagement to Miss Bishop, now a student at Wheaton College, was permanently off, according to Dr. MacKeller. She told him she wanted to finish college then work for a year and perhaps then the engagement could be resumed, Homewood told the professor.

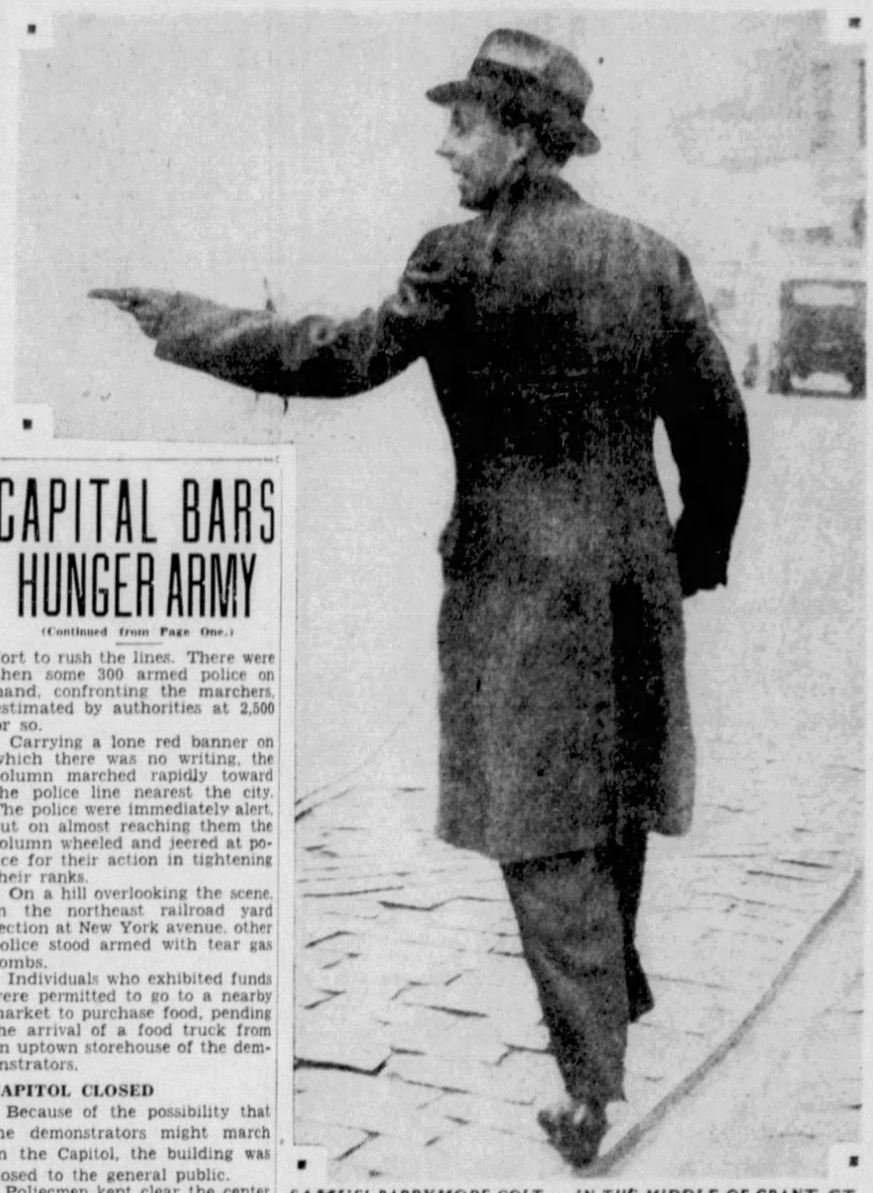
Homewood never told Dr. MacKeller, whom he knew quite well, that he loved the tall brunette horsewoman, Charles H. Finkelstein then brought from MacKeller. Neither of the pair ever mentioned an engagement between them.

Dr. MacKeller said the Gibsons, whose names appear in the Social Register, had snubbed him on one occasion when he was in Homewood's company. And after the Newark horse show the doctor was invited to dinner, but not the riding master. MacKeller concluded:

"Sid told me before this trouble began, 'Charlotte was becoming too fond of me, so I told her of my engagement to Miss Bishop to see if that won't keep her away from me."

Philip H. Lewis, manager of the Spring Valley Theater, then told the court the picture Charlotte and and Sidney saw before the alleged betrayal on the night of March 1, was called "Safe in Hell." The audience occupying all the available space in the courtroom, laughed heartily. It is an audience that has been more appreciative of comedy than tragedy during this trial.

A Barrymore as a Court Witness



SAMUEL BARRYMORE COLT . . IN THE MIDDLE OF GRANT ST.

Mr. Colt discussing this and that with reporters as he walked —walked into the Courthouse to testify in the damage suit of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Roehrig, Farragut street, against Joseph H. Thompson, Jr., Beaver Falls, with whom young Mr. Colt, son of famous Ethel Barrymore, was riding when the Thompson and Roehrig autos collided in December, 1929. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

fort to rush the lines. There were then some 300 armed police on hand, confronting the marchers, estimated by authorities at 2,500 or so.

Carrying a lone red banner on which there was no writing, the column marched rapidly toward the police line nearest the city. The police were immediately alert, but on almost reaching them the column wheeled and jeered at police for their action in tightening their ranks.

On a hill overlooking the scene, in the northeast railroad yard section at New York avenue, other police stood armed with tear gas bombs.

Individuals who exhibited funds were permitted to go to a nearby market to purchase food, pending the arrival of a food truck from an uptown storehouse of the demonstrators.

CAPITOL CLOSED

Because of the possibility that the demonstrators might march on the Capitol, the building was closed to the general public.

Policemen kept clear the center of the big plaza on the east side of the Capitol, and were ordered to keep it clear through tomorrow.

Within the Capitol, all corridors were watched closely. Admission to the gallery floors was by ticket only, and all except employes were denied entrance.

At the White House similar precautions were taken.

A heavy guard of police surrounded the executive mansion from early morning on. In addition to pairs of White House police at each entrance to the extensive grounds, metropolitan and park policemen patrolled the sidewalks around the mansion.

CLERIC BOOED

An ear-shattering shout of boos and the chanted chorus of the Internationale answered the Rev. Kiro S. Nickoloff as he sought vainly to preach to them.

Nickoloff said he was a Greek Orthodox priest, but when asked his address replied he was from "here and there."

Somewhat later, a milling crowd of 500 demonstrators shouting "Get that cop" was quieted with some effort after they had discovered what they thought to be a government agent in their ranks.

Pushing an unidentified man before them, the demonstrators advanced the second time close to police lines, shouting and jeering.

Plainclothesmen stepped rapidly into their midst and saved the suspected man from harm, separating him from the rest of the group.

The man ejected by the marchers repeatedly refused to give his name, address or occupation. As he left the strip of pavement allotted to the demonstrators, a marcher snapped his picture with a pocket camera.

The man said he had credentials as a marcher, displayed them and offered also credentials showing him attached to the intelligence unit of Walter W. Waters, of the Bonus Expeditionary Forces.

In answer to newspapermen who asked him if he was connected with the police department, he replied:

"Not here, anyway."

'ROXIE' BACK AT TRIAL

Roxie Long, government's chief witness in the liquor conspiracy trial in Federal Court, reported to have disappeared over the weekend as a result of threats, was in court today when the trial was resumed.

Asked where he had been Long facetiously replied:

"At church."

Assistant United States Attorney Raymond D. Evans said the government would complete its case against 23 defendants by tomorrow. Nineteen defendants, including Long, have pleaded guilty to charges of conspiracy to violate the dry laws.

Testifying for the government were John D. Knight, prohibition agent; Gyp Constantine and Elmo Lee, the latter two stating they worked making or hauling moonshine.

Hill Halts 'Army' Near Uniontown As Police Fail

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Wind-swept Chestnut Hill, a steep elevation east of this city, today holds the distinction of turning back more of the Washington-bound demonstrators than the combined police power of America.

While officers resorted to every means within their power, to check the migration, but to no avail, scores of chugging, battered cars—a section of the motor-caravan—failed to "make the grade" of old Chestnut Hill, which loomed like a Gibraltar in the path of the procession.

More than 100 travelers faltered on the steep ascent and turned back. One van, carrying 27 persons, broke down.

BARRYMORE KIN WITNESS HERE

Samuel Barrymore Colt, scion of the acting Barrymore clan, will go on the witness stand tomorrow in Common Pleas Court to testify in the damage suit of Dorothy Roehrig and Charles W. Roehrig, 924 Farragut street, against Joseph H. Thompson, Jr., of Beaver Falls.

The Roehrigs are suing young Thompson as a result of an automobile accident on the Ohio River boulevard Christmas week of 1929, in which the Thompson and Roehrig cars collided, injuring Mrs. Roehrig.

Roehrig testified today that his wife is forced to wear a neck brace as a result of a fractured vertebra. For a time, he said, she was forced to don a steel corset.

Mrs. Roehrig, on the stand in tears, testified that she was an excellent swimmer and tennis player before the accident, but is deprived of those amusements now.

Young Colt journeyed here from his California home expressly to testify in the case. He was a house guest of the Thompsons at the time of the accident.

Posed as Salesgirl In Store, Arrested

Testimony of Anna Hupka, 18, of 18 Geranium street, that she posed as a salesgirl at a store where she formerly worked and fled with money paid by a customer for a dress, resulted in her being held for further investigation by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones in Morals Court today. She also admitted stealing a dress from a store.

Mike Baronetski, 18, of 128 Muriel street, and Frank McGuire, 31, Johnstown, Pa., were held for court on larceny charges after it was testified they stole merchandise.

MOTHER HEARS TATE BOYS IN GUILTY PLEA

Brothers Confess to Killing Father, 'Bad Man'

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Dec. 5.—Two brothers, Sam and George Tate, today pleaded guilty to a general charge of murder in the slaying of their father, Isley Tate, reputed "bad man" of the mountains near Bruceton Mills, W. Va.

December 19 was fixed for hearing testimony to determine the degree of the crime.

A third son, John Tate, pleaded guilty to receiving stolen goods.

Mrs. Nellie Tate, 38, widow of the slain man, less than 5 feet tall and weighing only 85 pounds, was in court. Her husband was slain a week before her thirteenth baby, named Robert Stanford, was born last September.

Tate, mountaineer cattler dealer, was said to have been a hard father. His word was law and often the law irked the sons. Three of the boys, Sam, 15; George, 19, and John, 21, are alleged to have planned the murder, which, it is charged, was carried out by Sam and George. They obtained $200 after George shot his father on a lonely mountain trail, the state contends Sam was the lookout. John shared in the division of the spoils, but was not charged with the murder.

COUPLE PARTED ON HONEYMOON

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—(Universal.)—Charles Elliott Warren, Jr., and his bride, the former Jean Murray, daughter of a wealthy Detroit family, parted on their honeymoon, it is learned.

Warren, son of Gen. Charles E. Warren, retired soldier and financier, and Miss Murray eloped on September 20. The bride explained:

"I met Charles only four months ago. He made violent love to me. I accepted him and we were married immediately.

"We went to his family estate at Hewlett and I found we were expected to live in two rooms over a garage. His family objected to my continuing interior decorating. We visited my parents in Detroit, and one evening at a party I objected to Charles drinking. Next morning he packed his bag and left our home."

PRINCE, AUTHOR POLITE RIVALS

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Said Prince Wilhelm, of Sweden, as he was about to leave an elevator:

"After you, Mr. Connelly."

"After you, your royal highness."

The neat problem in etiquet, later settled by the toss of a coin, occurred when they arrived simultaneously at a tea at the home of Mrs. John Morehead, wife of the American minister to Sweden.

They paused after the elevator had taken them to the third floor.

The tall prince smilingly reminded Mr. Connelly, who in turn protested that the prince go first.

"You are the guest of honor."

Mrs. Morehead hurried for a coin and spun it in the air.

Killed in Plane Crash

MARCELLA KOPNITSKY . . FOUND DEAD IN FLOATING PLANE

Miss Kopnitsky, 16, Punxsutawney girl, found dead in a wrecked plane floating in Lake Erie. Three other members of the airplaning party have not yet been found as the search continues today.

LAKE SEARCHED FOR 3 DEAD

DETROIT, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—From boats and airplanes a search continued today for the bodies of two men and a woman, members of an airplane party of four which crashed in Lake Erie Saturday.

Only one body has been recovered, that of Miss Marcella Kopnitsky, 16, of Punxsutawney, Pa.

The missing are Catherine Seis, 29, of Detroit, aunt of Miss Kopnitsky; Patrick Tuohey, 36, Detroit pilot and airplane salesman, and Thomas Neil Brown, brother of Raymond Brown, the plane's owner and member of a well-to-do Detroit and Clearwater (Fla.) family.

The crash was the tragic culmination of a flight which started from Detroit Friday night with Pittsburgh as the destination. The quartet got to Toledo and started back to Detroit. The plane crashed a mile off Bar Point, just below the mouth of the Detroit River.

ARNOLD YOUTH AWAITS FATE

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—(Universal.)—Charles Bertrand Arnold's life hung today on the balance of the judgment of Judge Prystalski, chief justice of the Criminal Court.

The boy, who killed his stepgrandmother with a hammer because she had refused to let him use her car, attended prison services in the county jail yesterday.

The boy has been pronounced "unstable mentally and sick emotionally" by the jail physician, Dr. Harry Hoffman. This afternoon Arnold was to learn how far justice can be tempered with mercy.

RAID JAIL, BEAT 6 STRIKERS

VACAVILLE, Cal., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Six reputed leaders of a strike which has disrupted fruit picking in Vaca Valley were kidnaped from Vacaville jail early today, whisked away in automobiles and reported painted red, beaten and told never to return to this vicinity.

The men were among 15 persons arrested during a clash in front of the public library Sunday. Police estimated 1,000 people participated in the fray when townsmen broke up a parade of 150 striking fruit workers who are demanding a wage of $1.50 a day.

The six were taken from jail by a group of men who drove rapidly into the country, in seven automobiles, warning others not to follow. After a prolonged search for the party, which he "guessed" was made up of irate townspeople and farmers, Police Chief O. E. Alley said he understood the erstwhile prisoners had been turned loose 10 miles in the country and their captors had returned home.

WOMAN AT 70 HELD ELOPER

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5.—(INS.)—A gray-haired 70-year-old woman faced Magistrate Edward F. Roberts today after an attractive red-headed 30-year-old wife complained that her handsome 27-year-old husband had tried to elope with her elderly rival.

The principals in the triangular drama are Millie Lancaster, her husband, Henry, and Louise Marg, widow, of this city.

Mrs. Marg denied that she intends eloping with Lancaster, claiming that she merely desired to have him escort her to California and protect her from the possibility of being robbed en route.

M'CLOSKEY HELD ON PERJURY, VOTE COUNTS

Mayor Also Accused in Freeing of Prisoners, Granted Bail

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Dec. 5.—Johnstown's fighting redheaded Mayor, Eddie McCloskey, today was held in $2,500 bail on charges of perjury, illegal voting and three charges of wilfully releasing commonwealth prisoners from the city jail.

The decision of Alderman George R. Patterson was announced today following a hearing Saturday afternoon when 1,500 people gathered around the alderman's office.

HINTS AT FRAMEUP

At the hearing, Attorney Percy Allen Rose, counsel for the Mayor, brought admission from the prosecutor, R. Milton Good, a private detective, that he had been asked to make the informations, first by Detective Capt. John Carroll and then by Attorney Mahlon Baumgardner, counsel for the prosecutor and expected to get paid for his work.

Rose moved to have the charges dismissed on the ground that they had been instigated without due knowledge upon the part of the prosecutor and intimated a frameup.

The perjury charge is based upon an affidavit of the Mayor setting forth that he had been unable to register on the three registration days by reason of absence from the city and had his name placed on the voting list by the County Commissioners, whereas city records showed he had presided at a session of Council on September 20, one of the registration days.

WITNESSES GRILLED

The illegal voting charge is based upon the fact that he voted at the November election on a false registration.

In the matter of release of prisoners, McCloskey's counsel showed by commonwealth witnesses on cross examination that the required legal procedure to designate the three men named as commonwealth prisoners had not been followed and that there were no papers on file at the city jail to indicate the nature of charges pending against them other than the police blotter.

WIFE OF PRISON GUARD SLAIN

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Mrs. Hilda Nolan, wife of Herbert Nolan, guard at the Raymond Street Jail in Brooklyn, who was suspended after the recent killing of Head Keeper William McConnell and Andrew McCormick, a prisoner, was shot to death today in the kitchen of her apartment. Police said they found Nolan in the kitchen in a dazed condition. He was taken to Brooklyn police headquarters for questioning.

The Nolans have two children, Irene, 8, and Herbert, 4.

Nolan, on duty at the jail November 26, passed Mrs. Lucille McCormick through the jail to visit her husband.

In an open break for freedom, McCormick shot McConnell with a revolver believed to have been given to him by his wife.

Police searched Mrs. McCormick and said they found two bottles of chloroform, and expressed the opinion that this was to have been used in a wholesale jail delivery attempt.

When police arrived in the Nolans' apartment today, they said Nolan had a gun in his hand, from which three shots had been fired.

JUDGE RENEWS DRIVE AGAINST RACKETS

in Barbeau street and a half dozen in Penn avenue, including a numbers headquarters said to hold a draw at 7 o'clock each night.

'ALL QUIET' ON HILL

James Levoulis, of the Third Ward, reported the Hill district quiet, and Andrew Maloney, who is also a city detective, said as much for the First Ward.

Earl R. Sims was ordered to investigate four places in North Craig street, another in Melwood street.

Judge Patterson instructed J. H. Healy to "clean out" the numbers racket in the Nineteenth Ward, Patterson said:

"My complaints seem to place Si Ruddy as the chief concessionaire out there."

Thomas McNamara, in the Seventh Ward reported the Bachelors' Club was closed.

Gus Ellis, another city detective, who also serves as constable in the Twelfth Ward, was told to investigate a half dozen places in the Larimer avenue district.

Charles Stewart promised to look into a place in the 4700 block of Liberty avenue.

TOLD TO INVESTIGATE

Judge Patterson wanted to know whether Constable Joseph Devine, of the Tenth Ward, knew "Big Frank the Barber," in Butler street, then told him to investigate four places.

Henry C. Cohen informed the court he had rid the Fourteenth Ward of numbers writers.

R. R. Howell said "Shavely's Yacht Club" in the Eleventh Ward was closed.

Constables Ben W. Smith, of Bethel Township, and Alonzo Jackson, Negro, of Braddock Township, were the first to face Patterson's fire.

"Bucket of Blood," Joe Garsicks, Blue Moon barbecue and Zaders.

When Smith said he had raided Zader's once, Judge Patterson retorted:

"Well, you'd better raid it again . . . There are also reports of solicitation of concessions in your district."

'NUMBERS' CHARGED

Jackson was told to report Friday on a complaint that Harry C. Wright, described in a letter as a Republican county committeeman and a friend of the constable's, was selling numbers.

Frank Scott and Elmer Millington, of Scott Township, were asked if they knew numbers were being sold by "Manion, Comerowski, Pickwick and Keeban."

Millington answered:

"I never saw anybody selling any."

A. J. Federkeil, of O'Hara Township, was told of a complaint that young people consumed considerable liquor and ordered to investigate the situation.

Constables Joseph A. Copeland and Peter Schmidt were ordered to investigate four alleged booze spots in Butler street, Etna.

To Isaac Hummell, of the Third Ward, North Braddock, Patterson said:

"Do you know a borough employe named Krews and about any lotteries in Hawkins avenue?"

SHARPSBURG INVOLVED

Iamuzzi was given a list of places in Sharpsburg, mostly on Main street, then asked whether John Doland, a relative of the chief of police, had a bar at 301 South Main street. Iamuzzi said Doland's had been raided and the police chief removed.

S. Y. McFarland was told to investigate four Italian restaurants in one block of Sewickley's Beaver road.

The county's only woman constable, Mrs. Agnes Way, of Osborne, was not challenged.

Judge Patterson Charges Grand Jury

A grand jury consisting of 11 men and 10 women was charged today by Judge Frank P. Patterson. George R. Wright, 431 Franklin street, Wilkinsburg, was sworn in as foreman. The jury then retired for the consideration of some 650 cases.

In his talk to the jurors Judge Patterson pointed out that it was their duty to report to the court should any outsider attempt to discuss cases with them.

Today

climbing power of pursuit planes pitiful, and in numbers our fighting fleet, compared with that of France for example, is a joke. We have the MEN, MONEY AND NEED, but not the common sense.

Some of the money that Europe owes us might well be used to buy an airfleet and a few submarines, unless "financial institutions and corporations" should need and get it all.

JOHN R. TURNEY, of the St. Louis, Southwestern Railway Lines, says railroads must borrow ideas from motor and water transportation and undersell their rivals.

It is not too soon to reach that conclusion. Railroads must also use their invaluable rights of way in more modern fashion, with light, high speed, small units of passenger transportation, at low cost.

All that is needed is to get out of a rut and show courage. Harriman would do it, if he were alive. There would be no buses or rubber bumping beside his rights of way.

CAME FAR, GOT DOLLY

REBECCA ANN HUNTER, SHE CAME FROM LATROBE FOR DOLL

Miss Rebecca, 3½, daughter of Mrs. J. E. Hunter, 2417 Lavine street, Latrobe, who found three new readers for the Sun-Telegraph, came to Pittsburgh to receive this "Precious" dolly from the Sun-Telegraph's kindly Doll Lady. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

PUSH BUDGET CUT DEMAND

portunity to make cuts voluntarily. Meanwhile the prospective action will hang as a club over their heads.

Anderson declared:

"We should tell the directors what to do, and if they fail to do so, we should not set up the money to pay salaries. All this conferring is simply a waste of time. The administration shows what it intends to do. You have had several directors in here and they haven't given a bit of help."

Councilman Harry A. Little said:

"Let's find out exactly how the department heads stand. If they don't cut the budget we will know what kind of officials they are."

CLARK SCORED

Councilman P. J. McArdle added:

"I don't look for the slightest co-operation from the Safety Department. I don't believe Mr. Anderson's motion took as much from that department's estimates as Council will have to take. I won't trust Director Clark to make up a budget to serve public needs in the light of recent experiences."

Director W. R. Dunlap, of the supplies department, said he would submit "certain small reductions" tomorrow.

Meanwhile civic groups continued to voice demands for slashing Mayor Kline's $25,000,000 budget, trimming down the payroll and taking all other means to reduce taxation.

Asserting that one-third of the income of workers is required to pay taxes of all kinds, "an intolerable burden," the Western Pennsylvania Branch, National Economy League, in a letter to Council today urged drastic measures to keep down the 1933 levy. Homes and life savings of small property owners are jeopardized, A. Rex Flinn, chairman of the organization, declared.

TAXPAYERS PROTEST

Members of the Hill District Taxpayers' League held a protest meeting at the Irene Kaufmann Settlement yesterday, at which they demanded that the City Council, School Board and County Commissioners reduce taxes 33 1-3 per cent. Also they demanded that property in the Third and Fifth wards be reappraised at once. Attorney I. Leonard Aronson, president of the Allegheny County Real Estate Owners and Taxpayers' League, was the principal speaker. Approximately 400 people attended.

Public Safety Director Clark and Welfare Director Mrs. Enoch Rauh, in conferences with Council last week, volunteered total net reductions of $237,596, or slightly less than one-third of a mill.

DO HEADACHES DRIVE YOU CRAZY?

It's the worst kind of folly to dope and drug yourself every time you have one of those blinding, throbbing headaches. For drugs only relieve the pain for the moment, and in a little while the headache returns worse than ever and you have to drug yourself all over again. You've got to get at the cause.

Poisons created in your own body cause these severe headaches, and you must remove the poisons to get relief of a lasting nature.

By starting the new harmless Cream of Nujol treatment, today, you may free yourself from this constant torment.

This new form of Nujol is specially designed to rid you of poisons which very often cause this condition.

Cream of Nujol contains no drugs, and does not in any way interfere with work or play. It is delicious to take. Moreover, you can use this modern treatment at a cost of but a few cents a day.

Take Cream of Nujol night and morning. Begin this very night and give it a real trial. Buy it at any drug counter.

OHIO COAL RATE FIGHT OPENS

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5.—Western Pennsylvania coal shippers today went into battle again to obtain through the Interstate Commerce Commission a readjustment of freight rates they claim is necessary if they are to compete in a market where millions of dollars are at stake.

Losers in many efforts to obtain more favorable rates on lake cargo coal shipments, they are fighting for markets in Ohio.

Many attorneys and rate experts were present at a hearing before Examiner R. N. Trezise, of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The hearing began with Ohio mine operators and manufacturers telling their side in the effort to retain the competitive rate differentials to Ohio lake and intermediate points.

The Ohio interests seek to maintain the differential fixed by the Ohio Utilities Commission.

HELPFUL HINTS ON CIPHER 19

Cipher No. 19

"Artillery Fire Order."

TATMS	TTABN	EVRAK
MONVI	HXBE	LLIHN
OBTOI	ALION	AENAE
OADLL	NSENT	SFORT
BSERM	TTAOH	TGRSO
REDOL	SEIEW	EVESY
RKRFE	WOTWE	EOEIN
NTACE	ORGEE	NANDT
OOYCO	LEYTN	TCTOF
OGRAT	UARTE	YTRIH

Sure, it looks hard, but this cipher, of a form commonly used in the United States Army for tactical orders, is a simple one even for beginners.

Read article for clues. Then solve. Watch for the deciphered message—and a new one tomorrow.

Lots and lots of lads and lassies are having a tough time trying to solve Cipher No. 19, the "Artillery Fire Order." Here are a few helpful hints:

This cipher is called a transposition cipher, is one of the simplest of all forms and one of the quickest and simplest of all to encipher or decipher. For that reason, it is often used in the army for orders to be immediately executed, so that no great harm will result if enemy cipher experts manage to decode it a few hours later.

Hint No. 1—Compile a frequency table. As before instructed, remember that frequency tables are NOT accurate for short messages, but are often good guides. One of the most common lists of frequency of letters in English is: E, T, O, A, N, I, R, S, etc.

A TRANSPOSITION

From the result, you will see that (allowing for two ties) the frequency of characters in the above message is the same as the table given, which should convince you that the cipher is one where there is a TRANSPOSITION, or rearrangement in the order of the correct letters, rather than a SUBSTITUTION of one letter for another, such as we have had in all the previous ciphers.

Hint No. 2—Count the total numbers of characters in the cipher. The number—150—suggests an arrangement in some units of five. You know this is a cipher for quick uncoding, which suggests small units rather than large.

Try first, then, six groups of 25 characters, or, in other words, put the five-letter words in stacks of five words each.

ORDER CHANGED

You can assume that the order was changed in writing out the message, so on a large sheet of scratch paper write out the first six words of the message in one line, the next six words directly underneath in the second line, etc., until the message is all copied in that fashion.

Hint No. 3—Now you have on your paper six squares, each containing 25 letters. Scan these carefully for combinations of letters that suggest words. In the first square the vertical combination TTERY in a military message suggests the word BATTERY. Look for the BA. Then draw a light pencil line through the whole word BATTERY, beginning with B and ending at Y. That should suggest how to do the rest. In the same manner the horizontal combination ALION in the second square, the diagonal combination ANGE in the third, OAD in the fourth, and EIGH and ETWEE in the fifth and LLIH in the last, should be hints enough for you to solve the whole cipher in 20 minutes.

GRAND CHAMPION STEER

WINNING STEER BOUGHT HERE

The grand champion steer of the Thirty-third International Live Stock Show in the Union Stock Yards at Chicago is coming to Pittsburgh. He is scheduled to arrive here tomorrow morning.

The steer is a Hereford known as "Texas Special." For a while the prize animal will be exhibited to the public and then will find its way to Pittsburgh's dinner tables in the form of choice steaks and juicy hamburgers.

"Texas Special" was selected the champion from 750 contenders. He is the first animal from the Lone Star State to win the honor, and will be the first grand champion steer ever brought to Pittsburgh.

The steer was bought for Donahoe's at $1.25 a pound in a spirited auction. This is at a period when prime steers are selling at from 7 to 8 cents a pound on the hoof.

TELL IT TO SALLY

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By SALLY MARTIN

People Shouldn't Be Driven Into Loveless Marriages

Is it safe to marry without love?

If you do, will love come after you've slipped on the platinum shackle and "settled down"?

Ronny wonders. What would you tell her?

Dear Sally:

I need someone to advise me, and I hope you will do it, for I feel you're the only one with common sense enough to tell me the straight of the problem I have.

I am 20, and considered quite attractive. I have gone with a good many chaps in the past two years, because I enjoyed their company, but I never had any serious intentions toward any of them, and they knew that.

For the past eight months I have been going with one in particular, and now he seems to think he can tell me with whom I should associate, where I can go, and, in short, demand an explanation of where I have been when I wasn't with him.

Now I have never given him any reason to think I was the least bit serious, but he wants to get married, and although I have told him time and again that I do not love him, he still insists and says that I will learn to, "after we are married."

I have asked my folks for advice, but they seem to be in favor of my getting married and settling down, and they think I am insane to throw aside the love of a boy who can "give me everything that my heart desires."

FAMILY NAGS

I've explained to them that showers of gifts can never make me love him. I've argued that I am not a child any more, and that when the time comes for me to fall in love I will, and that until I do, I have no more intention of marrying and settling down than the man in the moon. In fact, this topic has become an argument for dessert, every night at the dinner table.

It's gotten so bad that if any other fellow calls to see me, my parents won't speak to him except to insult him.

What shall I do? Sometimes I'm afraid that if they keep nagging I will get married just to keep them quiet, and if I do, that my life will be a bedlam. I don't hate this fellow now, but I know I will if I marry him, because I can't stand to have anybody demand that I do something I don't want to do. Won't you help me?

RONNY.

What'll you do?

WOULD DO WRONG

Learn not to let yourself be pushed around, youngster. It's your life, and it's up to you to live it. If you married this man, feeling the way you do, you would be doing both him and yourself a very serious wrong. And in a short time, there would be just one more divorce.

As for his "giving you everything your heart desires," how could he when what your heart wants is love, and a man of your own choosing? Nothing can be a substitute for that. Nothing can make up for it, if you throw that dream away.

So don't let yourself be bluffed. This man is really "grinding his own ax," and showing mighty little consideration for you. He wants you, and intends to get you, whether it makes you happy or miserable.

Don't let him get away with it!

Stop seeing him, altogether. Explain to him that, since he is serious and you are not, it would be better for both of you to break off—and then stick to it.

The folks may put on a riot, but it is your life, and you can't afford to wreck that life because you're afraid to face a fracas.

Affectation a Cardinal Social Offense, Declares Fay King

IF YOU ARE INCLINED TO BE SHY, DON'T WORRY TO BE SHY CAN BE CHARMING
BE YOURSELF
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Affectation is always disconcerting.

Its false note rises above every other good quality of natural personality that would attract and please.

There is a vast difference between improving and pretending.

Affectation is not alone the assumption of cultivation one does not actually possess. It is sometimes quite the opposite, in seeming coarse.

But in both cases it is never successful, because it is always overdone in either direction.

Those who pretend a grand manner are unbearable bores.

Those who pretend to be "roughnecks" are only offensive, a real roughneck is amusing.

Naturalness never strikes a jarring note, because it is sincere and has much innate tact.

Those who create dislike for affectation most are those to whom it does no credit by its poor imitation.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Perfect Defense

"I found the perfect woman bridge player," a friend told me the other day, and showed me the hand and the defensive measures that his partner adopted. I think you will be inclined to agree with me that his praise, even if stated in the superlative, is quite well deserved.

Defense is unquestionably the hardest part of bridge play. This is so because the defending players are so frequently groping in the dark, and quite often in the play of a hand are unwilling to trust the accuracy of the inferences they drew in the progress of the bidding. When a contract is doubled, the tendency is strong to go ahead and make certain of the defeat of the contract, even though the ultimate in trick-taking power is not realized.

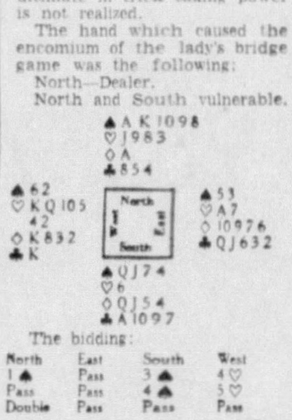
North—Dealer.

North and South vulnerable.



The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	4 ♡
Pass	Pass	4 ♠	5 ♡
Double	Pass	Pass	Pass

Of course, West's bid of five hearts was an unwarranted overbid, but actually, when the cards went down, West did not anticipate the price that was to be exacted because of the effort to prevent the opponents from scoring a vulnerable game. It is, of course, apparent that North and South need lose only one heart and two clubs, at the very most, and probably could make five spades, as the location of the King of diamond was quite clearly marked.

The Opening lead was the diamond Ace, and North, the lady so highly recommended, now made the first play that gained her the confidence of her partner. She led the 9 of spades, underleading both the Ace and King on the basis of the inferences she had drawn from her partner's double Jump in spades. South won with the Knave and returned the Queen of diamonds. West played the King, North ruffed, and now led the 9 of spades. South won this trick with the Queen, cashed the Knave of diamonds, upon which North discarded a club, and followed with a small diamond, which North ruffed. Now a club was led, South cashed the Ace, and that was all for the defending side, but as it netted a total of 1,000 points for a 5-trick set, it was probably enough.

TODAY'S QUESTION

North and South are vulnerable. North deals and bids two diamonds, and East bids three spades. Should South pass or bid with the following hand:

♠ 4 3 ♡ 3 2 ◇ K J 3 2 ♣ Q J 5 3 2

Answer—South should bid four diamonds, as his hand contains sufficient strength for a double Raise, and North would draw a negative inference from a pass. The hand is not strong enough for a bid of four clubs over East's three spade Overcall.

Heart of a Wife

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Lillian Assures Ronald of Stepfather's Innocence

My little exclamation at Dr. Barnes' comment, that the missing girls might well be within sight of the school, brought every pair of eyes in the room to my face. But I was too excited at the sudden remembrance back of the exclamation to be annoyed at the scrutiny.

"You've thought of something!" Lillian said. "Tell me."

But I hesitated, not looking at Ronald, but dreading to speak before him. I shall never again be skeptical about thought transference, for he spoke quickly, as if I actually had voiced the reluctance in my mind.

"If it's something about Mr. Owens, or—even my stepfather—don't stop on my account," he said bravely. "I can stand anything—now."

"Thank you, Ronald. I answered, feeling like giving the lad a salute. "It's only this. When we came down here with Marion the first time, Mr. Owen and Mr. Brixton spent two or three days driving around the mountains. They said they were looking at real estate."

"I remember their talking about it," Ronald said. "Dad wanted to get a shack up in the mountains within reasonable distance of a trout stream, but I always understood that he couldn't find one."

His voice was jerky and filled with the horror of having his stepfather, whom he had loved, connected with this crime. Lillian moved over to him and put her hand on his arm.

"Dear boy," she said. "I am sure you will find that your stepfather had no hand in this thing. And as for his half-brother, he appears to have a perfect alibi. We ought to investigate this angle, of course, but don't torture yourself with something that may not materialize."

TO STUDY ROADS

He caught at her hand convulsively.

"You are so good," he murmured brokenly. "I should think you'd hate all of us."

"We can check any purchase of real estate in the surrounding country made by Owen in the last two years," Hugh Grantland suggested calmly. "But that can wait. We must parcel out these roads. It will be daylight in another hour, and we ought to leave the school before then, so that our going will not be seen. We don't want to give these chaps an inkling of what we're doing."

"Madge and I will take her car," Lillian said decisively. "And I want to start from that place where Rose's friend saw the girls in the red coats getting into a car—bless you, Madge, for figuring out those reversible coats; we were muffing that clew—and drive along trying to get inside the mind of the man who drove that car. You men can reason your course out. Madge and I are going to trust to intuition."

"You shall do anything you wish," Harry Underwood said, "only—a man goes along in your car."

"All right," Lillian said coolly. "We'll have Ronald with us, although that will leave only you and Hugh and Brock if you get away from the school before daylight. You ought to have another man."

"Dicky promised to send Wynne back by daylight," her husband said. "We can pick him up by watching closely for him along the only road he can take back from the airport."

A LONE HAND

Something in his voice told me that he was annoyed and uneasy because of Lillian's quick choice of Ronald to go with us instead of one of the older men. But she made it impossible for him to object without wounding the boy cruelly, and besides he knew that Lillian on this excursion would carry with her a tiny but deadly silencer pistol, and could deal as effectively with a sudden emergency as could any man living.

"If only I could go with you," Dr. Barnes said with a sigh, and his wife echoed his plaint. "But of course we must stay here, not only to keep the girls from finding out, but to see to putting up that white flag, and to receive any possible messages. When will you return? And where?"

"Harry and Ronald and I will go over to the hotel, where the Brixtons already are," Lillian said. "Madge promised to come back here, you remember, as her presence won't be noticed by the girls, and she can act as a sort of liaison officer between the hotel and the school. Hugh, will you come with us?"

"I don't think it would be wise," Hugh said. "I want to keep in constant communication with Lee Chow, so I think I'd better play a lone hand. But I'll let you know where I am as soon as I find a place, and you will be able to get me at any time I am there."

I saw both Harry and Lillian glance quickly, furtively at Hugh, and surmised with them that something not yet known to us lay beneath Hugh's determination to play a lone hand."

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Mother's Greeting

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me if it is proper for a mother to greet a young man each time he calls to take her daughter out? She met him on his first visit to her home. There are just mother and daughter in the home. The mother is a widow. A.

I'm glad that the mother greeted and welcomed the young man to the home when he called for the first time, for this hospitable gesture is very important and gives the girl the proper "background" of graciousness and hospitality. After this first visit, it isn't necessary for the mother always to greet the young man when he comes, although it certainly is a charming thing for her to do. (Note to daughter: Mother needn't stay a long time . . . just a greeting!)

Wedding Plans

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

If the bride-to-be's father is not living, is it proper for the mother to lead the daughter to the altar, or would it be more proper for the bride if her uncle gave her away? F.

This is for the girl and her mother to decide. I'd like to suggest that perhaps it would be better for the bride to walk to the altar with her uncle, and then for her mother to give her in marriage. I do like the idea of having the bride, if she has no father, presented in marriage by her mother, and I do also like to see the bride walk down the aisle with a male relative. This combination of "duties" that I suggest does both of these.

BRANCH PUSHED BY MONTOUR

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—The Montour Railroad Company has issued orders to speed construction of its branch from Negley, O., to Smiths Ferry, Pa., and a third contracting company moved equipment into the Beaver Creek right of way, ready for operation today.

An injunction suit filed in United States District Court at Cleveland by the Pennsylvania and Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroads, to prevent construction of the branch, which will link the Youngstown steel district with the Ohio River, will not halt operations at the present, officials of the company said. W. B. Moore, Montour attorney said:

"We have received no official notice of the Federal Court suit and are proceeding with the construction work."

Montour interests, which include the Pittsburgh Coal Company and James E. White, of Pittsburgh, have until January 2 to answer the petition of the protesting roads, seeking an injunction to halt work until Montour obtains permission from the Interstate Commerce Commission.

THIS CHRISTMAS I'D LIKE AN ELECTRIC WASHER

if it's a Maytag

"I never even thought of home washing before. But I've seen how easy it is to wash in a Maytag. And it seems silly to pay someone else to do such light work."

But don't confuse "buying a washer" with investing in a Maytag. A Maytag washes clothes cleaner . . . faster . . . with less work . . . less wear and tear on clothes . . . less cost per washing . . . and keeps on doing that for more years. It represents a permanent investment in household equipment and in actual dollar and cents savings.

Certainly a washer is an appropriate gift—if it's a Maytag. Come in and let us demonstrate and talk terms.

Frank Taylor isn't responsible for the slice in Old Age pensions. The blame should be placed with state officials.

How can you figure this out? "Take a Chance" with rave notices from all critics didn't sell out Monday eve? . . . A few hours before that hit opened here, Jack Haley and Sid Silvers, who won great praise, were afraid to go on, so frightened were they that their stuff wasn't funny enough . . . The Cotton Club gives away 1,500 Xmas baskets of food to the poor in Harlem every year. Already they've had 1,000 requests, so they are running a mammoth show at Rockland Palace, December 10, with five famous bands—tickets $1 each, hoping those in Harlem who can afford a dollar will help them buy more than 1,500 baskets . . . Hugh Wedlock called. Said he found out why the U. S. won't recognize Russia—it's ac. of their long beards! . . . That "male Connie Bennett" at first nights, who applauds longer and louder than anyone else, and becomes a bit of a bore, and a show-spoiler, is a local divorce lawyer . . . He was in the front row on the left at "Gay Divorce," with a neck the critics love to clutch!

They say that Phil Plant is in a sanitarium again, sicker than ever . . . Carolyn Nolte stabbed her boy chump with a fork at Reuben's the other yawning and he choked her slightly . . . All this gab about Clara Bow not wanting to be the "It" girl anymore is all right, but Jean Harlow is the one the movie men are building up with that title, you know . . . The Marx Brothers were so amusing on their first broadcast, sorry you missed them. They have a big-time tone . . . They were ribbing Sidney Strauss, a new member of the Stock Exchange the other day . . . They had the poor man chasing all over the floor on his first day, trying to buy Oil Well Security, a stock that isn't even listed!

When Eva Gauthier opened at Town Hall Sunday she introduced original Javanese music, dances and costumes the like of which had never been seen in this country before . . . She married a Java Prince, and lived there for years. She is the niece of Sir Wilfred Laurier, who was one of Canada's biggies . . . John Drinkwater, who recently arrived here, sent one of the heads of the Satdee Review of Litritchoor some of his new verses to read . . . The editor liked one of the poems "The Flea," so much, that he urged Drinkwater to give permission to run it in the doggy magazine . . . So what happened? . . . So this happened! . . . Last Satdee the verse came out titled "The Flea"—for about 500 copies—before it was caught and replated on the presses! . . . Haw!

One theater in town pays off by check, and is so worried the checks will backfire a fleet of cabs is kept outside every Thursdee and the checks rushed to the bank and cashed! . . . Arnold Johnson called. Said the real tragedy of the Republican Party is that they discovered they were all wet—just a little too late. . . Whispering Jack Smith says that his idea of prosperity is a car in every garage and a chicken in every car! . . . Hay! Here's sumpin'! . . . There will be a tryout for "Carmen" to be presented at Carnegie Hall on March 5. . . . Obscure singers are especially wanted. . . Shrine Star From Ohio

Collette Crowell, musical comedy and light opera star who is to head the "big-time" vaudeville show to be given for Shriners in Syria Mosque, Thursday night, is an intimate friend of Marilyn Miller, the famous "Sally" star now speeding to Europe without clothes except the evening gown in which she went aboard a steamer to visit departing friends.

Miss Crowell was born in Fostoria, O., Miss Miller at Findlay, just 12 miles away. They were playmates, went to school together and took their first singing and dancing lessons from the same local teachers. Then they went on the stage, Miss Miller first, for she is Collette's senior by several years.

Miss Crowell spends summers with her father and mother at Fostoria and at these times sees much of the Millers for they still maintain the old home, and Papa Miller does a bit of show-producing for the church organizations in Findlay, Fostoria, Lima, and neighboring towns.

The man who has booked Miss Crowell for the Shriners was the first to predict the fame that has come to Marilyn Miller.

Eugene L. Connelly, then manager of the Grand Opera House, played an act in Keith vaudeville known as the Five Columbians. The act opened with a scene in which a huge Dresden Vase occupied the center of the stage. Draped around this vase, like a bit of ceramic art, was a 5-year old girl. When she unwound her lithe limbs from the vase and danced, Mr. Connelly was so taken with the child's cleverness, that he wrote an article for the newspapers predicting that this little girl, who was Marilyn Miller, would some day be a great star.

HOLLYWOOD TALES

Looking Through Windows Of Movie Studios

Quick Switch Of Tales for Stars

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 5.

Just as the street lights were going on in Hollywood, RKO officials came to a momentous change of mind, and as a result several of the company's most important stars find themselves with entirely new pictures to do.

It all started when someone discovered a swell new story for Ann Harding—so good in fact that David Selznick gave orders to put it into immediate preparation for the blonde star's next film.

Miss Hepburn

But what to do then with "The Great Desire" (formerly "Christopher Strong"), upon which Ann was about to start? Answer—and this was the second bright idea in a row—to give the part to Katharine Hepburn, who would make an ideal aviatrix.

Great, but that left the impending "Three Came Unarmed" hanging in mid-air without a leading woman. "Postpone it," ordered Headman Selznick, and thus the Gordian knot was cut.

So Kahtarine Hepburn begins "The Great Desire" under the direction of Dorothy Arzner. Ann Harding will do the mysterious story under Gregory La Cava and only Joel McCrea (scheduled for "Three Came Unarmed") is temporarily at loose ends.

After the New York premiere of "The Sign of the Cross," a group was discussing the wholesale killings and deaths in the picture.

One writer was particularly impressed.

"Look here," he said, "Don't you think they really should have called it: 'X Marks the Spot?'"

HOLLYWOOD PARADE

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is crazy to do "The White Sister" opposite Helen Hayes. Maybe he will, but it will take plenty of negotiations . . . Visiting her home in Tennessee was mighty fine, but the biggest thrill Dorothy Jordan got out of her Eastern trip was the dressing-room they had fixed up for her at the Capitol Theater in New York. In that very room—minus all the star trimmings—Dorothy used to dress with the rest of the chorus. It was from there that she went to "Greenwich Village Follies" and thence to Hollywood.

Helen Hayes

Retakes on "Na Gana" have spoiled the Mexico City trip of the Melvin Douglases. By the time he is through, Helen Gahagan will have to go North to reopen the "Cat and the Fiddle" in San Francisco on Christmas night. Meanwhile, there is talk of the couple signing to do a picture together at Columbia . . . John Boles has taken his two small daughters to Palm Springs to recuperate from the flu. Wonder if the students at Los Angeles High School have recognized John as the bicycle rider who passes their classrooms daily? He does 10 miles a day for exercise.

SHE'S DANCING AGAIN

COMEBACK PROPOSED

If the pleas of Charles R. Rogers are successful, Marjorie Rambeau will make a comeback on the screen. The Hollywood producer has an emissary in Sebring, Fla., trying to sign the actress for one of the leading roles in "Strictly Personal."

Back when Marjorie married Francis Gudger, she said that she was content to give up acting and darn socks. But that was many months ago. Maybe the call of the grease-paint will be stronger now.

By an odd coincidence, Willard Mack, one of Marjorie's ex-husbands, is doing the screen play of "Strictly Personal." Originally, it came from the typewriters of Wilson Mizner and Robert T. Sherman.

Oh! For the Trousers Of Will Rogers

To pay for his lunch at the Cafe de Paris at the Fox Studios in Hollywood, Will Rogers fished in his pocket and brought forth a $20 bill.

Taking particular notice of the denomination of the note, Rogers grunted in surprise, then drawled:

"Must have on somebody else's pants."

From Dublin

Eileen Crowe is a member of the Irish Players of the Abbey Theater, Dublin, coming to the stage of the Nixon in repertoire next week.

'Sarong Suits' To Be Style

"Sarong suits" will make their debut on the beaches next summer.

Anticipating a demand for the sarong's freedom and beauty, a bathing suit manufacturer is adapting for beach wear a costume of that type now being worn by Kathleen Burke in her role as the Panther Woman in Paramount's "Island of Lost Souls."

Miss Burke's sarong, although typical South Sea wear, was designed especially for her by Travis Banton, Paramount's famous stylist. This garment is backless with a striking vari-colored pattern.

Such patterns will be a novelty in swimming suits. Heretofore outfits have been in solid colors or combinations of solids.

The principal problem in adapting Miss Burke's sarong is to avoid scandalizing the natives, for, to put it mildly, the new garment will be a boon to sun-bathers.

Just what on earth is a sarong, you may be wondering. Well, Webster says it is "a long strip of cloth, usually of cotton or silk, sewed together at the ends and worn as a petticoat tucked around the waist."

Paul Hurst Prepared For Fire Alarm

Paul Hurst is prepared for a fire or any other rude awakening. The player, who has an important supporting role in Paramount's "Island of Lost Souls," practiced leaping out of bed and putting on his trousers for half an hour today. He was finally able to begin from a "sleeping start," hop out of bed and into his trousers in just three seconds.

Has Past

Evelyn Brent is a respectable married woman who is haunted by a "past" in "Should a Woman Tell?" It will come to the Fulton screen Thursday.

Redheads in Ancient Rome

The popularity of the red-headed woman is not a modern development. The girl with the auburn tresses was as much the envied center of attention in the days of Nero as she is today and those whose hair was black or blonde resorted to dye to give themselves the glamorous tint, according to authorities on life in 64 A. D., which were consulted in connection with the filming of Paramount's "The Sign of the Cross."

Elaborate headdresses also were the Roman fashion and they even resorted to the lacquered coiffures which gained some popularity in Europe this year. Many of these interesting hair styles are revealed in Cecil B. DeMille's spectacular motion picture soon to be released.

Claudette Colbert, who portrays the role of Nero's empress, Poppaea, wears such a startling coiffure with curled bangs across the forehead and long, stiffly lacquered curls at the neck. Vivian Tobin, in the role of Poppaea's friend, Dacia, has an interesting blonde hairdress, also lacquered.

Sophisticated Farce For 'Skeets'

Ben Holmes and Mark Sandrich, RKO Radio comedy scribes, are busy preparing a sophisticated farce for Richard (Skeets) Gallagher, who arrived in Hollywood this week from New York where he put his signature on an RKO Radio contract. It will be produced by Louis Brock as a "headliner" two-reel comedy and Sandrich will direct it.

Double Bill Shown in Davis

By MARY SHINE

The Davis Theater began its new double feature bill policy Saturday with two immensely entertaining shows, "Sherlock Holmes" and "They Call It Sin." Not a single character in "Sherlock Holmes" is miscast, even to the minor parts it is perfectly done.

Clive Brook, in the role of that illustrious figure, Holmes, gives as splendid an interpretation of it as William Gillett. He has that same forgivable superciliousness, whimsy, in fact, everything that Sir Conan Doyle meant Holmes to have. Pardon an exception—not once did he say "Watson, the needle!" but his "Quite so, quite so" and "elementary, my dear sir, elementary" are still heard.

TORRENCE GOOD, TOO

Ernest Torrence, that superb character artist, has the role of the arch criminal, Professor Moriarty, who foils Scotland Yard at every turn, but is brought to justice finally by the infallible Holmes. In this film we see Twentieth Century gang methods invading London, baffling Scotland Yard, but meeting Waterloo in the person of Sherlock Holmes.

You have a romance, in the attractive person of Miriam Jordan as Holmes' fiancee, mystery, humor, excitement and bombings. It's a real thriller.

And then there are Loretta Young, George Brent and David Manners in "They Call it Sin," which concerns a shy country maiden who falls in love with a New York salesman in the town on "business."

SO SHE GOES TO CITY

She goes to the big city to earn her fame and fortune playing music for the chorus.

Her employer, however, intends wrong by our Nell, and she loses her job for repulsing his insidious advances.

Now to hop back to the young salesman. Married to another girl, to whom he was engaged when he made his little tourney to the country, although he is really in love with girl No. 2, he tries to make amends by helping her get her former employer to give back songs she has written for his show. The producer tumbles off a roof where they are talking, and of course it's murder to the police.

Enter the salesman's family physician who untangles things and then falls in love with our country maiden who still loves the salesman. Ah me, another triangle, but everything ends happily for the handsome salesman, played by David Manners, the equally good-looking doctor, George Brent, and the girl, Loretta Young.

'Madam Butterfly' Cast Completed

The completed cast of the Paramount-B. P. Schulberg production, "Madame Butterfly," was announced today. The cast is headed by Sylvia Sidney, Cary Grant and Charlie Ruggles. Supporting players are Irving Pichel, Helen Jerome Eddy, Edmund Breese, Judith Voselli, Louise Carter, Sandor Kallay, Sheila Terry, Dorothy Libaire, Berton Churchill and Wallis Clarke. This is the first of eight productions to be made by Schulberg for Paramount release. It is being directed by Marion Gering.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

EXCELSIOR HOTEL, ROME, Italy.—Well, I have now taken in the night life of Rome. Come to think of it, I don't think I've phrased that quite correctly. Suppose I say instead that I have been taken in by the night life of Rome.

I want to be fair. As I told you yesterday, the real season isn't under way as yet. When the time does roll around, they tell me that gorgeous women in ermine wraps prance into clubs that are the last word in beauty. High hats and full evening attire are common sights. But I saw none of these. What I saw was all quite cheap and common. Or, as we Italians pronounce it, quite lousay.

I had company with me on my tour of inspection. With me were Mr. Ralph Forte, the cynical young gentleman of whom I also wrote yesterday; Mr. Thomas Morgan, another American in Rome; and Mr. Kid Salmon, who guides the destinies of the Hearst forces in this city.

It was Mr. Forte who suggested that we visit first the Club Apollo, habitat of all the young Roman gallants. Anything that sounded like Barney Gallant's was okay with me. So off we trotted.

Over here they must dignify the Apollo with the title of night club but on Broadway we refer to such spots as clip joints. Before I was fairly inside the door a huge gentleman with a large cape grabbed me by the arm and began to make motions with his cape.

"Can't you bring out a bowl of goldfish," I inquired, "or at least one rabbit?"

"He is not a magician, Mark," Mr. Morgan asserted. "He is merely telling you to buy tickets of admission. Do so."

I did so, although buying your way into a class night club is something we see very rarely in America. An elevator with the palsy brought us to the second floor. Whereupon a young lady grabbed my hat and coat, and demanded two lire—or 10 cents—for the said grabbing. Thus, it had already cost me several dollars for my party and myself before I had even so much as a tiny glimpse of the club itself.

I took Mr. Morgan aside.

"Tom," I whispered, "I only have a couple of hundred dollars with me. Do you think that, for that much, we'll be able to stand outside the main door and listen to the music?" . . .

Once inside, a gentleman with a long coat and a short memory guided us to a table that was several rows above the dance floor. We sat down—and before I had a chance to order anything, a huge bottle of wine was whisked to my table and opened. And when I say huge, I mean that it contained at least three quarts.

I protested—although my protests were growing a trifle feeble.

"I don't like wine," I told Mr. Forte, who was seated on my left. "You boys drink whatever you wish, but I'd like a little brandy and—"

"Sh," Mr. Forte breathed. "You are sitting now at the wine table. You only drink wine when you are sitting here. Otherwise, they take you away from here and put you at the poorer tables."

We were then sitting in the last row in the joint, I gulped.

"And where, may I ask," I muttered, "are the poorer tables?"

"Down there," he asserted in very evident disdain.

That was enough for me. For Mr. Forte had pointed out the ringside tables, the choicest spots of any night club! . . .

Some 20 minutes later the show was presented. First of all, we had two sisters who went into their dance. They were pretty bad, but I had to give them credit at that. At their age the way they got around was not to be sneezed at.

The guests of the club, however, took them very seriously. At the conclusion of the number, which was a sort of "off to Buffalo" in the days when Buffalo was sparsely settled, there was much applause and even a bravo or two. It took me a little time to figure that out—but after looking the girls over carefully, I finally hit the solution. The applause came from their children, and the bravos from their grandchildren.

The next number was evidently the star act of the evening. Before the lady had even put in an appearance, the entire joint rang with cheers. I leaned forward in order to catch the big treat.

The lady proved big all right, but she was hardly a treat. She sang one number with all her might and main, and then topped it off with a buttering dance with which a Harriet Hoctor might have had difficulty. I've seen funny dances, but that one topped everything. If you can imagine Primo Carnera as the leading lady in an Albertina Rasch ballet, you then have a rough idea of what it looked like.

But once again the customers proved that they were right and I was wrong. They applauded so vigorously that the star had to appear once more and beg off because she said she was a trifle hoarse.

The third and last act on the program offered Maurice and Viola. The moment the names were announced, I knew just what to expect—and I wasn't disappointed. Exactly why all adagio dancers call themselves Maurice is something I have never been able to understand. They are always Maurice and La Flamma. Or Maurice and Gladiola. Or Maurice and Cerebelli.

Why don't we ever hear of a dance team called Percy and Ethel? Or Charlie and Hattie? Or Nick and Eileen? It's one of the great mysteries of life to me. After all, though, I suppose a mystery's as good as a mile. Ah, me!

Where was I? Oh, yes, Maurice and Viola were dancing. Maurice threw Viola into a corner and the little lady made many angry motions. Maurice didn't seem to care at all. He stood to one side and lit a cigaret. But what was this? Viola came rushing at him, and she made believe she had a knife.

Just as she was about to strike him, he whirled rapidly and clasped her tightly around the second ringside table. Then they whirled around together four or five times, the orchestra struck a chord—(the first one of the night)—and the dance was over. Maurice and Viola retired to their dressing room, where Viola probably knocked Maurice flat.

Does it sound silly to you? You have my word that it doesn't sound any sillier than it actually looked . . .

I leaned toward Mr. Forte.

"Ralph," I said, "this place may be very nice, and all that. But I'd like to go somewhere else. What was that other spot that you promised to take me to?"

The young man wrinkled his brow. Then his face brightened suddenly.

"Oh, yes," he cried. "The Florida Club. But there is really little use in going now. The show is over in that club."

I stood up.

"In that case," I said, "let's go. That's the one reason that might take me there." . . .

Arlen Begins Speeding

Headquarters in Palm Springs have been established by Richard Arlen and Rodney Pantages from where they travel almost daily to Salton Sea for trial spins and preparations for their attempt to break the world's speed record in Arlen's new racing outboard motorboat, "The Panther Woman." The boat has been entered in the mid-winter regatta to be held on the Salton Sea, December 16.

Pantages, champion race boat driver, will ride as Arlen's mechanic. The latter's participation in the regatta will mark his entry into the ranks of outboard race drivers. He has long been a yacht owner and navigator. His new boat was constructed especially for him with Pantages acting as technical advisor on the design. Already he has gone over a mile course at 52 miles per hour. The existing mark for this type of craft is 44 miles per hour.

Cast Being Selected For Kate Smith

A strong cast will surround Kate Smith, radio Songbird of the South, when she starts work in her starring picture for Paramount this week. Randolph Scott, stalwart young leading man; Sally Blane, who has recently played featured roles with Scott in "Heritage of the Desert" and "Wild Horse Mesa;" Jerry Tucker, who has just completed a big part in "Prosperity" with Marie Dressler and Polly Moran, and Charley Grapewin, one of the screen's leading character comedians, already have been assigned to the film.

Gene Fowler Novel To Be Filmed

"Shoe the Wild Mare," sensational novel by Gene Fowler, has been purchased for picture production by Paramount. No cast nor director will be assigned until after the screen adaptation is written. Paramount has also purchased Noel Coward's romantic comedy "The Queen Was in the Parlor" as a vehicle for Claudette Colbert and Frederic March. Production starts soon with Stuart Walker directing. Arthur Byron, of Broadway fame, has a big part.

French Star For Gaynor

Henry Garat, French stage and screen star, who was recently signed by Fox Film Corporation, is due to arrive in this country shortly to begin his American screen career. His first role is to be the lead, opposite Janet Gaynor, in the Fox production, "Princess at Your Order," a gay romance with music.

M. Garat played in the French version of "Princess at Your Order," when it was produced in European film studios. Lilian Harvey, who also comes to America shortly to play in Fox pictures, appeared opposite him in the foreign version of the picture.

"Princess at Your Order" is now being adapted for the screen by George Marion, Jr., and Jane Storm from the original story by Paul Frank and Billie Wilder.

Novel Set for 'State Fair'

A set unique in size and simplicity has been built at the Fox studios for the hog judging sequence of "State Fair." It is a large pavillion, occupying the greater part of an entire sound stage at Movietone City and will house "Dike of Rosedale," the huge 900-pound Hampshire hog, who plays Blue Boy in the picture. A second porker, Esmeralda, will share the pavilion with the "Dike." Thousands of extras will assist in these scenes.

"State Fair" is now nearing completion, under the direction of Henry King. Janet Gaynor, Will Rogers, Sally Eilers, Lew Ayres, Norman Foster, Frank Craven, Victory Jory and Louise Dresser are in the all-star cast.

March, Colbert Lead In New Film

Fredric March has been assigned the lead opposite Claudette Colbert in Noel Coward's play, "The Queen Was in the Parlor." Alison Skipworth has an important supporting role. Stuart Walker will direct.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Don't Be Careless About the Health of Your Eyes

Glaucoma is fortunately a rather uncommon, although a serious eye disease of middle age. I am telling you about it because several of my readers have written about it. They ask whether the ailment is curable.

Dr. Copeland

Cure is possible only when the disease is recognized in its early stages and properly treated. Unhappily the disease is too often overlooked in the curable stages. The sufferer is likely to seek relief after great damage has been done and cure has become impossible.

We are too careless about the health of our eyes. No other organ of the body is more abused and more neglected than the eye.

Glaucoma should be suspected in persons beyond 40 who have impaired vision and complain of persistent eyeache and headache. The first symptom is a dimness of vision which the afflicted one believes is due to improper glasses. He thinks there is nothing wrong except eyestrain.

The exact cause of glaucoma has not been determined. There is some disturbance of the mechanism of the eye. In consequence, the pressure within the eyeball is more and more increased. When this pressure is continued long enough, the optic nerve is injured. This damage to the nerve results in impaired vision.

In the early stages of glaucoma "spots before the eyes" may be a symptom. When looking at a light a rainbow-like halo is seen around the light. Headache and a feeling of dullness in the afflicted eye are other signs of early glaucoma.

The distress may wear off, but the symptoms return. In some cases the vision is poor in the morning and improves during the day. As the first attack subsides, the vision returns and is normal, perhaps for months.

Acute glaucoma, a form which develops suddenly, is marked by pain in the affected eye. This pain is severe, at times almost unbearable. It may radiate over the head, to the ears and teeth, and is sometimes mistaken for "neuralgic pain."

If you have any discomfort of the eyes and particularly a disturbance of vision, consult with your physician. Immediate and intelligent care is imperative if vision is to be saved.

I cannot speak too strongly about the dangers attached to negligence of the eyes. Fifteen per cent of all blindness in this country can be traced to glaucoma. Many of these sad results could have been prevented by early and modern methods of treatment.

Care of the teeth and tonsils, early treatment of digestive disorders, and looking after the general health, are factors we cannot afford to overlook. But certainly when the eyes begin to bother we should find out at once what is wrong.

BULLET KILLS HARLAN DEPUTY

HARLAN, Ky., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—A bullet wound alleged to have been self-inflicted took the life of Deputy Sheriff Ustes Cox, 45, a member of the Harlan County Sheriff's force for 10 years and one of the officers wounded more than a year ago in the battle of Evarts, in which four men were slain.

Cox died yesterday in a hospital here. D. Y. Turner and W. B. Kilbourne, who surrendered after the shooting were released after being questioned by Sheriff John H. Blair. They said they and Cox went to a liquor establishment where Cox became intoxicated. After leaving, they said, Cox drew his pistol and it was discharged accidentally.

Cox was a witness in the trials of several miners charged with murder in connection with the Evarts battle between officers and striking miners.

"MOIST THROAT" AIDS COUGH RELIEF

Your throat and bronchial tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny bottles continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you "catch cold."

Then these "bottles" get plugged up, phlegm accumulates, affording dangerous germs a breeding place. Your throat feels hot and dry. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

Your cough will be cured only when the flow of the natural fluid is increased, loosening the phlegm so that it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely deaden the nerves . . . but don't get at the root of the trouble.

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, which doctors have prescribed for many years, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of the throat's natural moisture and brings quick relief. It helps nature heal that awful cough from the inside out.

When you feel that warning dryness take a few spoons of PERTUSSIN. It's absolutely safe. Sold at all drug stores, 60¢.

COX REPLACES FURNITURE

In his daily activities Father Cox runs across many, many distressing conditions. Early this morning he had a call from a family from which its household furniture had been taken on account of non-payment of installments. The family was left with a place to live, but nothing to live with.

Father Cox looked over the situation, mentally figured out what the family needed for replenishment, ordered his trucks to his storehouse, loaded beds and chairs and tables and a stove, and before noon today the family was again comfortably fixed.

Father Cox will welcome the donation of old furniture and household furnishings for cases of this kind. He has plenty of help among the unemployed who will gladly turn their hands to repairing and restoring anything of this character that is donated. If you have furniture that you do not want, telephone to Old St. Patrick's, Grant 4390, and Father Cox will send his truck and get it.

Father Cox and his activities are not identified with any of the organized welfare agencies. He depends entirely upon the public and his friends for supplies and funds. That's why the Sun-Telegraph has inaugurated a subscription campaign for the benefit of the Father Cox unemployment relief fund. Every subscription for the Sun-Telegraph that comes in on the blank on this page brings a liberal cash commission to the Father Cox Relief Fund.

A much-invited young person is Althea Robinson, the jaunty brunette daughter of the William Christopher Robinsons, who will come out in the spring, probably.

The affair, a dinner-dance, was given in the crystal room of the Ritz-Carlton, New York, with the debutante's brother-in-law and sister, the William Hale Harknesses, of the Hotel Pierre, New York, as hosts.

The ballroom was decorated with palms and ferns, with the tables centered with talisman roses. Among the 30 young guests at the debutante's table was Althea.

At Bud's Table

CHIC INSIDE TRIMMING EFFECT URGED BY PARIS DESIGNERS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 5.—Wear your white trimming inside, not outside your dark dresses, and let it show through the fabric or appear at open edges—these are the newest instructions that Paris gives out to well-dressed women. The white collar is all the smarter for being half concealed; the white cuff is of more fashion value when it is inside the sleeve than out; and the white belt is of more style importance than either collar or cuff.

THERE ARE many ways to get this inside trimming effect. Drawnwork, or fabric woven in the drawn-work manner, furnish one method; white guimpes worn under dresses of this type give the desired smartness, and boleros lined with white may be cut longer at the back to show the lighter color.

THE LeLONG dress in today's illustration makes use of the drawn-work weave to give a generous spread of half-concealed white about the throat and shoulders. The white guimpe appears below the bolero, turns a white collar over the neckline of the dress and gleams through the slashes in the yoke. A white stitched belt accentuates the inward curve at the waistline.

THIS FROCK, along with its finger-tip length jacket, are of brown woolen. Brown astrakan edges the hem of the jackets and forms a little upstanding collar fastened tight about the base of the throat.

FOUR KILLED, SEVERAL INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

'KIDNAPS' CHILD FROM MOTHER AT CHURCH

Estranged Husband Abducts Son, 3, In Wilkinsburg

A father who snatched his 3-year-old son from the custody of his estranged wife during a Wilkinsburg church service yesterday is the object of a wide search today.

After futile pleas with his wife, Edgar Raley sped to Laketon Heights Methodist Church, Frankstown avenue, bundled the younger Edgar Raley, Jr., into a waiting car, and left the mother screaming for help.

Mrs. Raley, who has been living with an aunt, Mrs. Joseph Powell, of Universal, since she was granted a legal separation last September, said her husband visited her Saturday night and asked her to return to him.

She refused. Yesterday morning Raley came to the church, and asked her again to return to him. When she refused, Mrs. Raley told police he snatched up the child and fled.

With a friend at the wheel of the car, which was reported bearing Kentucky license plates, father and son sped away.

Mrs. Raley obtained a separation on grounds of desertion and non-support. Since the separation Raley has been living in Lebanon, Ky., and has not contributed to the support of the child, Mrs. Raley told police.

'NO-FIX' TAGS OUT TOMORROW

"Non-fixable" traffic violation tags were scheduled for appearance tomorrow.

City Controller James Kerr said he would turn over some of the 100,000 new tags already printed to the Public Safety Department at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, and Public Safety Director James M. Clark said he would deliver them at once to Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh.

The tags, which, it is claimed, cannot be "fixed" by traffic law violators with influence, were ordered printed by Council. Controller Kerr will have a duplicate of each tag issued, in addition to the duplicate provided for the Traffic Court.

If the violator is present when his automobile is tagged, he will receive a blue tag. If he is not present, the tag will be white.

Pastor Accepts Call To Crafton Heights

The Rev. H. Ray Shear, pastor of the West Park United Presbyterian Church, tendered his resignation yesterday to accept a call to the Crafton Heights United Presbyterian Church. If accepted, the resignation will be effective December 31. Mr. Shear became pastor of the West Park church three years ago after having been a missionary in Kentucky.

Woman Declares Poisoning Accident

Mrs. Frances McKim, 30, of 1128 Chateau street, was in Presbyterian Hospital today suffering from a poison she told police she took accidentally.

Mrs. McKim was found in the bathroom by her husband, Charles, who took her to the hospital. Police placed a disorderly conduct charge against her.

Trolley Passenger Fined After Row

Accused of cursing and smoking on a Frankstown avenue street car and threatening Motorman Michael J. Driscoll when the latter protested, Pat Bosey, 43, of 4018 Perrysville avenue, was fined $10 or 10 days in jail by Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today.

Gene Begins Story Of Rise to Fame, Fortune in Ring

"When my story is told, I'll tell it myself. And I'll write it myself. It may not be great literature, but it will be the truth." Thus for four years spoke Gene Tunney, conqueror of the terrible Dempsey, to editors who besought him for the story of his rise to the winning and defending of the heavyweight championship. But here, ladies and gentlemen, here it is. All of it. Before you've finished this series, you'll have the story of how Dempsey was defeated in Philadelphia, the tale of that famous long count in Chicago. Here are the punch and politics of prize fighting. And written by the man who did the fighting. Listen! There's the bell. Tunney leads

By GENE TUNNEY

CHAPTER I.

Fortunately or unfortunately, according to how one looks at it, every heavyweight champion inherits biographers. With some of the champions, the more biographers the better. Personally, I have never seen the necessity for the numerous biographies that every champion must stand for.

The newspaper, magazine and book publishers say the public wants them. No matter how the individual looks upon the thing, he can be sure that the usual number will be written. There have been at least four biographies written about me. They were so inaccurate from beginning to end that to me they were more amusing than historical. A short time ago "Pugilism's Greatest Historian" came into my office with a biography which he wanted me to look over before he incorporated it in his history of Irish pugilists. In glancing over the first page of the manuscript I saw six glaring inaccuracies, the first one being what to my mind is the most important part of the story, namely, the correct name of the "biographee."

I have come to the conclusion that since the public is sufficiently interested in its pugilistic champions to want to know the intimate details of their careers from beginning to end, the least they should get in return for this interest is a true account and not a ghost-writer's dream.

I am one of those people who enjoy reading of the interesting experiences and the biographies of prominent figures whether they happen to be in athletics, politics, science, art or literature. I insist, however, on having accuracy. It is, for example, amusing to read the opinions of sports writers, and hear barbers, policemen, waiters, fictionists, et al., express their "expertness" on what took place in the ring at Soldiers' Field, Chicago, on September 22, 1927.

It occurs to me, now that all the experts are on record and the public knows what actually took place, that I—as one of the principals in the affair—might humbly add my impressions to the already greatly swollen record.

OPINIONS DIFFER

The average record of an event, if reported by 10 witnesses will, as a rule, be somewhat garbled. To add to the general confusion I am going to tell what happened in Chicago during my fight with Dempsey as far as my recollection will permit. But I insist here that there is no experience in my entire life that stands out as clearly in relief as do the incidents leading up to the Chicago match, the match itself and what took place afterwards. However, this event and its most interesting sidelights will be described in their proper sequence. For the moment let us go back . . .

A great deal has been written by experts about "natural" and "made" fighters. I have never obtained a clear understanding of what constitutes a "natural" fighter or a "made" fighter. To me it has always been a difference in styles. One man finds out, not necessarily consciously, that an aggressive, swinging attack, without much regard for defense, is the most effective style. Others learn that feinting, slipping, blocking, making openings, etc. (what we call skillful boxing), produce their most effective style. The first is known as the fighter, the latter type the boxer. The so-called fighter or boxer, like a plumber or carpenter, must learn the mechanics of his game. These mechanics must be taught, they are never a natural inheritance. The greatest barroom fighter who, I assume, can be termed a natural fighter could not possibly, cope successfully with the poorest fourth-rate professional.

EFFECTIVE BLOWS

I have never seen a very clever boxer who when called upon to slug could not give a good account of himself; and the good, aggressive fighter when called upon can make a surprisingly good showing as a boxer.

When I told the newspaper men in my training camp in Stroudsburg, Pa., while preparing for the first Dempsey fight, that if Dempsey would slug with me he would be the first to back up, I defined what I meant by

U. S. GETTING RID OF SHIPS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—(Universal.)—The government's early retirement from the field of ship operations was indicated today in the annual report of the United States Shipping Board.

Of the 2,546 vessels previously owned by the board, all but 96 have been sold, scrapped, laid up, or otherwise disposed of, it was reported. These 96 active ships will be sold to private American interests for continued operation, while the 240 laid up will, with few exceptions, be sold for scrap.

As a result of the board's efforts to get the government out of the shipping business, nearly 80 per cent of the ships constituting the American Merchant Marine, second largest in the world, are now owned by private American shipping companies.

American-flag lines carry about 34 per cent of the country's exports and imports. Ocean freight and passenger revenues from this immense movement average about $300,000,000 a year.

Imprisoned Admirer Gets Actress' Aid To Fight Case

She is going to try to sell a 150-pound mounted cub black bear sent to her by a prisoner in the Western Penitentiary. The story goes back to a year ago and is one of a prisoner's admiration for a girl's picture he saw in the paper.

Frank Aikens, now serving his sixth year at the penitentiary, saw the dancer photographed with some animals. Being a lover of animals and a taxidermist, he corresponded with Miss Segall. A stuffed squirrel, a jewelry box, a deer head and deer skin followed in succession as gifts.

Now he has sent the bear, which he wants her to sell. Believing that he was jailed innocently, Aikens expects to hire a lawyer with the money and fight his case.

Laine was driving the motorcycle, the others riding in a side car.

Albert M. Crawford, 56, of 2637 Neiland avenue, was taken to the hospital and William Bell, 55, of 3508 Massachusetts avenue, driver of the car, was treated at the scene. Bell's car crashed with a truck, said to have been driven by Louis Klolas, 30, of 7211 Lemington avenue.

Both drivers were held.

Pink Ink Will Follow Red and Maybe Black Next

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

We don't want to be as optimistic as the bad golfer whose business was picking up.

But our keyhole man in the door factory brings us good news.

Bankers, industrialists and retailers are feeling better all along the line. One of the biggest shooters in trade told us:

"Next year will be okay. We consider this month a success because we clipped our losses down the back like a salt mackerel.

"We are not yet out of the red. But by next April we expect to be using pink ink."

Pink will be an improvement. Like the man on the flying trapeze the trend is upward on the giant swing that started in 1914.

We're glad to hear about the ink. It was red. But it wasn't indelible.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Dec. 5.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Everybody is knocking this lame duck Congress. But do you know, those fellows have chance to make a real name for themselves, and make us ashamed that we fired 'em. They know exactly how the people voted on every question that they will be asked to decide on. They know the majority didn't want prohibition, they know the majority don't want the debt cancelled. They know everybody wants government expense cut in half, so when any question comes up all they have to do is read the election returns. Course if they want to still be on the minority side of all these things we will know exactly why they was defeated.

Yours, WILL.

COUNTY'S POOR BOARD CANCELS CONTRACT

Dravosburg's depression mine, which has been operating only a month, will probably shut down this week, it was indicated by William Schuch and Carl Sullivan, leaders of the movement.

The closing of the mine was expected following notification from the Allegheny County Poor Board that their contract, providing 75 cents for each ton of coal delivered to the borough's needy, had been temporarily canceled.

Mr. King

The men said it was impossible to continue with bills pouring in and no donations in sight.

C. Clyde Miller, chairman of the Poor Board, said although no money has been paid, he had taken that action after complaints have been made to the board of alleged misrepresentation by the two men. Chairman Miller stated a thorough investigation will be made as to their rightful claim.

Schuch, a borough councilman, yesterday said he and Sullivan had obtained permission from the land owners to mine coal for their own use. Others later offered to share in the work. A community project was organized. Free coal was to be given the needy who would mine their own. Widows and churches were to be taken care of, but no coal was to be given to persons able to buy it.

KING'S CHARGES

But Walter King, who later joined the two men, charges a misrepresentation. King said:

"I and several others joined Schuch and Sullivan in the community affair. The understanding was there should not be any money involved, and that everything should be donated for the cause.

"We were given gasoline, carbide for lamps, lumber, mine car wheels, and other things for the operation of the mine. Why, even a windlass was loaned to us by a coal company.

"We later withdrew our support when it was learned that Schuch and Sullivan had made a contract selling coal to the poor directors at 75 cents a ton. The unemployed needy, after mining their own coal, were asked to sign an application for relief."

Chairman Miller said the two men turned in applications for 89 tons of coal last Tuesday, totaling $66.75 and indicating the applicants were in dire need for fuel. The understanding under the contract, Mr. Miller contends, was for the payment of transportation and gasoline for the trucks.

BLAMES POLITICS

When questioned, Mr. Schuch said:

"Sullivan and I have promised the truck drivers compensation for their work and gasoline, when money was coming in. I have gasoline charge bills to show that we have furnished gasoline now and then. We have to pay them some day. I am sure there was politics connected with the whole squabble, just because I am chairman of the street committee of council."

Mr. Schuch admitted delivering coal to persons he knew were not in need, but had credited him with gasoline where others had turned him down.

The mine, built with a four-foot entry and a 32-foot slope, reaches a Pittsburgh vein of coal. The coal car is lifted by a windlass.

Suffering from submersion and exposure, Miss Flower declined in Bellevue Hospital to explain the motive for her act, but Mrs. Mary Cameron, housekeeper where the violinist lives with her father, Walter Flower, chemist, said:

"Miss Flower has been grieving since her fiance died of pneumonia. They were to have been married this month. He was John Hurley, an inventor, who lived, I believe, in Orange, N. J."

She is known on the stage as "Miss Musette."

250 ALLEGHENY MEN WORK ON NEW DAM

Work on the new $1,500,000 Aspinwall dam in the Allegheny River is being rushed, according to Lieut. L. D. Clay, of the United States Engineer Corps, in charge of construction, who said today:

"The new dam is being constructed with Emergency Relief Funds to relieve congestion of the lower Allegheny River and to aid employment. The work started November 1, and we expect to have it completed in a year."

250 MEN EMPLOYED

There are 250 men employed on the project. Officials stated that in order to avoid the winter ice and high waters, that a 20-hour working schedule is effective.

George Vang, head of the Vang Construction Company, contractors, said more than half of the 3,000 tons of steel sheet piling, being manufactured by Jones & Laughlin Corporation, has been delivered. Vang also pointed out that all but 1 per cent of the workers on the payroll live in Allegheny County.

NEW JOB TO START

The dam will be 1,950 feet wide and 50 feet high from rock bottom.

H. C. Adams, assistant to the manager of the Vang Company, said work on the new lock at No. 3 Dam, above Oakmont, will begin in a few days, adding more than 100 men to the payroll. The contract for the new dam has not been awarded, Mr. Adams said. Construction will be in charge of Lieut. L. F. Rhodes.

Deputy United States marshals reported to Marshal Harry A. Weiss two prisoners "were acting strangely" when the officers went to the jail to transport 19 men to the Atlanta prison. Investigation, Habig said, showed the pair had taken narcotics.

The Standard Oil Company station at Ridge avenue and Reedsdale street was robbed of $24 by a lone robber who escaped after forcing the attendant, S. V. Bentley, of 3247 Fadette street, into a rear room.

Police today sought three Negroes who shot Willie Davis, Negro, 26, of Overhill street, last night in Fullerton, near Hazel street, after robbing him of $7.

"Shoot him."

And another of the trio did, firing two shots into the victim. He was taken to Passavant Hospital with wounds in his neck and leg.

GANDHI QUITS LATEST FAST

POONA, India, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—The Mahatma Gandhi has broken a fast he started Saturday because of a dispute with authorities regarding treatment of another prisoner in Yeroda jail.

The famous Indian leader has lost six pounds in the last few days and his already frail body was considerably weakened by his latest fast, which lasted 36 hours, ending yesterday.

The Mahatma expressed his intention of resuming the hunger strike Wednesday if his misunderstanding with the prison authorities is not cleared up before then. He said:

"I may have to die by inches."

It is believed Gandhi is interposing himself in the dispute of a prisoner named Patawardhan, who was refused permission to undertake work in the "untouchability" campaign.

LE HAVRE, France, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Immigration authorities had released 16 American dancing girls today after having detained them Sunday for lack of working permits.

Port officials were informed from Paris last night, however, that the girls' papers were in order and the dancers lost no time getting started toward Paris. They said they were part of Ned Wayburn's troupe, arrived from New York on the liner Champlain.

Texas Guinan, New York night club entertainer, was similarly detained in Le Havre last year when she attempted to reach Paris with a group of dancing girls. She was held under police guard with her troupe in a hotel while attempts were made to persuade the Ministry of Labor to grant working permits. These were refused and "Tex" had to return to New York.

ABORTION of Colds

(with lemon juice)

Do you sometimes get colds that hang on for days? That's because the remedy used does not drive the cold symptoms from the system. Try cold abortion and you'll find those stubborn colds broken up and gone within a few hours. To abort a cold, squeeze two full-sized lemons in a glass of very hot water, to be taken preferably at bedtime. Two hours before, start taking a tablet of Pape's cold compound each hour. After the third tablet take the lemon juice and hot water without sugar, and go to bed, well-covered. Sound sleep will follow, and the cold will be aborted by morning. The lemon juice treatment never fails, but you must have the cold compound to clear the head, dry the nasal passages, and allay any fever. Any druggist has Pape's cold compound; it is perfectly safe, and a tablet will check a cold at any time.

Don't Coddle a COLD!

The moment a cold shows, knock it off! Don't let it linger—and don't attempt to palliate it! Many remedies merely pamper a cold, to the victim's regret. The only way to deal with a cold is to kill it—as quickly as you can!

If treated promptly—when the sneezing or headache begins—a cold can usually be knocked in 12 hours. But you must get at the root of the trouble, a germ infection within the system. This calls first of all, for a COLD remedy, not a cure-all. A preparation that's good for all kinds of ills and ailments can't be equally effective for a cold. Many popular remedies only make relief more difficult because they are constipating and also make the system acid.

A Cold is An Internal Infection

Take a cold remedy and an INTERNAL one. A cold is an internal infection and, as such, requires internal treatment. Don't be fooled by merely local or external applications. They can't reach the seat of the trouble and they can't stop the spreading of the infection within the system. Your doctor will tell you that.

Your doctor will also tell you that there is nothing better you can take for a cold than Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Most physicians will frankly admit they couldn't write a better prescription for a cold if they wanted to. For Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine does the several things necessary to rout a cold, in the way that is necessary.

First, it gently, but thoroughly, opens the bowels—the first requirement in overcoming a cold. Second, it kills the cold germs in the system, drives out the poisonous infection, and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and that grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

That is the treatment you want for a cold and, for your own safety, be satisfied with nothing less!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine may be taken with utter safety by young and old. It contains no narcotics and produces no bad after-effects. It does not upset the stomach, nauseate or make the head ring or swim. In virtually every country in the world it is the accepted cold remedy.

The "Stitch in Time"

In dainty tablet form, Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is convenient and pleasant to take, as well as effective. It comes in handy, pocket size boxes, cellophane-wrapped, and is sold by every drug store in America. When you feel a cold coming on, take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at once. There is no better remedy for a cold and no reliable dealer will try to tell you there is.

BUYER'S GUIDE AND BUSINESS REVIEW

BANK DEPOSIT GUARANTEE FAILS

NEW YORK, Dec. 5—Attempts by various states to operate by law plans for the guaranty of bank deposits have failed in every instance, it is shown in a record of the movement presented by Philip A. Benson, president of the Dime Savings Bank of New York City, in the American Bankers' Association Journal.

Mr. Benson said that the guaranty of bank deposits is no new proposition. He gave the following summary of the experience of eight states in which a bank deposit guaranty had been attempted and in all of which it failed:

"Oklahoma—enacted in 1907; inoperative in 1921 due to the fund's being practically insolvent; repealed in 1923, deficit being between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000. Kansas—enacted in 1909; repealed in 1929; deficit, $7,000,000. Texas—enacted in 1909; repealed in 1927; deficit, $16,000,000. Nebraska—enacted in 1909; repealed in 1930; deficit, $20,000,000. Mississippi—enacted in 1914; suspended in 1930, due to deficit of $3,000,000 to $4,000,000. South Dakota—enacted in 1915, repealed in 1925; reinstated by referendum in 1926; amended in 1927; deficit, $32,000,000. North Dakota—enacted in 1917; repealed in 1929; deficit, $14,000,000. Washington—enacted in 1917; voluntarily canceled when Scandinavian Bank in Seattle failed with deposits of $9,000,000; repeal in 1929."

Mr. Benson indorses a statement of former Controller of the Currency Pole to the effect that a federal government guaranty law would destroy the Federal Reserve System by driving the strong banks from it, would lead to the closing of thousands of small state banks which cannot qualify as members of the Federal Reserve System, and would put a premium upon incompetency and irresponsibility by rendering it no longer necessary for the banker to be concerned for the safety of his depositors."

He adds that the true and the sound alternatives of the guaranty of bank deposits are competent banking management, proper and adequate supervision of the banks by public authority, the freedom of the banks and bank supervision from political influences, and the activity and influence of banking clearinghouse associations that reveal and prevent faulty practices and unwise lending policies.

COPPER BUYERS HOLDING OFF

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Copper remained dull last week, but showed an easier undertone, as producers offered metal at concessions, said to be a reflection of reports of a deadlock in the conference here of foreign producers over the question of production quotas. The consumers were holding off, despite the low price equaled the record low, owing to uncertainties of the results of the conferences which are to be resumed next week. Easiness abroad, the foreign debt situation and the convening of the short session of Congress, were mentioned as additional unsettling factors. It was reported that the enactment date of the British preferential duty on copper has been deferred.

Buyers of lead remained cautious, although quotations held steady.

Zinc continued dull, owing to uncertainties in the general economic situation and quietness of the steel industry. Antimony was easier, reflecting declines in silver and increased selling pressure from China. Demand, however, remained stagnant.

PRACTICAL IS EMPHASIZED IN GIFTS

Since Santa has decreed that practical gifts are the thing this year, many Pittsburgh shoppers are striving for a combination of beauty and usefulness in their choice of gifts. From present indications, family gifts will be popular this year—gifts that not only bring joy at the Christmas season, but have a lasting utility throughout the year for the entire family.

In step with the modern trend to disguise household equipment, when not in use, as attractive pieces of furniture, the new electric ironers come inclosed in cabinets this year, according to G. J. Lugibihl, manager of the American Washing Machine Company, at 436 Fourth avenue. He said:

"No longer an eye-sore, be to tucked away in cellar or kitchen out of sight, the new cabineted ironers may take their place in living room or dining room, along with the radio or other furniture."

The modern ironers are far removed from the hand iron, which brought tired arms and aching back and feet to the housewife, Mr. Lugibihl continued. He said:

"Many women think that an electric ironer is designed for flat work only. This is far from true. Any washable garment may be ironed, with the operator comfortably seated on a chair. Physicians say that women who iron all day are apt to pay in depleted health and dissipated vitality. With the added value of the cabinet as an attractive piece of furniture, the new electric ironers make ideal Christmas presents."

Auto Industry Clears Decks in Fight For Sales

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE AUTOMOBILE industry has cleared decks for action and, armed with new models, is preparing for the most intensive fight for sales ever waged in the history of the trade.

While most of last year's models showed only minor changes, the majority of producers are planning to start 1933 with entirely novel designs, both from a mechanical and an appearance standpoint.

Leaders in the industry are of the opinion that there has been such an accumulation of cars ready for the junk yard, that a large share of the users—depression or no depression—will be in the market for cars if they can be made cheap enough and attractive enough. In addition they have the general hope that business is on an upward trend and that they will no longer be charging windmills in efforts to make sales.

Will Center Efforts On Low-Priced Cars

REPORTS FROM Detroit indicate that the almost prostrate motor car industry will center its recovery activities in the low priced field. This move is based on the belief that sharply curtailed purchasing power will make many owners of high priced cars willing to replace them with machines in the medium or low priced brackets.

The Wall Street Journal carries a report that a comeback is promised for four-cylinder models. At present Ford is supplying the demand for this type, but three additional entries may occupy the field next year.

This paper further declares that the four-cylinder group and possibly two of the sixes will compete in the establishment of a new base price for the industry.

Production Starts On Several Models

DECEMBER IS expected to be the busiest month in automobile production since June. Work has been started by Plymouth, Chevrolet, Dodge, Buick and Studebaker. Others are expected to be in production by the middle of the month in order to have cars ready for dealers by the opening of the automobile show in New York.

Dealers are engaged in clearing out stocks of old cars in anticipation of the new models. While their inventories are exceptionally low, in many parts of the country they are encountering difficulty in getting rid of their stocks of cars and special price offers have resulted.

Until production of new models was started recently, however, the sales of most makes of automobiles were substantially in excess of production. Small inventories of both new and used cars place the industry in an exceptionally favorable position to benefit from an increase in demand when it takes place.

STREET BONUS HOPES FADE

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—It will be another lean Christmas for Wall street workers so far as bonuses are concerned, but brokers and employes alike are philosophically viewing the lean year now ending as a further step toward the anxiously sought turn in the lane of depression.

Before the depression, Wall street echoed and reechoed in December with tales and gossip concerning the munificence of bonues which were to be distributed by the brokers to their employes. In the last three years, it hasn't been talk of bonuses with the approach of Christmas so much as expressions of fear that many employes would find themselves jobless as a result of year end dissolutions or consolidations of firms.

Apprehension of reduced employment in Wall street is less acute now than it was at this time a year ago. Most of the brokerages since cut their staffs drastically to comport with the small volume of business on the stock exchange, and there is less talk of firms merging or going out of business.

SAVINGS MEN TO CONFER

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—The annual Eastern regional savings conference, sponsored by the savings division, American Bankers Association, will be held at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York City, January 26 and 27, 1933. On the evening of the first day the annual banquet will be held.

W. Espey Albig, in charge of the savings division, said:

"The theme selected for the conference, 'How to Strengthen Municipal and State Credit,' is of particular importance because the portfolios of many banks contain bonds issued by states and municipalities. The weakening of the credit structure in any city or state is reflected in the lower price of its securities."

Mountain Deer Raid City Gardens

CANON CITY, Col.—(INS.)—Canon City gardeners and members of the Fremont County Game and Fish Protective Association want the eastern boundary of the Royal George Game Preserve moved further away from the city limits.

During the past few weeks, they declare, mountain deer have caused thousands of dollars of damage to gardens in the city.

Blind Girls Win Bridge Tournament

NEW YORK.—(INS.)—The Card Sharks, a group of blind girls, whose ability to play bridge despite their physical handicap has netted funds for their relief organizations, have proved that they are superior to their sighted sisters in playing the game. In a recent tournament, the blind girls, using Braille marked cards, bested their opponents.

Woman's 'Long Run' Escapes Grid Books

TAUNTON, Mass.—(INS.)—The longest run made this season with a football will not be found in the record books. Two teams were playing on a field in the Four Hart Corners here, when the ball got away from the players and rolled onto the street. An automobile containing two women stopped, a woman got out and picked up the football, re-entered the car and drove away.

ALL-STAR REVUE :-: New Program Makes Debut :-: ON AIR TONIGHT

Crooks Sings On WCAE Again

Richard Crooks, young American tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, inaugurates a new winter series of programs to be heard weekly over NBC-WCAE tonight at 8:30 o'clock. The same alternating system, whereby Crooks and Lawrence Tibbett were featured last year, will be utilized once more, Tibbett making his initial appearance a week from tonight. Tibbett will give three consecutive recitals, with Crooks scheduled to reappear January 2. Accompanied by William Daly's orchestra, Crooks' initial program includes Schubert's "Serenade." "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming," "Song of Love," from "Blossom Time," Olcott's "My Wild Irish Rose" and "La Reve," by Massenet.

Mr. Crooks

Columbia Radio Revue, a new series of half-hour triweekly sustaining programs featuring a long list of popular CBS stars, is inaugurated over WJAS at 10:30 tonight. Tonight's guest artists, with Jay C. Flippen as master of ceremonies, are the Four Eton Boys; Elizabeth Barthell, soprano; Charles Carlile, tenor; Ann Leaf, organist, and a mixed ensemble. The only permanent feature of the series is a 45-piece symphonic dance orchestra directed by Freddie Rich.

Program Pointers

Nino Martini, whose tenor voice has brought him signal success in operatic circles both here and abroad, sings the aria, "Je Crois Entendre Encore," from Bizet's opera, "The Pearl Fishers," and the colorful Italian song, "Vendetta," during his recital with the Columbia Symphony Orchestra, directed by Howard Barlow over CBS-WJAS tonight at 11 . . . On the same station at 10, harmony, blended and cross-blended by the Boswell Sisters and Nat Shilkret's dance music are heard.

Mr. Martini

A medley of Gershwin musical comedy hits is included on the Gypsies' program over WCAE at 9 tonight.

Another rib-cracking episode of the serial, "Beagle, Shyster and Beagle, Attorneys-at-Law," by those mad comedians of the stage and screen, Groucho and Chico Marx, is listed at 7:30 on KDKA.

Presidential Message On Radio

President Hoover's message to Congress will be broadcast over NBC-WCAE and CBS-WJAS tomorrow at 12 noon and 12:05 p. m., respectively. The broadcasts, which comprise a portion of a heavy schedule of special programs covering the activities of the "lame duck" session of Congress, will be complemented on the same day by three "Roving Reporter" broadcasts by Ted Husing.

Husing, equipped with a lapel microphone, will be heard over CBS-WJAS at 10 a. m., 11:30 a. m. and 3:45 p. m. tomorrow as he accosts Manhattan pedestrians and asks their opinions on the beer question.

Globe-Trotter Ill; Ted Kaye on Job

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, is ill with the grip. His place on the air is being taken temporarily by his brother, Ted Kaye, well-known radio announcer and artist.

In order that WCAE and WJAS listeners may hear congressional broadcasts listed at 12 noon and 12:05, respectively, today and tomorrow, the usual 12:15 broadcast of news by the Globe-Trotter is omitted on both days.

Today, the Globe-Trotter's twin broadcasts on WCAE and WJAS are listed at 9:05 a. m., 2:15 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. Tomorrow he is heard over both stations at 9:05 a. m. and 6:30 p. m. and over WCAE at 2:15 p. m.

Listening In—

Bing's Coming Back, Mr. Benny and Mr. Ace, Black Replaces Rapee.

With the exception of Ruth Etting and Norman Brokenshire, who have been retained, an entire new cast has been signed for 1933 edition of "Music that Satisfies," scheduled to begin January 2. Tom Howard, comedian, and his partner, George Shelton, share honors with Jeannie Lang, personality songster, on Tuesdays and Fridays, and Bing Crosby, returning to the air, will broadcast Wednesdays and Saturdays. Lennie Hayton's orchestra also will be featured.

Mr. Crosby

You've probably noticed the marked resemblance in the voices of Jack Benny and Goodman Ace. No, they are not the same person—Jack works from New York and Ace from Chicago. They've been friends for years, however, having first met when Ace, as dramatic critic of a Kansas City newspaper, reviewed a Benny stage performance.

Some odd studio people you never hear: Ed Wynn's valet, who takes care of the funny clothes that Wynn always wears for his broadcasts; Eddie Cantor's valet; Andy Sannella's boy who keeps busy carrying Andy's many instruments to the microphone. . .

Well, well, well . . . So Goldy and Dusty are back on the air! One of the most popular of the earlier radio teams, the twins will be heard five times weekly over WJAS at 9:15 a. m.

Frank Black, conductor and composer, has been appointed general music program director of NBC, taking over the duties of Erno Rapee.

Goodness gracious sakes alive! Kate Smith's lost eight pounds because of having to be on location at 5 a. m.

Arthur Tracy will spend two weeks in Cuba in January.

Peggy Keenan and Sandra Phillips, the red-headed piano team, are arranging special music to be played as a background for Shakespeare readings. With Tony Wons they'll present the idea in vaude soon.

Christmas Seal Plea Broadcast

Fred A. Fichtel, president of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, speaks on behalf of the Tuberculosis League's Christmas seal campaign from the studios of WWSW at 8:20 tonight.

On CBS-WJAS at 4:45, Mrs. Marshall Field, society figure of New York and Chicago, speaking under the auspices of the National Tuberculosis Association, tells the story of Nicolo Paganini, one of many famous people who have suffered from tuberculosis. Her talk is one of a series of three by well-known society leaders.

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen—

Do all you housewives know that by breaking eggs in a small funnel the whites will go through and the yellows remain? Thank Mrs. E. G. Beveridge, of Turtle Creek.

Hoorah for Whitaker! They have 135 students enrolled in their "Depression College." A faculty of seven university graduates, working without pay, heads classes in English, economics, psychology, public speaking and dramatics, which meet in the M. E. Church. Tuition is free.

"My blue birds are blackbirds now," but in this case it's canaries. "What to do," moans J. L. of Swissvale. "The fog has settled in my birdies' feathers." R. G. Smith says to use baking soda to soften the bath water. An East End experimenter who forbids the use of her name said that she held her domestic thrush under the water faucet and rinsed it with soap suds, but the warbler didn't like the idea. We could use a suggestion for a gargle, too. Some canaries are singing bass.

PITT PREPS FOR TROJANS

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Carnegie's Fine Finish. • Cadets to Be Hit Hard.
Trojan Shift Not New. Herman Under 20 Pilots.

BIG SCORE NOT BEST MADE BY SCOTS

THAT WAS QUITE a flourish with which George Kavel and his Carnegie Tech mates brought their season to a close in Washington Saturday while the Army-Navy classic was holding the major part of football attention. Georgetown had a poor season, winning only the first two games and losing six and tying one of the next seven, yet Bob Waddell's Skibos must be credited with one of the notable performances of the year in rolling up 51 points and giving the Hoyas their worst defeat in the 58 seasons of their gridiron history. It suggests that after a lot of hard luck the Tartans may have been just finding themselves when the time came to hang up their cleats.

Bob Waddell

It was by no means a record score for the Scots, though their best against a major team. They have topped it a number of times, leading with a count of 88 to 0 against Waynesburg back in 1915. The same year they beat Grove City, 60 to 6. In 1916 they defeated Grove City, 67 to 0, and Thiel, 59 to 0. In 1921 they took Allegheny College over, 56 to 0. In 1922 they downed Thiel, 59 to 0, and Waynesburg, 54 to 0. In 1924 they trounced Toledo, 54 to 0. In 1927 they beat Drexel, 58 to 0; in 1928 they smothered Ashland, 65 to 0, and in 1930 they walloped Buffalo, 75 to 0.

PITT COACHES HAVE been told that one thing for which they will have to prepare before the Rose Bowl game is a new shift used by Southern California, but football men who have watched the Trojans in action this fall say the shift in question isn't nearly as new as it is cracked up to be.

With the exception of one little switch, they say, it is exactly the same as it was last year. In 1931 it started with four men on the first line, four on the second and three on the last. Reverse the first and third rows, and you have the 1932 shift, plus a double hike. But the latter also was used occasionally last season.

SEVERAL TIMES IN recent years—Penn in the last instance—it was rumored that Pop Warner would leave Stanford to take an Eastern coaching job. Each time the report proved unfounded, but evidently there is more than mere gossip behind the latest story that Pop will quit the coast to take charge at Temple, now coached by Henry Miller, of Penn.

Besides Warner's failure to deny the rumor, there are several items known to his friends which make it sound plausible. It's a big stroke by Temple that ought to make that school in football. The East will welcome Pop back.

NOTRE DAME'S share of more than $150,000 out of the season's biggest gate at the Army game on November 26 was in striking contrast to the conditions of the early days. In 1913, the Irish were offered $1,500 to visit West Point and meet Army. They accepted, won, 35 to 13, and were invited to return. The invitations continued from year to year, and for each trip Notre Dame received $1,500. The sum was not sufficient to pay the expenses of the trip, but Jess Harper, then head football coach, was content to keep up the series. For Notre Dame was seeking national recognition and was getting it through her games with Army. Eventually the games were moved to New York, and they have since paid huge returns to the Notre Dame and Army athletic treasuries. "We owe what success we have had in football to the Army series," Harper says.

Lieut. Gar. Davidson

SPEAKING OF TOUGH jobs that new football coaches will find confronting them when they start in next year, how about the rebuilding contract to be faced by Lieut. Garrison Davidson when he takes charge as head coach at West Point as successor to Maj. Ralph Sasse?

Davidson will have to construct almost an entire new team, for of the entire string of 1932 Army regulars only three will be back to play again next fall. They are Pete Kopcsak, of Greensburg, end; Travis Brown, halfback, and Harvey Jablonsky, guard.

EVEN AMONG THE reserves at the Point, the only men returning for another season will be Paul Johnson and Ralph Bucknam, backs; John Lawlor, Ken Kenerick and Theodore Bilbo, ends; John Smoller, tackle; Lewis Beazley, center, and James Winn, guard.

IT IS RELATED that the fullback on one of the major football teams was declared ineligible. It was a hard blow to the team and the coach, to say nothing of the student body. The faculty finally consented to return the fullback to eligibility if he passed a special examination in chemistry. Every one with influence had suggested chemistry, since the professer in chemistry was the most violent football follower in college. The examination was held and the professor informed the coach at its conclusion that the fullback had been restored to eligibility. "How many questions did you ask him?" inquired the coach. "I asked him two," replied the professor. "What were they?" "Well, first I asked him, 'What is the color of blue vitriol?' and he flunked on that one because he said 'Pink.' Then I asked him 'What elements constitute water?' and he answered 'I don't know.' That was correct, and so I have restored him to eligibility."

SINCE HE BROKE into professional baseball in 1921, Babe Herman has done a lot of traveling. Chicago will be his fourteenth club, and Charley Grimm will be the twentieth manager under whom he has played. During all his shifting about, the Brooklyn club was the only outfit that kept him for more than one year.

In the minors, Herman played for Edmonton, Reading, Omaha, Atlanta, Memphis, San Antonio, Little Rock, Seattle and Minneapolis. The Tigers, Red Sox, Dodgers and Reds were the major league clubs to hold title to him before the Cubs.

WITH THE EASTERN horseracing season over, Henry King finds in a survey that the campaign failed to produce an unbeatable champion. Every noted stake horse was defeated in two or more races. C. V. Whitney's Equipoise was the best thoroughbred of the year, but failed to measure up to such greats of the past as Man o' War, Exterminator, Roamer or Gallant Fox.

Johnny Gilbert

Faireno was the best 3-year-old colt, Top Flight the best 3-year-old filly, Tred Avon the best mare and Ladysman and Happy Gal the best juveniles. C. V. Whitney was the leading owner, with winnings approximating $430,000, and Jim Fitzsimmons was the leading trainer, with 94 races won and $350,000 earned.

THOUGH JOHNNY GILBERT fell one short of tying Hank Mills for the jockey leadership in races won, with 181 to 182 for Mills, he has gone to Jefferson Park to resume riding and probably will set the high mark for the year. Sylvio Coucci and Dominic Bellizzi also featured, but the rider with the best winning average, and beyond doubt the best jockey of the year, was Sonny Workman. Sonny rode only 87 winners, but had an average of 23 per cent. Mills, while first 182 times, made an average of only 22 per cent. Gilbert, with 181 winners, averaged only 20 per cent, and Coucci, with 162 winners, averaged 19 per cent.

POP TO TAKE COACHING JOB AT TEMPLE

BULLETIN.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Glenn (Pop) Warner, Stanford football coach, announced today he had submitted his resignation to Dr. Thomas A. Storey, director of athletics.

At the same time the veteran coach announced he had received a contract from Temple University, Philadelphia, and would be there to take charge of practice next spring.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 5.—The San Francisco Examiner today says that Glenn Scobey (Pop) Warner, veteran football coach at Stanford University, this week will tender his resignation to Graduate Manager of Athletics Al Masters.

The paper further states that Temple University, in Philadelphia, shortly afterward will announce the signing of Warner for a period of five years or more. Warner, according to the story, will leave for the East in the spring and will not take any of his present coaching staff with him.

Warner came to Stanford nine years ago from the University of Pittsburgh.

The prospect of Warner's leaving Stanford has been rumored frequently during the past football season, but always has been denied, both by the Stanford authorities and by the coach himself. Interference on the part of hostile alumni has been given as the chief reason for the dissatisfaction on Warner's part.

DISMAL CAMPAIGN

Warner's Stanford eleven this year went through an unimpressive campaign, losing to Southern California, University of California, Los Angeles, Washington State, and was held to a tie by California. The Cardinals closed their season by losing to Pitt in an intersectional battle in Pittsburgh.

It is understood that Warner will not take any of his present coaching staff with him. Ernie Nevers, a Warner product and Stanford assistant coach; C. E. (Tiny) Thornhill, the line coach; Dick Hanley, of Northwestern, and Andy Kerr, Warner's predecessor at Palo Alto and now head man of the Colgate eleven, will be most prominently considered as his successor.

COACH ATTACKED

At California, Bill Ingram is said to be highly irritated because of pointed criticism in a suppressed issue of Raspberry, a student scandal sheet, and may follow in Warner's footsteps.

In the Raspberry, ordered out of circulation by President Robert Gordon Sproul, Ingram is accused of coming to California with the idea of being a dictator; of reaching into available student employment to such an extent that the non-athletic student finds work a missing quantity; of alienating his players with "big mogul" tactics, such as establishing himself in a big suite of offices and denying players admission to see him and waking them up several times a night during a trip to see if they had been drinking.

Ingram refused to discuss the article.

POP CONFIRMS REPORT

OAKLAND, Cal., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—The Tribune today said Glenn S. (Pop) Warner, veteran football coach at Stanford University, had definitely announced this morning he would resign "within a few days" and "sign a contract somewhere else."

Warner declined to say where he would go except that it would be "a larger school." The veteran coach was quoted as saying:

"My contract will permit me to stay here for the rest of the school year, but I hope to be released immediately. I have been well satisfied here, but there has been criticism that has played a part in my accepting the better offer. If it had not been for that I should have refused to leave."

TEMPLE ADMITS OFFER

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—It was authoritatively stated at Temple University today that Glenn (Pop) Warner, Stanford University football coach, has been offered the head coaching position at the Philadelphia institution, but that no reply has been received from him as to whether he would accept.

No word, direct or indirect, has come from the Stanford coach as to what he is going to do, but many reports have been received that he may go to some institution in the East. Among those mentioned was Yale.

Beyond the fact that Warner has been asked to come to Philadelphia, nothing official was obtainable from the Temple as to the terms offered him.

If Warner comes to Temple he would succeed Henry J. (Heinie) Miller, former University of Pennsylvania star, who has been head coach since 1924.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: AN AQUATIC TOUCHDOWN—Ed Cook, playing left halfback on the Sooner team, actually swam to a touchdown in a game played with the Aggies at Island Park, Guthrie, Okla., November 6, 1904. The Sooner team had pushed the ball down to the Aggie 6-inch line and then lost it. The Aggie fullback dropped back, received the ball and punted, but the punt was blocked. A strong wind caught the ball and blew it back 20 yards into the 12-foot-deep Cottonwood Creek. In those days a loose punt was the property of the recovering team, no matter how far out of bounds. In the wild scramble, 21 players were "in the swim," but Cook was the only one who could hold the elusive pigskin long enough to swim ashore, and the touchdown was his as he waded out and touched the ball to the bank.

PANTHER TOUR ITINERARY OUTLINED

By JESS CARVER

Announcement of the complete itinerary for the jaunt to Pasadena may be expected from the busy athletic department offices at Pitt today or tomorrow. The means of getting to the Coast, however, isn't troubling the gridders, who resume their drills this afternoon under Backfield Coach Andy Gustfason. Coach Sutherland is in Baltimore, where he is handling the all-North eleven that meets a team of picked Southern college stars in a charity tilt in the Baltimore Stadium Saturday afternoon.

The local football season, aside from Pitt's preparations for the Rose Tournament game, is all washed up. Carnegie made a fine cleanup Saturday by walloping Georgetown to the tune of 51 to 0, serving the Hoyas the worst defeat in their history. It was a fine way for the Tartan veterans who completed their varsity careers to wind up, George Kavel getting himself four touchdowns and other members of the Plaid force cavorting in brilliant style. Hooks Sample even kicked himself a couple extra points after touchdowns.

HAGAN AT WORK

During the absence in the East of Director W. Don Harrison, his able assistant, Jimmy Hagan, who played halfback on the 1927 Pitt eleven that lost to Stanford in the Rose Bowl, has been busier than a dog in a flea circus plotting the Panther's trip. It looks now as though the Pitts would follow in the footsteps of Notre Dame and spend two or three days in Tucson, Ariz., getting acclimated before moving into Pasadena. Such a plan will mean that the party will leave Pittsburgh two ar three days before Christmas, stop off in St. Louis, Dallas and El Paso before pitching temporary camp in Tucson.

Until word is received from Chief Scout Ulhard Hangartner, who is on his way to the Coast now to scout the Trojans as they battle Notre Dame this week, the Panthers will confine their practice sessions polishing their own offensive. Little is known of the style of offense being used by the Trojans this year, so the locals can do little toward plotting a defense until Hank comes through with some information.

BASKETEERS DRILLING

Meanwhile, Coach Red Carlson will be whipping his varsity basketeers into condition for their inaugural tilt with Georgetown here Saturday. The good Doctor also is planning for his annual basketball clinic, which will be an all-day affair of Saturday. Another hefty turnout of high school and college coaches is expected.

Pitt's basketball outlook is considered very bright for the coming campaign, despite the loss of stars from last year's team. The Panthers will miss Dead-Eye Timmy Lawry, but Coach Carlson, with the team he's ever coached, has high hopes of going places with his Panthers.

The Tipoff

Speaking of football prognosticators, Frankie Chilbert, of Corsopolis, who peddled papers before and after high school hours, is no slouch. In fact, the kid is clever. All he did was to predict that Pitt would go through the season undefeated and called the turn on the Notre Dame game even to the score.

The Tipoff is indebted to Mr. Samuel Seigle, of Woodlawn Drive, Corsopolis, for this information.

Maj. Ralph Irvine Sasse wound up a brilliant three-year coaching achievement at West Point Saturday as he piloted his Cadets to their 20-to-0 victory over the Navy. The war-time commander of a battalion of tanks directed the Soldiers to three consecutive victories over the Navy and they'll be a long time forgetting Maj. Ralph at Yale, Harvard and even Notre Dame. At the same time, Maj. Sasse will be a long time forgetting Pitt.

I am looking forward with much anticipation to this varsity-alumni game out at Pitt, December 17. If it is anything like the one staged back in 1927, on a day so cold that Bill Schragen's Rogers nearly froze to his telegraph instrument it will be a pip. The game this year should be even more of a test for the varsity (and don't think the '27 battle wasn't, for the players who will line up for the alumni will be in better condition than were the all-stars of five years ago.

There is a possibility that a small admission price may be charged for the game, the proceeds being turned over to the welfare fund. A crowd of close to 10,000 saw the battle back in 1927.

Now that his first and last varsity football campaign is over, Tom Coulter, Tech's track star, is planning to turn out for Max Hannum's basketball team. Tom made a fine job of learning the grid game in the limited time at his disposal. His size and speed will stand him in good stead as a floor candidate.

Jablonsky Named Army Grid Captain

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Harry J. (Jabbo) Jablonsky will captain Army's 1933 football team.

The 183-pound right guard was the unanimous choice of the lettermen at their annual meeting yesterday. A native of Clayton, Mo., a suburb of St. Louis, Jablonsky was a letterman in football, basketball and baseball at Washington University, St. Louis, before he was appointed to West Point in 1930.

M.-A. CIRCUIT MAY EXPAND

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5.—Club owners of the Middle Atlantic Baseball League today are looking forward to another season on the diamond in an optimistic manner. The league moguls came here from Clarksburg, W. Va., to attend the minor league convention, where they were in session over the week-end, discussing plans for the coming campaign and the possibility of forming an eight-club circuit.

Foremost among the questions before the magnates is the frequently recurring one about expansion of the league's size, and the common ones of salary limit, rookies and club needs. President Elmer M. Dailey, of Ebensburg, Pa., said these matters had been well-threshed but that definite decisions would carry over until the official league meeting Wednesday.

There were two signs of possible extension of the circuit from six to eight clubs. One was the announcement that an offer to establish a club at Zanesville, O., had been received, and the presence of a representative of Zanesville baseball interests. The other was the statement that Mrs. Charles Holloway, widow of the former owner of the Wheeling club, had submitted a proposition to the league. The proposition was not disclosed outside the meeting.

Joe Doringer, former manager of the Fairmont club, also sat in on the discussion and before the meeting got under way said it is not impossible that Fairmont will have a club in the Mid-Atlantic.

SPORT VIGNETTES

The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph takes pleasure in beginning today the amazing story of the rise to the heights of Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion of the world, and in announcing that it will present exclusively in next Sunday's issue the eagerly-awaited ninth annual team of the All-America Board of Football.

Here are two really big features of the type which make the Sun-Telegraph a standout in the field of metropolitan newspapers . . . The Tunney story is a vivid narrative, written in simple style, by a man who had the humblest of beginnings, conceived the idea that he had a goal in life and left no obstacle in his path to the achieving of that purpose . . . All along the trail he nurtured a growing sense of the finer things of life, and, when he had gained his objective, he withdrew from the public eye to reap the rewards of his labor. . . . His decision to quit at the height of his career came as a shock to the people who had followed his progress. . . . Only too little did they understand him. . . . Here, now, we have the inside story of his yearnings, and of his boyhood dreams fulfilled. . . . Start reading the glamorous tale today, and you'll find an interesting chapter awaiting your pleasure daily for 42 days.

The selections of the All-America Board of Football, including among its selectors such established authorities as Glenn Warner, former Pitt coach and now mentor at Stanford; Bill Alexander, Georgia Tech coach; Eddie Casey, Harvard coach; Jess Harper, athletic director of Notre Dame, and Christy Walsh, founder of the board, have come to take the place of the rankings of the late Walter Camp, father of the All-America idea, from an "official" standpoint. . . They are the closest thing to being THE official team that could be conceived. . . . The board members themselves know football and have an opportunity of seeing most of the leading teams in action over the stretch of each season, and they have contacts which provide any other needed data.

No Pittsburgh district players other than members of Pitt and Carnegie teams have made the All-America board teams in the eight years during which they have been selected, beginning in 1924. . . . Past members include: Horse Chase, Gibby Welch, Mike Getto, Joe Donchess, Ray Montgomery and Jess Quatse, of Pitt, and Lloyd Yoder and Howard Harpster, of Carnegie Tech. . . . What local players, if any, will this year's team bring forth? . . . Surely Pitt's undefeated eleven, chosen to represent the East against Southern California in the Rose Bowl game at Pasadena, Cal., on January 2, rates at least one place. . . . Will it be forthcoming? . . . You'll have to wait and see. . . . You'll find the entire roster exclusively in next Sunday's Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. —HARRY KECK.

SING SING TIED

OSSINING, N. Y., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—The Sing Sing "Black Sheep" closed their 1932 football season yesterday with a tie game, 6 to 6, with the Bayside Athletic Association. The convicts this season won seven games, lost two and tied two.

NATIONAL CUE PLAY OPENS

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Ralph Greenleaf, many times national pocket billiard champion since his "boy wonder" days in Monmouth, Ill., opens a new defense of his title in a round-robin schedule against nine of the country's leading cue artists at the Capitol Billiard Academy tonight.

An outstanding favorite to repeat his 1931 triumph, Greenleaf will be opposed by six veterans of the green cloth table and three newcomers to championship play.

The old-timers include Frank Taberski, of Schenectady, N. Y., and Benny Allen, of Kansas City, both former titleholders; Edwin Rudolph, of Cleveland, who defeated Greenleaf in the playoff for the championship two years ago, and George Kelly and Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, and Pasquale Natalie, of Chicago. Kelly was runner-up for the title last year.

Seeking for the first time to break into the distribution of prize money totaling $10,000 and a percentage of the gate receipts, will be young Jimmy Caras, of Wilmington, Del.; James F. Mills, of San Jose, Cal., and Walter Franklin, of Kansas City, winners of their respective district qualifying tournaments.

Greenleaf will meet Franklin in his first game. After the opening contest tonight, two games will be played each afternoon and one each night for 18 days.

CAPTAIN ELECTED

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Williams College cross-country runners here elected Garrett Goodbody, of Toledo, O., captain of the Harrier team for next season. Goodbody has been a member of the Williams mile and dale team for two years.

W. P. I. A. L. TO ASK REDUCED FEES FOR ITS OFFICIALS

SCHOOL HEADS GATHER HERE SATURDAY

By JULIUS LEVIN

One of the main topics up for discussion by members of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League when they gather for their annual winter pow-wow in Fifth Avenue High School Saturday morning, will be the fees to be paid officials in basketball and football.

The movement to reduce the fees of officials in both branches of sport is developing into a statewide one in scope and a definite stand will be voiced by the W. P. I. A. L. authorities when they convene Saturday.

The W. P. I. A. L. members are firm in their contention that the fees being paid at present are far out of proportion with the times, and they plan to demand a big reduction to meet the conditions.

Virtually every school in the W. P. I. A. L. has been hit hard by the depression and as a result many have made wholesale reductions in admission prices to their games.

While the attendance at all W. P. I. A. L. games during the recent football campaign did not show much of a decline, the receipts at the majority of the schools have shown a big drop due to the reduction in prices. Quite a number of the schools that usually realized a profit from football reported deficits this fall.

Sentiment favoring a reduction in fees for officials was voiced at the recent meeting of the football committee in the Fort Pitt Hotel. Several of the members demanded a reduction before the opening of the basketball campaign.

The school authorities and coaches will be given an opportunity to air their views on the subject at the meeting Saturday.

School Notes

A familiar rival will be missing from the Charleroi High football schedule for 1933 as a result of the dropping of Scott High School, of North Braddock. Charleroi was unable to find a place for the Reedmen and was forced to drop them as an opponent. This move is regretted by followers of both schools as games between them always proved thrillers from start to finish.

The Vandergrift High School basketball squad, under the coaching of Ted Rosenavig, will open its season tomorrow when Norwin High is the attraction. Willard, Paul and Helbowski are the only Vandergrift regulars back from last season.

District 10 of the P. I. A. A. has voted to retain the state scholastic basketball tournament and at the same time favored the abolishment of the state track meet. P. A. Jones, principal at Sharon High, was re-elected president for the third year.

Coach Preston Ditty, of Monessen High, will bring the Greyhounds to Braddock for a basketball game on Tuesday, December 13. Monessen plans to open the season on Friday with an opponent yet to be named.

Two high school football banquets are on the programs for tomorrow evening. Crafton will hold its banquet in the Crafton K. of C. Hall, while the Little Presidents, of Washington High, hold theirs in the Methodist Church at Washington. Wednesday finds Ambridge putting on the feed bag at the Ambridge Junior High School.

Bill Campbell's Homestead High quintet swings into action for the first time tomorrow night when the Western Pennsylvania Institute of the Deaf is met at Homestead.

Nate Lippe brings his Aliquippa High quintet to Braddock tomorrow to clash with the W. P. I. A. L. champions of 1931.

Schenley High School has been scheduled tentatively for a game at Ambridge on September 23, 1933. This should prove a popular attraction for Moe Rubenstein's class A champions.

Three regulars from last season, Capt. Reiber, Johnny Uram and Teplica, will answer Coach Bridenbaugh's first call for basketball practice at New Castle Thursday afternoon.

THE GREAT OUTDOORS

By GIB MARSH

The opening of the deer shooting season in Pennsylvania last Thursday was a disappointment to thousands of sportsmen. The legal antlered bucks were scarce. Briefly, the shooting was "spotty," and the critics who opposed the general open season of 1931, when 95,051 legal bucks and does were killed, of which 70,255 were does, now have convinced their critics they were justified in their contentions.

The writer and William McDowell, of this city, hunted over two well-known deer shooting sites, the territory surrounding the Phillips preserve, Ligonier, Westmoreland county, and Yangling, Somerset county. On the opening day of the deer season in 1931, probably 800 or 1,000 hunters killed nearly 400 head. Last Thursday, 750 hunters, a conservative estimate, killed eight bucks and saw very few does.

HERDS DISAPPEAR

At Yangling, 400 hunters killed 105 head on the first day of the season last year. Twenty-eight head were killed in one hour on one large farm. Last Thursday, probably 500 hunters bagged just one buck in the same region and reported they saw very few does. Yes, it was a disappointing day for the hunters who tramped the mountains in those two sections. One farmer in Somerset County, who, during the summer of 1931 daily saw upward of 15 head, saw only one lone doe this summer.

While it is too early for a conclusion, it seems the large killing of does last year, all over the state, may have been too strenuous a remedy for reducing the excessive herds of does, about which there was so much complaint at the time from farmers and orchardists.

CONDITIONS IDEAL

The hunting conditions last week were ideal, the weather clear, foliage off the trees and brush, but legal bucks were very scarce.

This condition wil not be permanent. Proper conservation work will restore the good shooting enjoyed in the seasons of 1929 and 1930.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—George (Eck) Allen, West Virginia University quarterback, who had been a patient in Ohio Valley Hospital, in Wheeling, since the game with Washington and Jefferson here November 26, is back at school to resume his studies.

Allen underwent a minor operation to overcome an infection which developed in his right ankle. He said he expects to get back into good physical condition soon and will try out for the Mountaineer basketball squad. Allen is a sophomore.

ZONEYS DOWN CURRY IN CLOSE BATTLE, 2-1

By TOM BIRKS

The Shannon Zoneys secured ample revenge for the defeat served them by the Curry booters two weeks ago in National Amateur Cup competition by beating Curry yesterday on the Englebrook grounds, 2 to 1. A crowd of more than 5,000 witnessed the battle.

Buff Donnelli was scheduled to play in the game, but the former Duquesne University star was confined to his bed with a bad cold.

It was a great battle throughout, poor work on the part of the Curry defense made it possible for Zoneys to flash the ball into the net twice.

ZONEYS SCORE FIRST

After 15 minutes of nip and tuck soccer, Valdeserri effected a poor clearance, and muddled the ball. T. Cherokee slipped in and lobbed it over the heads of the Curry defense to give Shannon the lead.

This advantage held until half time. Five minutes after the scoring of the first goal, Stanko muffed a Zoney shot, and Urbanic tried to force the ball into the net. While Urbanic was on top of the Curry goalie, Johnnny Jaap made it his business to slip the ball into the net, but Referee O'Conner, well placed to see the play, rightly refused to allow the score for obstruction on the part of Urbanic.

In the second half, with 44 minutes already gone, a foul was called against Urbanic and Susko scored.

Zoney's—2.		Curry—1.
Benick	G.	Stanko

MORGAN GETS WIN

Other games in the Keystone League found Morgan defeating Valley Camp, 2 to 1, and the Rosies stopping Cecil, 3 to 0.

In the Washington County circuit, Langeloth defeated Atlasburg, 2 to 1, and the Donahoe club stopped Cedar Grove, 3 to 0.

The Barsotti eleven pulled the big surprise of the day in the Allegheny Valley League, holding the Athletics scoreless. Harwick swamped Millvale, 5 to 1; Kinlock nosed out Curtisville, 3 to 2, and Springdale helped its chances of winning the title by beating Tarentum, 2 to 1.

In the Panhandle League, West Carnegie beat Coverdale, 2-1; Steubenville won over the Braves, 5 to 2; McKnights swamped Grove, 7 to 1; Webers had an easy afternoon with the Vulcans, winning, 5-1; Gallatin went on a scoring bee against Hills Station, winning, 8-0; Verona defaulted to Beadling, 1-0; De Marco stopped Coverdale, 1-0; Pleasant Hills scored early and often to beat Leesdale, 8-2, and the Shannon club defeated Local Union, 4 to 2.

The National Professional Football League championship is just about settled today. Yesterday, the Portsmouth Spartans overwhelmed the Green Bay Packers, 19 to 0, leaving the Spartans with six victories and only one defeat. Green Bay, with 10 victories and two losses, still must meet the Chicago Bears in a game that will decide the close scramble, mathematically. The Bears yesterday defeated the New York Giants, 7-0.

Only 11 Spartans participated in the battle, the regulars going the full 60 minutes without a substitution.

They scored another touchdown in the second period after passes, Ebding to Clark, brought the ball close enough for Clark to smash through left tackle and score. The wind blew Clark's drop kick away from the uprights.

The Braves scored early in the first quarter when Glenn Edwards blocked Novotny's punt, picked up the ball and raced 25-yards to a touchdown. The Braves dominated play all the way with Gyp Battles turning in an outstanding performance.

IRISH DEPART TODAY FOR WEST COAST

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Notre Dame's football warriors, packing an assortment of colds in the head and powerful yearning to square up for last year's 16-to-14 defeat, left for Los Angeles this morning to meet Southern California December 10.

While many were ailing, most of the athletes were on the mend, and the 35 men ranked as capable of playing the kind of football it takes to win, were ready for the long journey. Jack Robinson, varsity center, and Joe Kurth, All-America tackle, the chief members of the sick corps, were improved enough to go along with the rest of the squad, after having been on the doubtful list since Friday.

Coach Heartly (Hunk) Anderson figured Notre Dame's chances for victory over the Trojans depended on how quickly his men got rid of their colds, and how soon they forget about having walloped Army two weeks ago.

A stopover for mass has been arranged for tomorrow morning at 8:10 at Bucklin, Kan. The squad will reach Tucson, Ariz., at 8:15 Wednesday for a two-day halt. It was at Tucson in 1930, that the late Knute Rockne dressed Bucky O'Connor up in Dan Hanley's uniform and fooled people into thinking the latter would play fullback against Southern California in the absence of Larry Mullins. O'Connor did the fullbacking and ran all over the Trojans.

MINOR LEAGUE HEADS OPEN IMPORTANT CONFAB TODAY

FIGHT LOOMS ON PROPOSED SALARY CUT

COLUMBUS, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Baseball's minor league moguls today girded themselves for a week of battle that may see several revolutionary changes in the way the national pastime is played in the smaller circuits.

Sweeping recommendations designed to lessen the financial burden of practically every club were ready for presentation as the thirty-first annual meeting of the Association of Professional Baseball Leagues opened. They are expected to cause long hours of argument among the leagues which have many different ideas on how to ease the situation.

The fireworks opened with meetings yesterday of the American Association and the Western League, each with its own perplexing problems. The former quickly followed the custom it inaugurated in 1916 and re-elected Thomas Jefferson Hickey, of Chicago, president for his seventeenth term.

MOVES REVOLUTIONARY

The association club owners then received from its executive committee a series of recommendations which were kept secret except for the announcement that they "were revolutionary to baseball."

They spent most of their time, however, in discussing the financial situation of the Kansas City and Toledo clubs. The Toledo franchise was given up a few days ago by the Cleveland Indians. Although the club owners said they reached no definite conclusions on either the Toledo or Kansas City situation, it was said they managed to iron out the problems of both fairly well.

President Dale Gear, of the Western League, called his club owners into session late in the afternoon.

A concentrated move is on foot to swing the Denver and Pueblo franchises of that league to more Eastern cities, many club owners asserting the long jumps to the Colorado towns add heavily to the league annual travel expense total.

TEAMS MAY QUIT

Tulsa and Oklahoma City owners threaten to withdraw from the circuit and make application to enter the Texas League unless the franchises of the two Colorado teams are moved.

Today the most brilliant of the fireworks expected to explode when the salary limit is taken up by the Class AA leagues—the International, the American Association and the Pacific Coast. The American Association already has adopted a salary limit.

W. H. Klepper, owner of the Seattle club, said the Pacific circuit would not adopt a salary limit, regardless of what action other leagues took.

FIREMEN COP SECOND PLACE

The Tarentum Firemen eleven is certain of second place in Section 1 of the Lightweight Conference today, and the Rox Rangers, whether or not they win the Conference championship, have the McKees Rocks title safely stowed away for another year.

Yesterday, the Firemen defeated the Etna Sycamores, 20 to 0. Eddie Pope, star halfback, scoring two touchdowns and Guieney the other.

In other sandlot tussles, the Frankstown Merchants tied Fort Black, 6-6; Snee defeated the Knapils, 19-0; Ambridge Cauls won over the Arnold Firemen, 12-0; Brighton trimmed Wabash, 6-0; Westlake upset the Webers, 32-0; McBride's downed the Washington A. C., 12-0, and the McGraths won over the Williams A. C., 12-0.

Baseball Salaries Cut Seen by Fuchs

BOSTON, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Big league baseball salaries are in for a cutting, according to President Emil Fuchs, of the Boston Braves, who is chairman of a committee which is preparing recommendations for the curtailing of baseball overhead to present to the magnates at next week's annual meeting in New York. Fuchs said:

"I cannot announce any of our recommendations, as it is a matter of unsettled business just now. Salaries, certainly, are to be cut, and it is possible that there will be some sort of a general reduction adopted all along the line."

Tunney Writes His Life Story; Early Interested in Boxing

"slug." I did not mean his dropping his head on his chest, shuffling in, and swinging a sneaky punch now and then from a comparatively safe position. What I meant was that both of us were to shoot punches at each other forgetting defense entirely. Hype Igoe, a sports reporter who was one of my listeners and who knows a good deal about boxing, asked why I thought this. I replied that if Dempsey would gamble with me in a slugfest I would beat him to the punch every time. But I did not say at that time how I would beat him. I had learned that blows driven with both hands straight from the shoulder, piston-rod fashion, in an exchange, beat the hooks and swings every time. Moreover, getting inside the hooks and swings with straight punches parries these blows without losing any of the effectiveness of the straight drives. Angle blows spend themselves on the upper arms and shoulders of the straight hitter in fast mixing.

A MEMORABLE GIFT

It has been claimed by the "experts" that I was a "made" fighter. I was described as an "automaton," that an engineer might put together, with no instinct for fighting and a distinct dislike for the whole business. There were and are a great many things about the business of prize fighting that I did not and do not like; but to make a sweeping announcement that the whole thing nauseated me is considerably overstating the case.

I honestly do not believe there ever was a boxer who had more genuine love for boxing competition, or for prize fighting if you will, than myself. Moreover, I do not think that any champion ever engaged in one-tenth of the amount of boxing—for sheer love of the sport—that I did before taking up the game professionally.

On my tenth birthday my father—who was a great admirer of the old pugilists, particularly Jim Corbett and Bob Fitzsimmons — presented me with a set of new boxing gloves. This birthday gift stands out in my mind as the most valuable and most desirable one I had ever received and one that gave me more pleasure than any other gift I have ever had, before or since.

At that time the boy who later became the heavyweight champion of the world was an unpromising-looking lad. He was rather tall for his age, very slight in build and not particularly robust as physical strength goes. However, he was sound in health.

My father was inspired to make his gift because of my avid reading the sports columns. The first paragraph I ever read I remember distinctly as being part of Bob Edgren's column in the New York Evening World. Edgren excited my curious and childish interest with his cartoons of fighters and fights. Long before I was able to read these drawings had me spellbound. I wanted to learn to read just to know what Edgren was writing about these fascinating pictures.

I labored for days and days and, eventually, with the aid of the nuns of St. Veronica's Parochial School in New York, who were unconscious of my ambition, I finally deciphered the first paragraph. Edgren became and remained, for many years, my oracle. I believed Edgren to be not only the editor of the "best sporting page in New York," as he advertised his page, but "a Daniel come to judgment." Fate should provide against the discovery of clay in idols.

My father, being moved by my love of boxing and its fascination for me, gave me the gloves. I shall never forget the first day I had them. I verily believe I boxed more rounds on that one day—my 10th birthday—than I was called upon to box in both the Dempsey contests. Nor shall I ever forget the terrific headache I had upon going to bed that night.

Four or five companions, my brothers and myself, all had swollen noses and lips the next morning; but they were proud badges of honor!

We continued the daily use of those gloves until they actually fell apart. I must admit I had a little edge on the other youngsters, because I had a theoretical knowledge gleaned from the "expert writings" of Bob Edgren. In other words, I knew the difference between a straight left and a right swing.

FIRST PUNCHING BAG

The next addition to my boxing paraphernalia was an inflated turkey crop. I had learned that bag-punching was as important a part of boxers' training as boxing. I remember getting this crop from my mother, who had taken it from the turkey on Thanksgiving Day, and recall tying it with a string to the transom between two rooms. What thrills I had as the greasy thing bobbed around from the violent attack of my small fists!

Unfortunately, the frail organ was not up to my ambitions and after a couple of hours it started to dry and crack. My first punching bag went "the way of all flesh."

About this time I became interested in foot racing and broad jumping and during the annual meets of the parochial schools of New York at Clason Point Military Academy, under the jurisdiction of the Christian Brothers, I competed in the running broad jump and the 220-yard dash. While I was able to out-run and out-jump most of the boys at my school, I did not fare well with the competitors in the annual meets. I never won a prize.

Basketball was also a part of our athletic curriculum. Each class had its own team. For several years I jumped center and learned about the game that I was later to spend a good deal of my spare time playing.

During the summers I did what most of the youngsters brought up on the West Side of New York were doing: I learned to swim in the Hudson River and to dive from barges, trans-Atlantic steamers and other high footings.

In those days it was my great brag that I could dive from any place I could climb to. Naturally that boast brought me into serious trouble. On one occasion I climbed to the uppermost deck of the old S. S. Majestic to do a soldier's dive. A soldier's dive used to be made by holding the hands firm to the sides, as a soldier stands at attention, with the head striking the water first.

All exhibition divers know that this is a most idiotic and dangerous thing to attempt. Diving from heights is made safe by breaking the water with one's hands and making a path for the head to follow. I must have gotten a slight concussion, for I had a frightful headache for three days.

Of course, during this period I had my share of fist fights with my companions. I did not always win, either. Though I was not a belligerent kid, I do not think I ever passed up a good opportunity to fight. This was the training that the youngsters of the big cities got in those days. Guns were not thought of. In one scrap that I remember distinctly, after we had fought for what seemed an eternity, we got into a clinch. We wrestled each other furiously and both fell to the asphalt. Although I was on top when we landed, my head struck the asphalt hard and I was temporarily dazed. The other youngster got up immediately. Realizing that the shouts and yells of the gang meant recognition of my opponent's victory, I jumped up shouting:

"Come on, this fight's not over yet!" So we went at it again. At the end of another hour we were both quite exhausted. An Irish bricklayer on his way home from work stopped the battle.

LIKED OTHER SPORTS

Another fight lasted three days. My opponent and I met the first time in front of the White Star Line pier and hammered each other until a policeman chased us. We continued for the next two days, meeting at different places after school was out, each time being chased by a policeman. On the third day, my opponent decided that he had had enough and quit just before the arm of the law arrived.

I was considered rather incorrigible by my parents because no matter how much they would punish me after hearing of each scrap, I would go right out and on the slightest provocation get into another.

As I advanced in school I became more important to the athletic teams. The admonitions of my parents and the training of the nuns in school eventually made their impression. I gradually gave up the habit of street fighting. My spare time was now spent at running, handball and basketball.

I soon learned to play a good game of handball and to this day without preparation or training can deport myself quite well on a handball court. I played my first game of handball with a Christian brother when I was not much beyond the age of 10. Handball, swimming, running, jumping, basketball and boxing were as much a part of me as breathing.

Tomorrow, Tunney will continue to tell of his novice boxing days, starting at 15 as a steamship company office boy earning $5 a week, attaining an $11 salary the next year, and . . . weighing in at about 133 pounds as a full-fledged member of the Greenwich Villagers' Athletic Club when 16 years old back in 1914.

SHEPHERD SECOND

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Bill Shepherd's field day against Maryland Saturday boosted the star Western Maryland halfback into second place in the final tabulation of Eastern individual football scorers.

Shepherd scored 21 points in Western Maryland's triumph over its state rival and wound up his season with 93 points, trailing the leader, Lou Bush, of Massachusetts State, by 21.

The remaining place will be filled after Andy Kerr, of Colgate, picks eleven stars from the East for the squad, depending on which position needs strengthening.

Benswanger, Ill, Kept From Parley

Running a slight fever and suffering from a heavy cold, Pirate President William E. Benswanger was ordered home today. The local magnate went to bed with the hope that he would be able to journey to Columbus tomorrow to be in attendance at the meeting of minor leagues, which opened there today.

In the event that Benswanger is unable to attend the minor confab, the Pittsburgh club business will be in the hands of Manager George Gibson and Vice President Sam Watters.

Francisco G. Tattazeo Menace to Trojans

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

This little tale will unmask The Tiger who has doubled in brass with the Panther this year and it also will give an insight into the life and ambitions of two of the greatest tackles in the history of the University of Pittsburgh.

The heroes of the story are Paul Peter Cuba and Francisco Guiseppi Tattazeo. You will quickly get in tune with the first name, which belongs to an upstanding and powerful Polish-American of New Castle. A lot of ball carriers on clubs making up the hardest schedule the Panther ever has played will testify that Paul Cuba was in the enemy backfield too often for comfort. Speedy of foot and with the strength of a giant, Paul threw the opposing backs at random.

KNOWN AS TIGER

Count Tattazeo may have you stopped, for the Count, it seems, has been traveling under false colors. He is known in sometimes polite society as Frank Walton, but the boys around Forbes and Atwood streets refer to him only as The Tiger.

A popular member of the Beaver Falls Italian-American colony, Francisco Tattazeo came to Pitt along with Cuba and Paul Reider. He broke his arm in his sophomore year and lost enough time to put him a term behind his buddies and roommates.

So the Count and his tackling buddy are a bit sad in that they must separate. Cuba is a senior, but Frank will stick around to heckle one more Notre Dame team into desperation.

PAL OF CUBA

It might be said that both Francisco and Paul have been decorated—but not by Pitt. At the end of each of the many tough battles fought by the Panthers, the two sterling tackles emerged with busted lips, noses and black eyes. Yet they came out smiling, and—if the Carnegie Foundation is looking the other way—the two left a few trademarks on other willing mixers.

Paul is a student in the School of Business Administration. The Count is doing the hurdles of the college with the aid of spectacles. Yes, Frank bears down.

STAGG THROUGH AT CHICAGO

AMES, Ia., Dec. 5.—(AP.)—Amos Alonzo Stagg, veteran Chicago University football coach, will not be recommended for reappointment next fall, T. N. Metcalf, director of athletics at Iowa State College, who will succeed Stagg as Chicago athletic director, said here following conferences in Chicago. Metcalf said:

"Following conference in Chicago I have decided that I shall not recommend Mr. Stagg's reappointment as football coach for next year.

"I haven't the least idea whom I shall recommend. I wish I did have. At present I am still in the preliminary stage of receiving applications and recommendations and gathering information."

Metcalf said that he hoped a new coach could be selected by February.

By HARRY KECK

It was a stroke of good luck—nothing less—for Matchmaker Lew Raymond, of the Arena, that brought Bobby Leitham, of Montreal, Canadian bantamweight champion, to Pittsburgh en route to California.

Raymond was casting about for a main bout for next Friday night to take the place of his postponed Dave Shade-Frankie Goosby bout when Leitham and his manager, Sam Gibbs, pulled into town, and he lost no time signing Bobby to box Jimmy Thomas, local Negro flash. They will meet at 120 pounds.

SEEKS BRITISH TITLE

It is a big opportunity for the popular Thomas, who already has met some of the leading bantams, including Pete Sanstol, Archie Bell, Willie Davies and Mose Butch. He can make himself an international attraction over night with a victory over Leitham, who, hoping to extend his domain, already has challenged for the British title and plans to go to London to fight for that honor after his trip to the Coast.

Meanwhile Raymond is plotting his preliminary card, to go along with a return bout in the semi-final between Anson Green, Negro middleweight, of Homestead, and Ray Lyle, of Akron, who fought the most sensational bout of the year here in their first meeting, and Matchmaker Jules Beck, of Motor Square Garden, is rounding out his preliminary card for his reopening show headed by Tony Herrera and Tony Falco, next Monday night.

BELANGER TO RETURN

CHAPTER XLV.

Perhaps there have been more chaotic scenes than that which followed this tragedy, but I don't know anything about them. Screams, groans and agonized shouts went up from that horror-stricken audience. And before a minute had elapsed men, women and children were caught in a jam in their meaningless efforts to reach exits. At the height of the confusion a Filipino plainclothes man drew his revolver and sent a bullet through the center of the killer's forehead. The tiger, which had remained calmly seated as if nothing had happened, toppled off its perch and lay dead on the floor beside the body of the girl.

Meanwhile the crowd, losing patience with the idea of an orderly departure through the regular exits, made for the walls of the tent and started ripping holes in the canvas. It was a strange sight, that picture of this mob pouring out into the fair grounds through great rents in the sides of the big top.

Numerous explanations were offered as to what prompted that tiger's murderous conduct. Many felt that the animal had made up its mind long before to put an end to the girl and had merely waited for a good opportunity.

I didn't share this view myself as I have never seen any indications, in my long experience with the species, that they figure things out that way. My own simple interpretation of the occurrence is that for a few brief seconds that tiger reverted back to jungle type.

DIFFICULT TO BREED

Another strange tiger experience of mine grew out of the fact that it is difficult to breed these great cats in captivity. Outside its natural haunts the tiger is easily the hardest to breed of all the cats. It is much easier, for instance, to breed lions and leopards in captivity.

Why? Nobody really knows.

Some years ago I arrived at a mid-western zoo with a collection of animals and birds in fulfillment of an order. Having turned over to the superintendent my charges (a Malayan tapir, a clouded leopard, a pair of binturongs and quite a few birds, including rare pheasants, lories, etc.) I made the rounds of the zoo. I was particularly anxious to see and hear about a tigress I had sold this zoo five or six years before as a mate for a male they already had.

I was interested to learn that this female had proven herself the exception to the rule by breeding easily. The zoo, however, had not been able to raise any cubs due to the fact that the mother killed most of her young as fast as they were born, not an uncommon practice among female carnivora in captivity.

She had three litters that netted eight cubs in all. Three of these had been snatched from her, but she had mauled them so badly that they did not survive.

PLANS TO SAVE LITTER

This tigress, the superintendent told me, was due to have cubs again in about two weeks. He planned to have two men sit up at night with flashlights for at least a week before the expected event.

They would be armed with long prods by means of which they hoped to keep the mother from her young. While I considered the head of this institution a sound zoologist, I thought his scheme for saving the cubs was rather feeble, and I said so with undisguised frankness.

I was without a plan of my own but promised to do my best to devise a means of saving the new litter. The problem interested me, one of the reasons being that I felt it had a certain scientific importance. If our mighty hunters who continue to bump off the tiger populace for the benefit of the Sunday roto sections keep up their work—and there is no indication that they intend to stop—there may come a time when the great striped cat will be as scare as the unicorn of fable. Then it will be necessary to know how to breed tigers in captivity if we are to keep the species alive.

It was necessary for me to leave the Middle West for Philadelphia, where I was delivering some rare specimens to C. Emerson Brown's famous zoo, but I promised to return in a week or 10 days to see what I could do to save those cubs.

My work in Philadelphia over, I returned to the Middle West. On my way back I turned over in my mind the problem of that coming litter, rejecting plan after plan. Then, as I was nearing my destination, I got a hunch that seemed to have merit.

TWO CUBS SAVED

On my arrival at the zoo, an examination of the tigress revealed that her cubs might arrive any day now, or, in fact, any hour. I told the superintendent what my scheme was and he agreed that it was worth trying.

It was necessary to place the zoo carpenters at my disposal, and this was quickly done. The expectant mother was driven into an adjoining cage and then the carpenters got busy under my direction.

I had them tear up the floor of the empty cage. Then I instructed them to take some dressed lumber (two by sixes) and install it edge-wise at intervals of five or six inches. This resulted in a grating-like flooring. The ground level was three feet below this and here I had a thick layer of straw placed.

These preparations completed, we prodded the tigress back to her own cage. She had great difficulty in negotiating that strange floor we had installed but she finally worked her way inside.

A day and night watch was kept and the animal was under observation every second of the time. When the cubs arrived the next day (there were three of them) two dropped to safety through the wooden grating to the floor below while one that was luckless landed crosswise on one of the two by sixes. This one was seized by its mother and killed before we could stop her.

The cubs on the straw below were quickly grabbed by keepers who had been stationed there.

MOTHERED BY DOG

The next move was to drive the tigress into the adjoining cage where she would be more comfortable. This done, we devoted ourselves to the newborn infants. They were quickly moved to the zoo hospital and placed in a nice warm box.

Next came the job of feeding the new arrivals. In anticipation of this problem I had, the day before, asked the superintendent to locate for me an Irish setter with pups. This had not been easy to do and fully three days elapsed before we landed what we wanted. Meanwhile we resorted to a medicine dropper to get milk into the stomachs of the little cubs.

Once we landed our setter (whose pups were added to the litter of another nursing dog) our job was easy. The setter was a fine, good-natured animal and our task of breaking her to the business of nursing the baby tigers proved easier than I had expected. It would be some time before the tabbies could see, and by then they would be used to their new mother.

The cubs thrived. At the age of three months they were weaned. They are very much alive to this day, fine examples of strong, healthy tigers.

STOCK MARKET PRICES TILT UPWARD

The convening of Congress, traditionally an occasion of uneasiness in Wall street, was greeted with more short covering than selling, and some of the popular trading issues advanced from 1 to 2 points.

In some brokerage quarters, short covering was said to have been prompted by forecasts that the House would adopt the repeal resolution. In this connection, however, an analysis of the economic significance of repeal or modification by Moody's warned that final repeal might be years away, and the effect of modification on employment and grain consumption "is likely to be comparatively small."

Professional traders for the most part still kept to the sidelines, and corporate news developments were meager. Dividend announcements included ordering of regular $1 quarterly payments by Lambert and McKeesport.

The Coolidge commission is scheduled to open its hearings on transportation Wednesday, and during three days of sittings is expected to hear from representatives of the automobile industry, the waterways, the railroads and the investment bankers. Next week conferences between the railroad managements and the brotherhoods, on continuance of the 10 per cent wage reduction which expires early next year, are slated to start.

DROUGHT AIDS WHEAT PRICES

CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Wheat prices tended upward early today, influenced by reports that drought effects were becoming acute over domestic winter crop territory southwest. Argentine wheat crop news was also less favorable, with curtailment of production unofficially admitted. Opening unchanged to a shade higher, wheat afterward gained all around. Corn started unchanged to ¼ off and later rallied.

A sustaining factor was smallness of deliveries on Chicago December wheat contracts, 166,000 bushels today, emphasizing that the December open interest here in wheat was reduced to below 7,000,000 bushels, relatively a negligible amount. Word of big export business in Canadian wheat over the week-end also was considered as bullish. Corn and oats were responsive to wheat price upturns. Provisions reflected higher quotations on hogs.

Clamor Over Debts Shortly Will Subside

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

HAD BRITISH AND FRENCH officials been better posted concerning American sentiment, they would not have sent last week's sharp war debt notes to our government.

They would have realized the futility of either coaxing or coercing Congress into foregoing this month's payments and would have concentrated upon pleas for reconsideration and revision before the next installment became due, in June.

Britain's threat of trade reprisals is peculiarly unfortunate, because American sentiment manifestly was veering towards sympathy with Britain in her unquestionable grave financial and economic and social plight. International trade battles can be waged by more than one nation. Britain should realize that she will get nowhere with the United States by threatenings.

France, which has not half as strong a basis as Britain for further leniency, couched her overtures in much more diplomatic language. The notes, however, are characteristic of the two nations. Britain is honest, outspoken, blunt. The French revel in finesse, in dialectic astuteness. Particularly shrewd is the French expression of surprise that America should not be prepared to back up the reparation revisions President Hoover urged Premier Laval to initiate in Europe. President Woodrow Wilson promised Europe more than he could perform; the French now imply that President Hoover promised certain concessions which, notwithstanding the European slate-cleaning agreed upon at Lausanne, he is not now living up to.

My humble guess is that both Britain and France will pay on the 15th, that thereafter there will be dispassionate investigation of the whole facts, that there will be a campaign of "education" of American taxpayers, and that the inevitability of modifying the Young plan will be recognized before next June.

The probability is that the subject will drop from newspaper front pages this month; that sterling will recover appreciably and that the whole problem will move towards settlement with less heat and hysteria than have unfortunately ruled during recent weeks.

BUSINESS DEVELOPMENTS on the whole have been fairly satisfactory. Gains in certain directions have been offset by losses in other directions. Sentiment has undergone little change.

THERE HAVE BEEN such mixed developments during the last week, as a relapse of two to three points in the average quotation for stocks, very mild recessions in domestic bonds, steadiness in foreign bonds; nominal recovery before the end of the week in wheat, weakness in corn and oats, firmness in rye; slight sagging in cotton, silk, rubber, copper, tin, sugar, butter; a new low quotation for silver; modest improvement in wool; a small gain in electric power consumption and in steel output; rather heavy shrinkage in railway car loadings from Thanksgiving week, but a total which compares more favorably with a year ago than any other weekly record throughout 1932.

CONCERNING TRADE, Dun's says:

"The final month of the year has opened under circumstances far more auspicious than were discernible at this period in 1931, as the reports which contain no evidences of fresh gains show a maintenance of previous levels, or a decrease in the hesitancy which had been handicapping the forward movement."

EMPLOYMENT, which improved appreciably during October, according to the Department of Labor, appears to be holding up distinctly better than at this time one or two years ago. The writer, during a visit to Detroit, found that motor manufacturers are expanding working forces to produce new models. Dealers are placing rather encouraging orders. But, of course, it is too early to know what the consumers' response will be.

I LEARN AUTHORITATIVELY that there is every prospect of a helpful arrangement being reached this week by the world's leading copper producers. All but one important factor has consented to a far reaching program calculated to bring production into line with consumption, and to remove the menace of the awkwardly heavy tonnage already above ground.

THE FINANCIAL WORLD awaits the opening of Congress with misgivings mixed with hopefulness that constructive rather than destructive policies will be pursued.

DIVERSITY AIDS LORILLARD RESULTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Like other leading tobacco manufacturers, P. Lorillard Company this year has suffered a substantial shrinkage in its sales of 15-cent cigarets. The effect of this decline on the earnings of the company is minimized considerably, however, by the wide diversity which the company has in relatively stable products and by many new products developed for depression needs.

This year Lorillard's net income is likely to be fairly near the $4,846,373 earned in 1931, aided by elimination of $500,000 interest on bonds retired last year. Of this total, Old Gold cigarets will account for only about 20 per cent. The remainder will be contributed primarily by four other divisions, which are little cigars, Turkish cigarets, scrap tobacco and smoking tobacco.

BUYS MORE TOBACCO

The cigar business of the company also adds to earnings, although in a lesser degree than the four other departments. The scrap tobacco division, the smoking tobacco division, the little cigar end of the business and Turkish cigarets in the aggregate, contribute about four times as much as Old Golds to the total earnings of the company.

Lorillard this year purchased much more low priced tobacco than it normally requires, so that if tobacco manufacturers decide to meet the competition from 10-cent cigarets by reducing their prices, its earnings could still make a comparatively good showing.

WILL COVER DIVIDEND

Per capita consumption of all tobacco products other than cigarets manufactured by the leading companies has shown a gradual downward trend, this year. Prices in these miscellaneous divisions are, in general, relatively stable. If 15-cent cigaret profit margins are lowered in 1933, Lorillard, which has the largest proportion of miscellaneous tobacco products of any of the leading companies, is in a position to suffer the least.

Earnings as above estimated would be more than 50 per cent in excess of the annual common dividend of $1.20.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Political and financial influences weighed on the bond market today and prices showed little inclination to spurt in any direction. Foreign obligations showed some early firmness, but reacted moderately later. United States government bonds were relatively quiet and barely steady.

THREE WOMEN

By FAITH BALDWIN

CHAPTER XXXIX.

In the morning, during breakfast, Joyce gave a clear recital of her day. Yes, she had motored out on Long Island, alone with Basil. They had taken a picnic luncheon with them. They had stopped back in town for a late tea. She was very sorry she had been so late returning home.

She braced herself somewhat for the cross-questioning. But it did not come. Her mother said nothing, Louisa very little. It was as if both of them waited—for what? For a word not uttered?

From then on, until she went away to the country in June, she found herself engaged in a useless struggle with Staines. She met him in his apartment, sometimes for a moment only. She saw him as much as possible; her purpose was clear to herself if not to him. She was trying to find the comrade in the lover; trying, as it were, to mentally detach herself from his arms, disentangle him from her emotions, listen for the voice of mind speaking to mind. She explored his thoughts, his reactions, his conclusions on every subject under the sun, she spoke to him more openly than she had to anyone, even to Van Alstyne, of her ambitions, her driving desire for knowledge.

She found that he soon tired; that his interest in almost any given abstraction ended with a word; that her difficult revelations of self irritated, troubled him; that from any dissection of the emotions he shied away, nervously, angrily. "Why do you always have to be probing, Joyce? Isn't it good enough for you to know that we love one another? Must you want to know why? Here, kiss me."

BITTER QUARRELS

It was as if in the midst of an embrace she had glanced distractedly in a mirror to see if her mental hat were on straight.

Basil took the entire situation so differently. He was ashamed, he was triumphant, he was insistent in his demands that they "set things right." Why couldn't she marry him now, this summer?—in the autumn?—anytime—? What was there to hold her back? She loved him—or had he been mistaken?

They quarreled bitterly—about serious things, about nothing at all.

At home she found the atmosphere stifling and strained. It was borne in upon her that she must soon face the issue, come to a decision. Either she must give up Basil or she must marry him. It could not go on, the surface situation was distasteful to her, she had always loved the larger reticences, but hated secrecy, had loved freedom, but detested the makeshift irregularities that pass for it.

If she did not marry Basil she must break with her people. She couldn't go on there either, she knew that now. She could get work at the University, put herself through the courses open to her. In order to live, she must have money. She thought quite naturally of Van Alstyne. He would help her. She would write to him if her choice lay in that direction. If she could see him she would tell him everything. He would help here there, too. He would hate what she'd done, but she might make him understand. But that road was closed to her. She could not tell him and not involve Basil. And Van Alstyne would never comprehend that it was Joyce and not Basil who held back, was unwilling.

THINKS OF MOTHER

Had she the courage to make the break? To put Staines from her life, to leave her grandmother, her mother? Compunction took her at the thought of her mother, living on there, herself gone, open to Louisa's anger, reproaches. Perhaps her grandmother would refuse to keep Elizabeth after that, in those circumstances. What would her mother do then? Where would she turn? Joyce comforted herself with thinking it would never come to that. Louisa made a fetish, almost, of appearances. Perhaps, outwardly, things would go on, as before; perhaps Louisa would even say that Joyce pursued her own aims with the family consent and approval.

No, she could not endure to think of her mother living with Louisa, under the burden of Louisa's displeasure. She tried to put the vision from her. She argued continually . . . after all, I owe her nothing.

Her mother had not been real to her, not significant nor of importance. Had she been so Joyce could have gone in to her now and told her, asking . . . help me—what am I to do? But did girls ever go to their mothers? Voluntarily? And was any help to be had if they did? Was there really a common denominator in the relationship which could reduce things to a mutual understanding?

* * *

The last time she saw Basil before she left town he announced obstinately, "As soon as I can get away I'm coming down and tell them we are to be married in the autumn."

"I forbid you!"

His face darkened.

"Do you love me?" he asked.

"Yes——"

"Then I'm coming down, this is all nonsense. I love you, want you for my wife. The situation is intolerable. It reflects on my honor."

JOYCE GOES AWAY

His eyes added—and it is not of my making.

"I can't help it, Basil," she told him wearily.

"And you can't make up your mind? What sort of a girl are you anyway?

In his anger he tried to persuade himself just what sort of girl she was—but he did not succeed. He knew that the obvious conclusions were not true. He knew her, a little better than she realized. Calling her names in his mind, pinning labels, pigeon-holing, could not alter the fact that he recognized her as sweet and clean and fine,—and mistaken.

She left him, things still unsettled between them, and went to Connecticut. There she spent long, lazy days, on the beach, on the links, motoring, swimming, or merely lying, relaxed and sun-steeped, in the canvas swing in the rose garden. She was wrapped about with the almost tangible scent of the roses, she heard the humming of a bee as the sleepiest sound in the world.

She was free, she thought. Free from the distracting enmeshing influence of sight and sound and touch. She was away from him, here, clear, away, she could think, she could reason.

Little by little she did so, came to her conclusions.

FEELS INCONSISTENT

She could not build a marriage upon such a foundation. If she could, she realized, she would feel married now. It would not take a church and music and the splendor of the service to make her feel that. Nor would she deny him his wish, she would have acceded to it, at once, would have felt, as he did, that she must have recognition of their union, must be bound by every tie.

It seemed to her extraordinarily weak and inconsistent that, feeling as she did, she could not bring herself to make the definite break; to say the word that would mean so much more than a refusal to marry him, that would carry with it an absolute severance. "It is over and done with. I will not marry you, I will not see you again."

What, she wondered, had brought about the whole situation? Not curiosity, never that, but a complete surrender of her senses to his charm, his masculinity, an urgent demand to make sure, a wild, amazing hope that in loss there might be gain.

He had not written her now for several days. It was in midseason, August. It neared the time when he would take his holiday, would come down, put up at the hotel, see her every day, try to persuade her—and, if persuasion failed, would do as he had threatened and force her hand.

HAND IS FORCED

Then his letter came.

"I have had a cable from home. My brother Julien and his wife have been killed in an accident to a Paris-London plane. I am sailing as soon as I can. I want you to go with me. I cannot return. I must see you at once. I cannot come to you. Come to town when you get this. Wire me."

She sat with the letter in her lap. Basil was Head of his House now.

He was going away—for always. This dreadful thing, this tragedy, had had its lesser effect. Her hand was forced now, in a way neither of them had dreamed. Either she must go with him, must follow him, or she must say good-bye to him for as long as they two lived.

Never to see him again! Never to watch his absorbed face harden into those lines of beauty and rebellion, soften into tenderness?

She wept, beating her hands together. She saw a clouded sky, a seaplane falling, twisting like an autumn leaf—like a leaf, reddening into flame.

She rose, went into the house. It was, she saw, early—not yet half-after 11. Passing to her room she stopped twice, once to straighten a rug, again to brush away with her handkerchief some water spilled from a vase upon a table. She performed each trivial act seriously, as if after deep thought.

Upstairs, she changed her frock, selected a small, close hat, counted the money in her purse, looked at a time-table. There was no train until afternoon. She would drive up.

There was no train—she would drive up.

She paused, leaving the room, to destroy the letter. It was a gesture of habit, unmotivated. She had forgotten Louisa and her mother. She was herself. She and Basil were alone, in a world of shadows. She would see him again. She would know, in that moment, what she must do.

Ten minutes later she drove the car from her garage, down the drive. She left no word with the servants. Louisa and Elizabeth were not in the house. Had they been she would not have remembered it.

She stopped once only, on leaving the village. There she sent her wire to Basil. She couldn't hear his voice over a wire, now.

She drove very carefully but very fast, combining caution with speed. The wind sang past her, the long road unwound itself before the wheels, a little cloud of amber-colored dust followed her through the villages, the country.

She was in the city within two hours. She parked the car, she rang his bell.

She got out of the lift, and went to his door. He drew her into the room, too preoccupied for greetings or caresses. She saw, with a throb of tenderness, that his eyes were red, as if he had wept.

The rooms were in the disorder of packing, trunks had been dragged into the middle of the floor, clothes lay about, boots, papers, books.

The servant was busy in the bedroom. Basil went to the door btween and spoke to him briefly and a moment later the man sidled out without a glance at Joyce.

She said, inadequately, "I'm so terribly sorry."

"Yes." He shuddered, sat down, took his head between his hands. "Julien, poor, old chap. Agnes—God, it's awful!"

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

An awe inspiring sight each Saturday takes place in the 16 Warner Theaters where the members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club meet when you see all the youngsters stand at attention and recite the following pledge:

I Pledge—Loyalty to my Country, Obedience to my Parents, Love to my Fellow Playmates.

I Will be Honest and Truthful in School, on the Playgrounds—wherever I may be.

I Will Respect my Elders and Help the Aged. I will do my Best to spread Good Cheer.

These boys and girls, the oldest member is not yet 16, put their heart in reciting the pledge and pledging allegiance to the Flag of our Country.

19,000 SEE SHOWS

And last Saturday was no exception. More than 19,000 boys and girls assembled in the 16 theaters and after going through the usual ritual which opens each chapter, enjoyed the various forms of entertainment which the managers had arranged for them.

Manager Harry Thomas, of the Schenley Theater, has made arrangements with Miss Gertrude Bales, of the Gertrude Bales Studio of Dancing, to furnish the entertainment for the meeting Saturday.

Miss Bales is going to bring many of her pupils to the Schenley and has promised Mr. Thomas to give the members a show that they will long remember. In all she will have 17 acts of singing and dancing. The dancing will range from the sailors' hornpipe and stomp to the more graceful toe dance, and a big turnout of members is expected for this show.

TEAM CHANGED

The football team of the Cameraphone Chapter won its first game Thanksgiving afternoon, beating the Shadyside Marchands Juniors to the tune of 38 to 0. Several changes have been made and the team now lines up as follows:

Ends—"Shorty" Secola and Jack Kastranakas.

Tackles—Lionel Ramsey and Jimmy Driscoll.

Guards—Rodgers Vounier and Buddy Meyers.

Center—Thomas Graham.

Fullback—Henry La Pertche.

Quarterback—Alfred Caprino.

Substitutes—Paul Strecker, Stanley Gass, John Regan, Veto Marcase, William Regan, Lionel Smith and Sherman Jackson.

These youngsters will play any team in their class and anyone who wishes to book a game with them can do so by calling Manager George Bronson at the Cameraphone Theater.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAYS

Congratulations to the following members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club, who are celebrating their birthdays today:

Rowland—Junior Punkitt, James Fornof.

Isn't It So?

Lodges promote a fraternal spirit, and often furnish a dandy alibi.

When it comes to keeping house, a woman had rather do that alone, but when it comes to keeping a secret she wants help.

Money doesn't buy happiness, but there is something so dignified about it that it commands lots of respect.

Bugs Baer

The Bug Is Still For 'Em

Congress will vote on beer this season if popular sentiment means anything to the people.

Feeling in the Senate is running as high as the foam on a tidal wave. That's two votes.

Then the well-thumbed bill goes to the White House for indorsement. After that, there is nothing for an oldtimer to do but to get a running start and make a swan dive through the swinging doors.

Nobody seems to want the corner saloon back except the writer. He stands alone with a little assistance. He wants one on every corner. He is a four-corner saloon man.

He was born at a place called Five Corners. Many's the time he led the grand cotillion in sawdust up to his hubs.

There was a clubby spirit in the old barroom you can never get in the Congressional Library or a bus terminal. But what we miss most of all is the free lunch. That is where we became acquainted with pretzels, dill pickles and the finer things of life.

Back in 1906 in Philadelphia we lived one entire winter on free lunch. And shall we bite the pewter fork that fed us? Lives there a man with soul so dead that he spurns his alma mater?

Three times a day for five freezing months we stoked up on beans, bread and cheese. And we want to perpetuate Philly's geographical hospitality, for we never had to work the same saloon twice. That will give you a rough idea of days when corners were corners.

Of course, we realize now that the saloon was a den of iniquity. But it certainly seemed like a splendid idea at the time.

If the majority is against the return of the saloon then it will not come back.

The writer will have to make the most of it. But he will always have a warm spot on his vest for those good old bean stains.

Governor Roosevelt Tells You

No Need for Americans to Ask Hereafter 'What Will the New President Do?'

Some questions asked by millions of Americans are these:

"What sort of man is the new President, whom we have elected by such a gigantic majority?

"What are his plans; what will he do; what sort of leadership will he give to the Democratic party and the nation?

"Is he conservative; is he a radical; is he half-way between the two?"

These and other questions Governor Roosevelt answers in an article written by him for the January number of COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE, now on newsstands.

This picture, illustrating the article, and the quotations from Governor Roosevelt's statement that follow are reprinted by permission of the editor of Cosmopolitan Magazine.

The man who will be President of the United States three months from now, sympathizing with his opponent in the recent election, says:

"I do not forget that many fine men were forced out of office by the election. They were so fettered by old-fashioned political commitments and straight-jacketed by out-worn policies that they were literally bound hand and foot. But we must never forget the harm of these commitments and the anachronism of these policies. We must remember them well in order to recognize their faults and avoid the creation of similar ones for the future."

Many, unfortunately, lost all in the speculating mania with which frenzied finance celebrated the boom of 1928-29. Those, "cleaned out," will be especially interested in the statement on stock gambling in Governor Roosevelt's Cosmopolitan Magazine article. Governor Roosevelt writes:

"We must have no more of the frenzied speculation and brutal exploitation of innocent investors that we have recently seen. The 'blindness' of a national administration to it would be criminal.

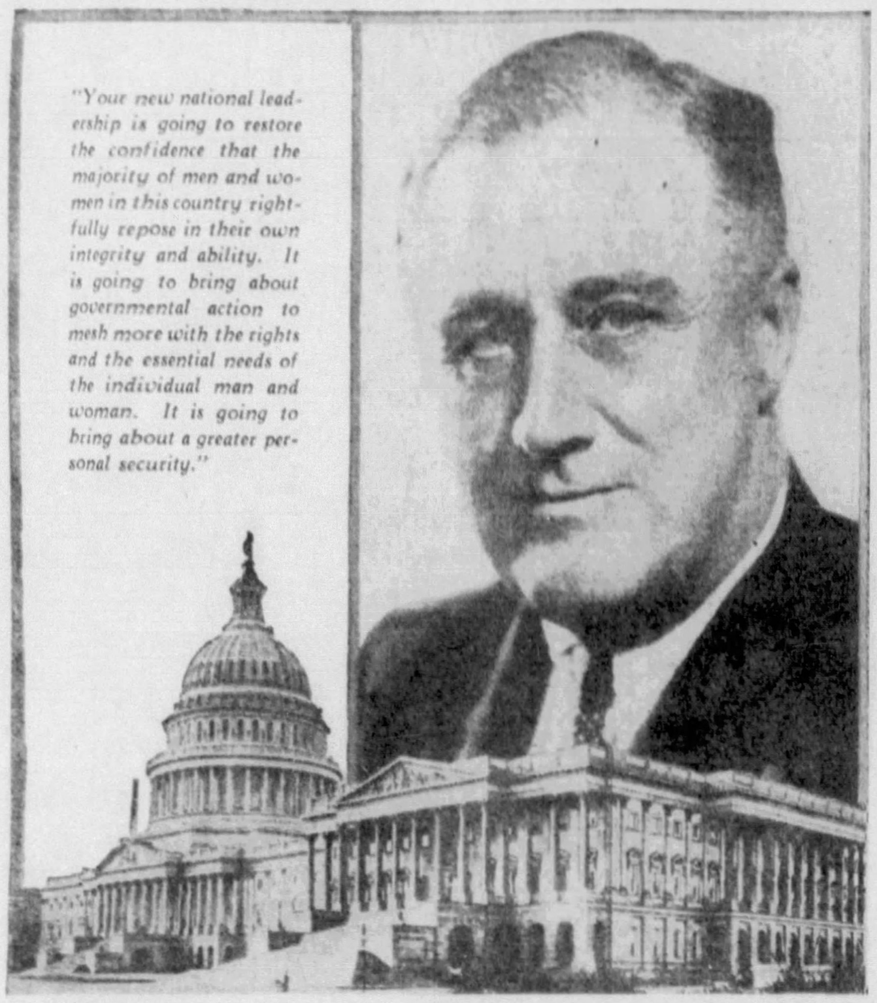
"I cannot prevent the mistakes and the credulity of individuals, but we can all join in seeking to have the information upon which you base your judgment made a matter of public record."

There is no hesitation or doubt about Governor Roosevelt's statement, "DOMESTIC SPECULATION AND STOCK THIEVERY MUST BE PUT DOWN."

* * *

Governor Roosevelt's statement that he intends as President to "have no more of frenzied speculation and brutal exploitation of innocent investors" will not offend any man, except "brutal exploiters," and they do not matter.

(Reproduced by Permission From Cosmopolitan Magazine.)



"Your new national leadership is going to restore the confidence that the majority of men and women in this country rightfully repose in their own integrity and ability. It is going to bring about governmental action to mesh more with the rights and the essential needs of the individual man and woman. It is going to bring about a greater personal security."

All interested in knowing exactly what Governor Roosevelt proposes to do about "frenzied speculation" should read the article that defines "your new national leadership."

* * *

Twenty million farmers, of whom many abandoned the Republican party for the first time in their lives, and voted Democratic this year, will ask, "Will the new President keep us in mind?"

Governor Roosevelt answers that question in his Cosmopolitan article:

"The new leadership intends to go to the heart of the agricultural problem in a realistic way. The basic fact is that the farmers must immediately get a living income from the domestic market. I intend to attack the problem where it is most urgent—in wheat and cotton—for these are the money crops of one-third of our people.

"To get a price for these products which will allow the farmers to live they must get a tariff benefit over world prices. This is equivalent to the benefit given by a tariff for industrial products.

"An artificial or even a temporary measure to create this benefit for agriculture is justified. The probable restoration of agricultural purchasing power should give opportunity to the government to square away for legislation permanently to consolidate and protect agriculture as a vital industry. The benefit must be so applied that the increase in farm income will not stimulate overproduction."

Governor Roosevelt's article makes it clear that he knows the part gambling has played in the recent depression. He says:

"Domestic speculation and thievery, personal and corporate, must be put down if we are to get the confidence essential to industrial and business progress."

Throughout his article the next President of the United States speaks with complete frankness. Millions of Americans will read the statement of their President-elect with deepest personal interest, as they will read his forthcoming articles to be published in Cosmopolitan Magazine. Governor Roosevelt writes:

"I have touched only briefly on some of the plans of the new leadership. I shall have more to say about them before the fourth of March."

The American people, business men and workers, whose prosperity depends on the character of the incoming administration, will be grateful to Governor Roosevelt for the frankness with which he speaks in the article quoted here.

Governor Roosevelt's definition of "your new national leadership" will be welcomed everywhere in the United States.

Two Ways to Give Work

Congress Can Reduce Unemployment With a 30-Hour Week and an Adequate Prosperity Loan.

Toward the immediate reduction of unemployment in the United States today, these two things Congress can do and ought to do as swiftly as the necessary legislation can be enacted.

First, extend to all public works now building or to be built by the federal government the stipulation that workers employed on these projects shall work only 30 hours a week.

Second, expand the public works program of the federal government by appropriating for needful projects already authorized or recommended for authorization and finance this additional construction by means of an adequate prosperity loan.

Senator Wagner, of New York, will urge legislation establishing the 30-hour week on all construction projects of the federal government. He is the author of the provision in the Garner-Wagner relief act which makes the 30-hour week applicable to all construction finance by loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The American Federation of Labor, at its recent convention in Cincinnati, unanimously adopted a resolution in favor of the five-day week and six-hour day throughout the country.

A bulletin from the Department of Labor just issued proves the effectiveness of the five-day week schedule in relieving unemployment in widely scattered sections.

Alabama, New Hampshire and New Mexico are using the five-day week in their road-building projects, and report that by opening of jobs to a greater number of workers this schedule has given work to many who would otherwise have remained unemployed.

A joint resolution of the two houses extending the 30-hour week to all federal construction projects should be rushed through Congress before the Christmas recess. Its prompt adoption will clear the way for the expansion of the public works program north, east, south and west by means of a prosperity loan that has only to be offered to be oversubscribed.

Only by putting our jobless millions back to work as rapidly as the joint efforts of government and private enterprise can make work for them will it be possible to restore the purchasing power of all the people upon which the revival of the interdependent industries of agriculture, commerce and labor depend.

Congress will be guilty of "playing politics with human misery," of thwarting the will of the people, and taxing their patience beyond endurance if it fails to meet the great challenge to government everywhere in this country today by GOING TO THE IMMEDIATE RELIEF OF OUR UNEMPLOYED MILLIONS and giving them work that will save them and their dependents from starvation.

Movies Are Desired, Too

The People Will Not Be Content Until Sunday Theatrical Entertainment Is Permitted.

Advocates and opponents of the repeal of the Blue Law are reported in an Associated Press dispatch from Philadelphia to be conducting a state-wide campaign.

Referring to the organization recently formed to encourage sports, the Rev. W. B. Forney, general secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, warns that the authorization of Sunday football and baseball games would be "a wedge for the theaters clamoring to violate the Sabbath."

Well, why not? There is no harm in Sunday movies—there is good in them; they brighten the day of rest.

Mr. Forney's statement tends to create the impression that it is the theaters that are back of the demand for Sunday movies, that the whole movement rests on commercial propaganda. If that is his opinion, he has been singularly blind to what has been going on.

The commercial interests who would benefit by repeal of the Blue Law are playing a very feeble second fiddle in the movement. It is the people, primarily, who are demanding repeal.

Marry-Go-Round

Modern Love

It's the "achievement" of the thing, which fascinates a man. That's why he'd rather struggle with a tricky lighter than use a match, and is much more eager for the cold kisses of a difficult woman than for the responsive lips that are waiting to be kissed.

* * *

When a man tells a woman the plain, honest, unflattering truth, it may be the best logic—but it's the worst policy.

In these modern love affairs the imagination gets so little exercise that it is becoming almost as useless as the appendix.

When a man reaches the dead line in a love affair, where peace and quiet are more important than winning an argument with a girl, he just agrees with her and calls it being "tolerant."

The mid-Victorian woman wanted only one husband and a lot of children; but the modern woman prefers to turn things just the other way round.

The only reckless lovers, these days, appear to be the married men. A bachelor knows that an ounce of caution is worth a pound of explanation, and chooses his words so warily that the Sphinx seems almost impetuous beside him.

Many a little girl prays heaven to grant her wishes—but secretly plans to write Santa Claus as an added precaution.

HEART-BALM

When lovely woman stoops to lawsuits,
And seeks to make her sweetie pay,
She changes heart-throbs into dollars—
And washes all her charms away!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and cheerily brief notes from Frank Crowninshield and George S. Kaufman. By-and-by, Will Lengel and Charles B. Driscoll dropped in, hooting at what they called my "note-book" expression and sandtoned Russian house boots. But we parted fair friends.

Then to a late breakfast, and Harry Evans, as agile a conversationalist as I know, there, but was praising Garbo, who reminds me of a long, cool drink of water. So, driving off, picked up Laurette Taylor and Charles Hanson Towne and carried them to a tea. And on to sit with Will Hays a while.

The Frank Masons for dinner, and afterward finished my chore. Thence to the Pierrette pierouetting, and talking to Louella Gear, Grace Allen, Dorothy Hall, Howard Hughes and others. Later to a chili place, eating an overfill, and sat up in bed with miseries until dawn.

Mrs. Paul Whiteman has a niece attending a finishing school in a fashionable suburb of Philadelphia. The other day Mrs. Whiteman phoned the young lady to attend a social affair in New York, if permissible. "O, I cannot," wailed the girl. "We are terribly restricted. They have made us wash our faces, take the color off our nails, and we all are perfectly miserable."

A song lyricist's home—Buddy de Sylva's, if you crave details—has been in furious turmoil recently due to a one-man terrorizing that took on the absurdities of a farce. A chauffeur came to de Sylva with intimations of a kidnaping plot against his employer. From then on, mysterious notes, anonymous telephone calls and sinister deceits. Guards were concealed about the house night and day. It developed, the chauffeur not only had hatched the plot, but carried out the details.

Peggy Fears, whose ambitious theatrical ventures were looked upon by the Olympians as the tolerant gesture of a rich husband satisfying an actress-wife's whims, roused the town finally with "Music in the Air." A triad of efforts, "Maid of Manhattan," "Nona" and "Lily Turner," met critical disfavor but Miss Fears kept right on. With seasoned producers floundering hopelessly, the fate of an inexperienced producing novice seemed doomed. Yet, the slim lady with the cyclonic coiffure and a virtuoso grasp of taste, triumphed as no other feminine producer has in annals of musical shows.

Among West Fortieth tenement shambles is a four-tabled restaurant, known to initiates as "The Back Yard." Here in a frame shack, lodged between old brick houses paralleling two sides of the block, an Italian housewife cooks for 12 selected guests nightly. The place was accidentally discovered by Joe Cook. A midget, one of his stooges, begged Cook to accompany him one night to a quiet place for dinner. Cook, hating to offend, went. At that time, the woman had the midget as a sole guest. The meal was so appetizing, Cook induced her to put four tables in her dining room. He gave the address to a select list of diners-out and the place is packed each evening now.

Fifth avenue vignette: Dusk. A sad-eyed girl swings from a bus at St. Patrick's corner, loiters on the curb a moment, blesses herself and dashes up the bold sweep of cathedral steps. So sudden is her action, pigeons wheel into flight. At the entrance, she sways slightly and disappears. A few minutes later, a roadster jams its brakes into a shrieking halt. An excited young man leaps out, looks around eagerly, and finally drives away dejectedly. A puff of drama of some sort. But what?

In brief roam from the desk just now, I gave the radio a twirl. A saccharine voice was imploring kiddies: "I want each one of you to write me, my sweets." I feel the same way, what with a dismal sky sheeting rain in a torrential hiss, another notice of a bondholders' protective committee and an off corn out-thumping the beat of an African head tom-tommer.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

The hardest thing about writing this column is living this column.

Does that amaze you? You hadn't thought of column writing in that way, had you? Neither had I, when I first started writing.

Like most aspiring authors, I believed words were the important thing, and a trick technique that could combine words into laughter or tears, cuss words or prayers. And, since words were the most thing I had, and tricks were the best thing I did, I thought that doing this column was going to be a cinch.

But, like most smarties, I was handed a large surprise. For I discovered almost immediately that words and trick techniques and "artistic temperaments" were the least important things in a job like this. Indeed, they were hardly important at all.

LIVING WAS THE IMPORTANT THING.

Not the words I said, but the way I lived—that was what counted. And the reason was plain enough. For why did people read this column? They didn't read it because they were interested in me or my vocabulary. They read it because they were interested in themselves and their own experience. They read it because they wanted to get something for themselves—something that would ease their lonliness, lighten their dullness, stiffen their courage, soothe their pain. In short, they read it in the hope of finding some solution for life.

And words, no matter how subtle or smart, weren't a solution. They needed more than words. They needed life, itself. They needed to feel another life behind these words; another life that was like their life; another life that dreamed as they dreamed, that sang and sobbed and made a daggoned fool of itself, just as they did.

That's what they wanted. They wanted me, myself, in person—not a talkie. And if this column held me, then it was a success. But if it held only words, then it was just eye-wash.

So if I wanted this column to be something, I had to be something myself. And my column could only have meaning to the extent that I had meaning. I couldn't write any higher or wider or deeper than I, myself, lived. It wasn't a question of living. It was a question of life.

Living—that was the secret of successful writing. And that, as I have discovered, is the secret of all successful human contact.

You're not filling space in a paper. But you're filling space in the world. And you want your space to do exactly what I want my space to do. You want to be popular and powerful. You want to be loved and respected and sought out by other people.

But how can you manage it? You've tried a score of different ways. You've been meek and haughty—shy and bold—lively and dreamy. Yet something is as plain in your case as it was in mine.

You've offered people everything but the thing they've wanted. They haven't wanted a trick line, or a lot of fancy gestures. They have only wanted you. You, yourself, in person—not a talkie. The life that is in you to match the life that is in them. The weakness and the strength, the lovableness and the cussedness, the wisdom and bewilderment that is in you to match the same qualities in them. That's what people want of you.

Your life, not your "line"—that's the important thing.

If you want to mean something to other people, you must mean something to yourself. And you will be important to other people to exactly the extent that you are important to yourself.

Forgotten Things in The French Debt

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The belligerent attitude of the House of Deputies in reference to debt payments from France is not entirely new in our experience. Some of the discussions have been enlightening and others interesting. Thus M. Marin has just made a vigorous attack upon the United States to resounding cheers.

This is not without precedent since the war, either. Making attacks upon the United States has come to be the favorite indoor and outdoor sport in France. We never may be forgiven for having saved France at the darkest hour of her existence with our men and money.

And yet M. Marin had some wheat in his chaff. Thus he said:

"I am in no way opposed to economic negotiations with the United States, but they must be reciprocal, and America must begin by lowering the prohibitive tariffs which she has imposed upon foreign products."

Of course this implies that France is willing under such circumstances, to lower her prohibitive tariffs against our products; she merely asks that we take the initiative. And why not? We took the initiative in launching the trade war which has wrought such ruin throughout the world.

But now that the damage is done our initiative must contemplate reciprocal concessions, and this, we understand, is the plan and hope of the incoming administration here. Europe is not without her grievances—but these are not connected with the debts.

An Interesting Book

In another part of his speech M. Marin says:

"As far as the political debt is concerned the costly war waged in common should be distributed among all members of the coalition."

Primarily we did not enter the war as part of a "coalition." And then, too, the shifting of all the debts to the American taxpayers will not mean a sharing of all; it will mean relieving the others and taking all the burden ourselves.

We have just been reading an intensely interesting book, just out, called "Our Genial Enemy, France," by Edwin D. Shoonmaker, which should have a wide circulation. Had we had the naming of the volume we should not have used the word "enemy." But this book has the merit of submitting all the facts in reference to the debts, and not just some of the facts that bolster up the case against the American taxpayers.

When the Bonds Were for Sale

When Morgan and Company, in behalf of the French government, offered French bonds to American investors in the autumn of 1920, a statement was issued to convince the prospective purchaser that France would be amply able to pay. It sets forth the fact that within 26 months after the close of the war of 1870, France had been able to pay an indemnity of about a billion.

It made much of the fact that the restoration of Alsace-Lorraine would increase enormously France's capacity to pay. Thus:

"Lorraine alone normally has an annual production of 21,000,000 tons of iron ore. The output of the metallurgical industries of this province comprises more than 4,000,000 tons of pig iron, 2,800,000 tons of steel and iron products, and 1,240,000 tons of rolled metal. The potash deposits of Alsace are an important source of wealth. So also are the textile industries of the two provinces. The cotton spinning mills of Alsace possess nearly 2,000,000 spindles and 46,000 looms. In addition, there are more than 566,000 wool spindles."

And more is added:

"French colonial possessions are in extent and value of their resources ranked second only to the Colonial Empire of Great Britain.

Thus when bonds were for sale in 1920, France advertised her extraordinary strength.

No Profit in It for Us

It was six years later that we agreed to a settlement of the war debts, and some figures are enlightening in showing our generosity in the concessions we made to France.

To get the money to loan to the debtor nations we sold Liberty Bonds to the American people carrying interest of 4½ per cent.

To protect the American taxpayer it was agreed by the debtor nations that they, too, should pay interest at 4½ per cent.

There was no profit in it for us.

At the time of the settlement France owed $4,025,000,000.

And in the agreement made we reduced the interest France would pay from 4½ per cent to 1.64 per cent. Thus we reduced the interest rate the debtor would pay, 2.61 per cent.
